Thou Shalt Not Drink.
To Teach Thinking.
Hail Miss Goldarbeiter.
Thoughtful Bourbon.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE government is employing 200 new men in a determined effort to prevent shipping whisky from Canada to Detroit. They will find it difficult, according to a reliable person, who says whisky is sent across now by torpedoes, dragging cases attached to a buoy which are picked up later by waiting boats, guided by a flare.

AN official of the Canadian government, traveling on a rum-running boat from the Canadian shore to Detroit, was assured by the bootleg commander that government officials "never happened to be just where the rum boat landed, and never would happen to be there, for good reasons."

ENFORCING prohibition is hard, and is not made easier by the rather frequent killings by prohibition agents.

A youth recently shot by prohibition agents has just died. A man driving an automobile, with his wife and two children, was shot dead by prohibition agents.

Such incidents might worry sincere prohibitionists. Too many such killings may arouse antagonism.

THE new commandment, "Thou shalt not drink," has not yet eliminated the older commandment, "Thou shalt not kill," as Mr. Harding points out in a forceful cartoon.

DEAN HUTCHINS, soon to be head of the University of Chicago and youngest president of any big college in the United States, says the teacher's real work is teaching students to THINK.

"A university is not made to reform or amuse young men, but to teach them to think, to think straight if possible, but to think always for themselves."

No educator ever said anything more important or expressed more accurately the purpose of education.

But how can you teach men TO THINK? That is the question. You must take them young. Prof. Hutchins says, "It is sad but true that at eighteen or nineteen it is too late to take a boy and make a man of him and interest him in his studies. He is solidified too often in more ways than one."

GALVESTON decides that Miss Lisl Goldarbeiter, Austrian brunette with blue eyes, is the most beautiful girl in the world. In fact, she is crowned "Miss Universe."

The most beautiful girl to be found in the United States, Miss Irene Ahlberg, only got second prize and $1,000.

"QUEEN OF THE UNIVERSE" seems rather a large title. Miss Goldarbeiter would probably be amazed if she could see the young ladies on some planet one million light years away from this corner of space, and those far off interstellar young women, perhaps 1,000 times as big as Miss Goldarbeiter, and each with 1,000 eyes, perhaps, would be surprised to see her.

A YOUNG prince, cousin of the Spanish King, one of the Bourbons (nothing to do with whisky in this case) is said to have canceled his engagement to the widow of an American steel king.

The young lady, charming in all ways, and very young for fifty, was not willing to settle more than $200,000 on the young prince.

That gentleman of a family that "never forgets anything and never learns anything" does not forget that he cannot live now on $200,000.

AT A cost of $9,740,000, a new building will house the United States Supreme Court "in keeping with the dignity of that tribunal."

OLD-FASHIONED judges might think it hard to spend ten million dollars on a building, without upsetting one important Supreme Court tradition, which is democratic simplicity.

It is to be hoped that fancy imitations of European ceilings and other expensive ornamentation will be missing when the building is finished.

The Supreme Court requires no "fancy" background.

WHEN, and if, Ramsay MacDonald comes here to see President Hoover, it is suggested that he will discuss the advisability of recognizing Russia's government and thus solidifying peace.

IN Mr. Hoover, Mr. MacDonald will find a man who has traveled and will give him an intelligent hearing. It would not have been so had the head of the British Labor party called upon some of our earlier provincial presidents.

Even now, some of our "best financial minds" will question the propriety of talking to the head of any Labor government.

MR. REQUA, selected by President Hoover to preside over a gathering to discuss oil control, says that if the government gives oil men an opportunity to "cooperate and conserve" and oil men fail to do it, the government then will step in and compel the oil men to show common sense.

NOW is the time for such action; it will be too late after the national oil reserves have been exhausted—and this country finds itself obliged to pay foreigners whatever they choose to ask for oil and gasoline.

Automobile owners had a taste of that at a time when the British controlled rubber and the price of tires.

THE League of Nations calls a special session to amend a certain statute, and permit Uncle Sam to enter the World Court.

Anything to get the old gentleman in. Once seated, with the vote ten to one against him, it will be easy to make him useful.

Green Flash Badly Crippled In Takeoff; Yellow Bird Said to Be Going Strong

OLD ORCHARD, Me., June 13.—(AP.)—One of the trans-Atlantic airplanes got away to a good start today for Paris, but the second, destined for Rome, crashed before she left the ground.

The Yellow Bird, huge French monoplane, manned by a crew of three young Frenchmen, made a beautiful takeoff and sped away to the East, accompanied by a coast guard amphibian.

The Yellow Bird passed over Matinicus Rock light today one hour and five minutes after she hopped for Paris. The lightkeeper reported the plane was flying fast about 1,000 feet up. The light is 20 miles out to sea and about 80 from Old Orchard. The plane was heading east.

The French plane is equipped with radio and will attempt to keep in communication with ships and shore throughout its journey. The plane's call letters are FAX and the wave length 600 meters.

DOES GROUND LOOP

The Green Flash, American plane, with an American crew, nosed over on the beach and swerved into a ground loop about midway on her run.

The ground loop turned her nose directly about.

Lewis A. Yancey and Roger Q. Williams, of the American plane, were not injured.

The Green Flash nearly duplicated its accident of two weeks ago today. At that time one of the wheels dropped into soft sand and caused it to ground loop, but only the wheel and a few stay wires were damaged.

FEAR SERIOUS DAMAGE

The plane was traveling at a much higher rate of speed today and it was believed the damage would be more serious.

The French plane got away two weeks ago, but was forced to re-

WOMAN HELD IN BLACKMAILING

Elizabeth Stockton Brosko, 20, of Greensburg, Pa., accused by police of blackmailing a dozen prominent men in this and other cities, was arraigned in Morals Court today.

She was arrested last night in a Fifth avenue rooming house, by Detectives Jack Lavery and Sol Fromme, after numerous complaints had been received from her alleged victims.

Yesterday, the detectives testified, a prominent Pittsburgher, whom they did not name, was held for court by Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan, on charges framed by the girl.

At Flanigan's office it was said the man held was E. M. Freed, of the Ruskin apartments, who had been given a hearing a week previously on serious charges brought by one Elizabeth Stockton. This name, detectives said, is one of the girl's aliases.

A Philadelphia man was robbed of $250 recently in the Kilkeary Hotel by Miss Brosko, the detectives testified.

"Her scheme," testified Detective Lavery in Morals Court today, "is to meet men, preferably married men with automobiles,

Cramer Plans Flight To Sweden in July

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—Parker Cramer, who last year attempted a non-stop flight from Rockford, Ill., to Sweden, plans to attempt a flight from Chicago to Sweden next month, the Herald-Tribune says.

Plans for the flight were learned after the secret departure of an amphibian plane from Roosevelt Field to Hartford, Conn., where the motor of the ship is to receive a general overhauling. It was said that Robert Gast will be Cramer's companion on the flight, planned for the middle of July. Their route will be by way of Greenland and Iceland.

HOUSE VOTES DEBENTURE BILL DOWN

Hoover Wins Fight to Keep Plan Out of Farm Relief Program

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP.)—The House today backed up the views of President Hoover by rejecting the export debenture plan of farm relief.

The debenture proposition, which Mr. Hoover had attacked twice in public statements and which he had termed a subsidy, was voted down on a roll call vote taken at the insistence of the senate, which had approved it on two occasions.

A number of senators had been represented, however, as demanding the inclusion of the plan in the bill in order that the house members could be recorded on it. Today's action was regarded by administration leaders as paving the way for a recession by the senate in its stand and a quick transmittal of a relief measure, minus the debenture to the White House.

Calling of the more than 400 names of the house members started a few minutes after Speaker Longworth rapped for order at noon.

HOUSE MADE MEASURE

Chairman Haugen, of the Agriculture Committee, raised the question by moving the House instruct its members of the farm conference committee to insist upon rejection of the proposition.

Hardly had Haugen started speaking before shouts of "vote, vote, vote," rang through the chamber. Under the rules an hour's debate was in order, but members clamored incessantly for the ballot.

The House acted on a bill largely of its own making. It had been passed early in the session to set up stabilization corporations to handle the problem of farm surpluses.

The Senate inserted into it a plan whereby debenture certificates could be issued on exports of agri-

PETTY TO FACE M'GRAWMEN

The Giant circus proved a big success for the Pirates on the first showing in the Oakland Orchard, and today the home boys will endeavor again to steal the show.

Burleigh Grimes failed to record his eleventh victory of the season, but the Wisconsin Wildcat is still prowling without a setback, owing to the grand rush of his mates in the ninth. Grimes had gone to the showers with thoughts of defeat long before Pie Traynor spanked a single to center that scored the tying run. And when Boots Grantham whistled a bounder through Bill Terry and Mel Ott, Traynor sprinted from first to the plate with the winning run. The score was 7 to 6.

Manager Bush will use Jess Petty on the mound this afternoon. The Giants expect to work behind Southpaw Bill Walker.

The Pirates have quite a lengthy hospital list with Bartell, French and Kremer laid up. French has grippe and Kremer is suffering from a burn he received in the Pirate clubhouse. Bartell is nearing recovery from the blow he received on the left shoulder last Saturday. Coburn Jones will be at short today.

All passengers were disembarked without serious injury after the plane burst into flames upon landing, the official announcement said.

Marion Talley Buys More Kansas Land

COLBY, Kans., June 13.—(AP.)—Marion Talley, who recently abandoned her Metropolitan opera work to take up farming, yesterday increased her land holding near Colby by purchasing a half section adjoining the section she acquired a few weeks ago "for $1 and other valuable considerations." The purchase price of the latest acquisition was not divulged.

Besides purchasing more land, the young singer executed new leases with her tenants. She said that she probably would not return to Colby before next spring because of the phonograph recording contract which she must fulfill in New York.

HARRY SHARES EQUALLY IN RESIDUE; DEBTS TO MOTHER REDUCED

Presbyterian Church Receives Many Bequests; Hospitals, Colleges, Relatives, Friends, Servants Are Beneficiaries—First Thought of Philanthropist Forgiveness to Debtors; Cancels Thousands.

The Thaw millions were distributed today in the will of Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, philanthropist to the end. Her four children and the Presbyterian Church are named the principal beneficiaries, after countless bequests to relatives, friends, servants, churches, colleges, hospital and charity made by the aged benefactor, who was laid to rest yesterday.

The estate is valued at $5,000,000, an estimate regarded as conservative.

The will was filed for probate by Attorney W. R. Scott.

Mrs. Thaw's first thought in her will was forgiveness for debts. She either canceled entirely or reduced by half all debts owed to her by any relative of her or her late husband, William Thaw.

After making numerous bequests which total more than $500,000, Mrs. Thaw divides the residue of her estate into five parts—one-fifth to each of her children, Harry K. Thaw, Josiah Copley Thaw, Mrs. Alice Thaw Whitney and Countess Margaret Carnegie de Perigny.

MEMORIAL TO SON

The remaining one-fifth is divided into three parts—one to her church, the Third Presbyterian, at Fifth and Negley avenues; one to the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Omaha, Nebraska; one to Washington College, Tennessee, as a memorial to her son, Edward.

Mrs. Thaw tells in her will that, since 1889, she was guided by a determination to administer her estate for the most part during her lifetime "and expected to leave as my residuary estate, little more than enough to provide for payment of my debts and such legacies . . . as are designated."

She was motivated by the fact that her five children had received substantial amounts from her husband, the will points out.

HARRY'S DEBTS CUT

The first item concerns Harry K. Thaw, for whom thousands of the Thaw fortune were spent during the Stanford White trial. In the item Mrs. Thaw cancels all but $50,000 of any debt owed her by Harry.

To Helen Keller, deaf, mute and blind genius whose pluck Mrs. Thaw admired, the aged philanthropist left $5,000. There are also bequests for Miss Keller's teacher and secretary.

Mme. Catherine Breskovsky, of Czecho-Slovakia, is given $2,500 for her charitable work among orphans of Russian soldiers.

A grandson, Lawrence Copley Thaw, who lost a gift from Mrs. Thaw when the courts ruled that he exerted undue influence to obtain it, receives $2,000.

SHUNS EXPLOITATION

In death Mrs. Thaw insists that her name not be exploited as the giver.

"No bequests shall be payable unless my executors shall have received from the institution to whom payable the promise not to associate, as a memorial, my name with the gift. This rule I have followed during all the years of my stewardship. . . ."

LOREE REVIVES PA. RAIL IDEA

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(INS.)—L. F. Loree, stormy petrel of the railroad world, plans to revive his project of constructing a 283-mile line across Pennsylvania, it was learned today.

Loree has informed the Interstate Commerce Commission that an engineering survey is under way for the location of a more favorable route for the proposed new trunk line between New York City and Chicago, to be known as the New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago Railroad.

The new route, Loree said, will cross the Allegheny Mountains at a grade lower than any other railroad location except the New York Central to Lake Ontario.

The Harriman interests in New York will finance the proposed road.

Baptists Row Over Speech By Bishop McConnell

DENVER, Col., June 13.—(AP.)—Selection of Francis John McConnell, Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, New York area, as guest speaker, today threatened to cause a breach in the Northern Baptist convention, which opens here tomorrow.

Originally chosen as the keynote speaker of the convention, Bishop McConnell was relegated to second place on the program yesterday after 19 ministers, most of them Coloradoans, had filed protests charging him with "modernism."

The announcement last night that the Rev. Avery Shaw, president of Dennison University, Grantville, O., would be the keynote speaker and that Bishop McConnell would follow him on the program, brought forth renewed criticism from the protesting ministers.

The Rev. Joshua Gravott, of Denver, leader of Baptist fundamentalists in Denver, declared that in his opinion, "Bishop McConnell would not be allowed to speak at all." Mr. Gravott added, however, that his followers would not object if Bishop McConnell appeared on the program as a representative of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

The bishop is president of the council.

Before going to New York more than a year ago, Bishop McConnell had been bishop of the Pittsburgh area of the Methodist Episcopal Church. While here he was considered one of the outstanding progressives of his denomination.

Seized Liquor 'Vanishes' In Warehouse Here

A large quantity of intoxicating liquor and other contraband seized in raids by prohibition agents, placed in the government warehouse on Allen avenue and subsequently condemned as forfeited to the government by the Federal Court and ordered destroyed, cannot be found for the purpose of carrying out the court destruction orders.

This was disclosed when Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington made returns to the court on the orders in which he stated the contraband could not be located.

The seizures involved were made two or more years ago and the destruction orders followed final disposition of cases in which they were held as evidence. Many of the court destruction orders called only for one or two bottles of liquor, which, it was explained, may have become lost among the vast quantity of contraband under seizure.

PITTSBURGH ORPHAN BOY FINALIST IN FLAG CONTEST

ONE OF EIGHT LEFT IN RUNNING

Thomas Derdock, 14, Has Chance to Win Voyage Around World if Victor

Special Telegram to the Sun-Telegraph.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Thomas Paul Derdock, 14, of St. Joseph's Orphanage, Troy Hill road, Pittsburgh, may make a tour of the world.

He is one of the eight finalists, four boys and four girls, from which two of each will be chosen to make the world tour. The eight were selected from the 36 regional winners in the nation-wide flag essay contest of the United States Flag Association, supported by the Hearst newspapers.

Thomas and Rosa E. Wilson, 15, of the National Home for Orphans of the Jr. O. U. A. M., Tiffin, O., were selected as the winners of the Pittsburgh district and have been touring American shrines for the past two weeks.

Thomas Derdock was placed in the orphanage by his father following the death of his mother. The father, a baker, of Hungarian birth, wanted to keep the family together, so he placed Thomas, two brothers and two sisters in the orphanage.

The two boys and two girls to make the world tour as the grand prize in the contest, will be chosen from the eight finalists at the Flag Day exercises at the Capitol tomorrow night.

PITTSBURGH BOY

Boys—Robert L. Sullivan, Fourth Region, Syracuse, N. Y.; Thomas Paul Derdock, Eighth Region, Pittsburgh; Merle M. Clarke, Ninth Region, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Ralph H. Age, Fourteenth Region, Lafayette, La.

Girls—Mary McGonigal, Third Region, Troy, N. Y.; Elanie E. Conway, Ninth Region, Detroit, Mich.; Alma Groves, Twelfth Region, Byronsville, Va., and Lupe Rivera, Fifteenth Region, Los Angeles, Calif.

MEET PRESIDENT

Before the selections were announced yesterday all the regional winners experienced one of the proudest days in their young lives when they were taken to the White House to meet President Hoover.

The President is honorary president general of the United States Flag Association. Since succeeding President Coolidge as honorary president general, President Hoover yesterday for the first time came into direct contact with an activity of the association.

Smiling and prompt, President Hoover came through the garden walk on the south lawn of the White House at exactly 12:30 p. m. The flag champions all were assembled with Col. James A. Moss, president of the Flag Association.

HOOVER PRAISES

President Hoover said:

"They are a cheerful lot of boys and girls."

Then, still smiling, he stood with the group about him while photographers and movie cameramen "shot" the scene.

Standing beside the President and holding the silk American flag of the association, was Regional Winner Thomas Paul Derdock, of Pittsburgh.

There was no prouder person present than Thomas Paul Derdock. He had a right to be. Only 14 years, and the "baby" of the 36 regional champions, Derdock is an orphan, and his championship essay was written in St. Joseph's orphan home, a parochial school in Pittsburgh.

If Derdock had known when he was standing beside the president that, a half an hour later, he would be told he also was selected as one of the eight finalists, he would have been still prouder.

FIRST LADY GREETING

After President Hoover left them, the regional winners were taken on a sightseeing trip around the White House lower rooms and the grounds, at the suggestion of Mrs. Hoover.

The first lady of the land could not herself meet the flag champions, but expressed her regrets through an emissary.

After the White House visit, the 36 boys and girls returned to their headquarters at the Mayflower hotel where the names of the 8 finalists were announced.

The ratings that the judges noted on the winning essays turned in by the four boys were as follows:

Robert Sullivan, 197.16; Merle M. Clarke and Thomas Paul Derdock, 195.66, and Ralph Agate, 194.66.

The girls had higher ratings and the four finalists among them were selected only after the most careful judgment. Their ratings were:

Mary McGonigal and Elanie Conway, 200, the highest possible rating; Alma Groves, 199.66, and Lupe Rivera, 199.

GO TO BALL GAME

When the finalists were announced, Floyd E. Williamson and William Seals, of the Hearst newspapers, with Col. Moss, deemed it best to take all the champions to the ball game, where the 30 who failed in their hard try for a place on the finalists' team might forget their disppointment.

Arriving at Griffith Stadium a half an hour before the game between the Senators and Indians started, the flag champions and their chaperones were greeted by Walter Johnson and "Goose" Goslin.

MEET "BIG TRAIN"

Robert Warren Wood, the special guide of the party, introduced the "Big Train" to each of the regional winners and then he autographed the diaries and notebooks of half a dozen. Nora Bell Johnson told Walter Johnson she was from Texas and the great pitcher told her some of his players were from Texas, too, and that it was a fine state.

PLANE AFTER CRASH INTO GOVERNOR'S HOME

in cabarets and hotels. She will go riding with them, noting the license number of their car to find whether they are giving their right names.

"About two months later she springs her blackmail demand, on the pretense she was attacked by the men and was to become a mother."

"KNOCKOUT DROPS"

A note found in Miss Brosko's possession was introduced. It was addressed to "Marie," presumably a girl friend, but was unsigned. Magistrate A. D. Brandon had her write the name "Marie." The handwriting was similar, he said. The note read:

"Marie—Get knockout drops and go to room 435 Chatham Hotel. I noticed you down in the lobby and I am alone myself. Go out with him and take him to the Club Alabam. Pick his pockets. In other words, get $30. Gee, I hope you don't think I am bold. Are you acquainted with any druggists here? The only druggist I know and the only one I go to for what I want is out of town. Now what I want is some knockout drops."

Miss Brosko, a tall blonde, denied blackmailing men and declared she was being "framed" by the police. She was held over by Brandon while detectives make a further investigation.

Swedish Airmen Ready for New Try

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, June 13.—(AP.)—Despite the efforts of aviation experts here to dissuade him from the attempt, Capt. Albin Ahrenberg, Swedish flier, said today he would try another takeoff from Reykjavik tomorrow, or earlier, if the weather in Greenland continued good.

Repairs to the plane were finished earlier than had been expected and Capt. Ahrenberg decided to make a trial flight this afternoon. The weather reports from Greenland were highly favorable.

DEBENTURE IS VOTED DOWN

cultural products and be redeemed by importers, who could use them in paying duties.

Neither President Hoover nor the House would agree to the idea and the House conferees stood fast against Senate pressure for it.

The motion on which the vote was taken read:

"Resolved that the conferees of the House on the disagreeing vote of the two houses on H. R. 1 (official designation of the farm bill) be instructed in conference to insist upon the striking out of section 10, the so-called debenture plan."

SUPPORTERS ACQUIESCENT

Although Haugen raised the farm question today the actual motion was offered by Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the Republican leader, who, in making it, said:

"This vote will bring an out-and-out conclusion as to whether the plan shall go in or stay out. I believe it is the surest and quickest way of getting farm relief enactment."

A few minutes after the House Clerk had announced the outcome of the ballot, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic Senate leader, indicated he would carry out his announced intention of abiding by the decision of the House. Robinson has been a leader of the move in the Senate in behalf of the debenture and has been insistent upon a direct vote by the House on the proposition.

It now is expected he will recede from his position and not continue to press for further Senate approval of the plan.

Ohio Valley Oil Co. Sells Its Holdings

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., June 13.—The Ohio Valley Oil Company, operating three service stations and a bulk storage plant here, today sold its holdings to the Refiners Oil Company, of Dayton, O. The deal involved $100,000. Frank G. Jones, owner of the business in the East Liverpool district for six years, will become asociated with a Cleveland law firm on August 1.

WIFE OF NEGRO CONGRESSMAN HOOVER GUEST

President's Wife Hostess to Mrs. De Priest at Informal Tea; Society Rocked

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Considerable of a social stir was created in the capital today when it leaked out that Mrs. Oscar Depriest, wife of the Negro Congressman from Chicago, had made her social bow to Washington—and from no less distinguished place than the White House itself.

Mrs. Depriest, it was learned, was entertained at tea at the mansion yesterday by Mrs. Hoover, along with the wives of about 60 other Congressmen.

So far as old Washingtonians could recall, this was the first time that a member of the Negro race had been entertained at the White House since Theodore Roosevelt rocked social Washington to its beam ends by having the late Booker T. Washington as a dinner guest.

REAL PRIVILEGE

Yesterday's tea was the first social function that the wife of the Negro Congressman has attended in the capital. Not even every wife of a white Congressman makes her social debut in Washington at the Executive Mansion.

It was one of those semi-formal affairs, such as Mrs. Hoover has been giving about once a week for the wives and daughters of members. There are some 600 women folk about Congress in all, and Mrs. Hoover has elected to entertain them in groups rather en masse.

Mrs. Depriest was reported "very much pleased" with the whole affair.

"Yes, my wife attended Mrs. Hoover's tea at the White House," said Rep. Depriest. "She enjoyed the experience and the social contacts very much."

"She was treated excellently," continued the Congressman. "There was no indication of any sort of a desire to discriminate in her case."

STRIKE ROWGUN JAILS YOUTH

Emphasizing his argument with a revolver cost Leslie Miller, 21, of Ellwood City, Pa., who said he came here to work as a strike-breaker, his liberty for 30 days.

Miller is alleged to have flashed a revolver on two strikers of the Allis Chalmers Company plant, Columbus avenue, when they talked to him on the porch of his rooming house in Western avenue, last night. They complained to police.

Today Lieut. John Lynch arrested Miller on his way to work. He had an automatic revolver in his sweater pocket, Lynch testified. Miller was unable to pay a $25 fine imposed by Magistrate E. M. Hough, and was sent to jail for 30 days.

Bride Begs Place With Spouse in Yellow Bird

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., June 13.—(INS.)—As the Paris-bound airplane, Yellow Bird, was being tuned up for the take-off here today, it was learned that Mrs. Jean Assolant, bride of less than a week, made unsuccessful efforts to get a place in the plane beside her husband.

She asked Armeno Lotti, Jr., sponsor of the flight, if she could go and tears were in her eyes as she made the request. Lotti told her that there was just room on the plane for the trio of French birdmen.

Mrs. Assolant was the former Miss Pauline Parker, of New York and Worcester, Mass.

turn after 20 minutes because of a leak in the main fuel tank.

The Yellow Bird today was using a mixture of benzol and gasoline. The benzol was put into the fuel to reduce the detonation and vibration which caused the leak on the first takeoff.

The mixture will be about 40 per cent benzol for the first two hours of flight, it then will be cut to 30 per cent and later to 20 per cent.

FLIER WED THREE DAYS

The crew of the Yellow Bird were: Armona Lotti, Jr., sponsor and co-pilot; Jean Assolant, pilot, and Rene Le Fevre, navigator.

Assolant, a 23-year-old pink-cheeked youth, was married three days ago to Miss Pauline Parker, of New York.

She accompanied him to the beach this morning and was very grave as she bade him goodbye and saw the plane roar down the hard packed sands of the beach.

The Frenchmen carried two automobile inner tubes for use as life preservers. Lotti ordered a good sized rubber boat discarded because of the added weight.

One half of the propeller was broken when the Green Flash nosed over. The left wing strut was broken and the landing gear smashed.

Yancey said the right wheel let go beneath them and the ship twisted to the right at that moment and centered into a nose-over.

GASOLINE SPILLS

The rear part of the fuselage near the tail assemblage was badly dented and the left wing torn. The cowling over the motor also was badly dented.

Gasoline leaked from the tanks and spread about the ground and the throng about the plane was pushed back for fear some one might toss a lighted cigaret or match on the sand and ignite the fuel.

The coast guard amphibian piloted by Lieut. L. M. Malka, which accompanied the Yellow Bird at the start, returned above the beach 40 minutes later.

The coast guardsman in charge of a portable short wave receiving set here said that Malka had reported the Yellow Bird at 100 miles out, 2,000 feet up and going strong.

HOPEFUL IN PARIS

PARIS, June 13.—(AP.)—"They will make it," shouted M. Lotti, Sr., in the telephone today when informed by the Associated Press that his son, Armand, and his companions, Assolant and Lefevre had hopped off this morning from Old Orchard with Paris is their goal.

"I will be there," M. Lotti said after being further informed that the Yellow Bird might reach Le Bourget between 2 and 3 o'clock Saturday morning.

"I hope they have fair weather," was his only additional comment.

Yellow Bird Has Stowaway, Reported

OLD ORCHARD, Me., June 13.—(INS.)—A boy stowaway was believed by the hundreds of spectators on the beach here to be aboard the Yellow Bird. This was unconfirmed in any message from the plane.

Spectators said they saw a boy about 12 climb up under the tail of the Yellow Bird while the trio of French fliers were having their photographs taken in front of the whirling propellers just before the takeoff.

Several citizens of Portland later said they recognized the boy as Allen Jordan, 18, of that city.

Aviation experts here doubted that there was a stowaway aboard as they said that an extra 150 pounds or so in the tail of the Yellow Bird would have made it impossible for her to have got away on her beautiful takeoff.

Green Flash Fliers To Try New Plane

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., June 13.—(INS.)—Undaunted by the series of mishaps which have prevented them from starting for Rome, Rogers Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey announced this afternoon that they were hurrying to New York by airplane to secure another monoplane similar to the disabled Green Flash, and that within 10 days they hope to take off from here for the Eternal City. They said that they hoped to have the plane here within a week.

Here's Route Taken By the Yellow Bird

OLD ORCHARD, Me., June 13.—(INS.)—According to radio reports, the Yellow Bird was following a route toward Cape Sable, Nova Scotia, for a swing east along the forty-first parallel to longitude 25, thence to Cape Ortega, Spain, and then overland to Le Bourget flying field in Paris.

JURY GIVEN 'TORCH' KILLING

State Demands Campbell Pay With Life for Slaying Of Greenville (Pa.) Woman

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 13.—(AP.)—The case of Henry Colin Campbell, 61-year-old civil engineer, psuedo physician and former convict, charged with the slaying of Mrs. Mildred Mowry, of Greenville, Pa., was given to the jury at noon today.

The court charged the jury after a plea of more than two hours by Prosecutor Abe J. David that the prisoner be sent to the electric chair.

Campbell, who confessed to the police he shot the woman and set her body afire, but testified that he remembered neither the deed nor the confession, went on trial Monday. The state's summation was completed this morning.

"FAIR TRIAL"

"The defendant has had a fair trial before a capable judge," the prosecutor said to the jury.

"I am going to ask you to lay aside your inner scruples against capital punishment, for if you send this man to prison for a few years you will advertise to the world that in New Jersey a man may shoot women and burn them, and get away with it."

As he summed up, David waved Campbell's official confession.

"In his confession he admits that he committed the murder," rasped David.

He read the confession as the spectators in the jammed courtroom hunched forward eagerly.

WIFE STAYS LOYAL

Mrs. Roselea Campbell, third wife of the prisoner, sobbed quietly.

The 61-year-old bluebeard, body-broken from use of drugs, trembled throughout the verbal crucifixion.

Mrs. Mowry's body was found enveloped in flames on Kenilworth boulevard at dawn February 23. A bullet fired into the top of her head ended her life.

The state contended Campbell, who suffered financial reverses in recent years, married her bigamously for her savings of $1,000 and took her life when she insisted on having a home with her husband.

VIRGINIA CONFORTI DOROTHY HARVESTY

Two Dormont High School girls who see nothing immodest in the bare-leg fad as it spreads through Pittsburgh and environs. Apparently Dormont school officials feel the same way about it in leaving the problem to parents.

Schools Leave Bare Leg Ban Up to Parents

Legs, bare or otherwise, are no problem in the high schools of the city so far as the Board of Education is concerned, but principals and teachers in some instances have made it their business to regulate the mode of dress of their pupils—much to the chagrin of milady who wants to be ultra modish.

A coat of tan, sometimes obtained out of a bottle, has taken the place of stockings, according to the decree of Dame Fashion. Short socks which barely cover the ankles, have been adopted among the girls of high school age and the fad in some sections has aroused the indignant protest of teachers. Officials in McKeesport ordered the girls home until they can "dress properly."

In most of the city and borough schools of the Pittsburgh district, however, officials and teachers will take no action. Where many think it shocking, they prefer to say nothing as long as parents have no objection.

"Personally, I don't think it is proper for girls to come to school bare-legged," said a principal of one of the nearby borough schools today, "but as long as the parents allow their children to dress that way, I don't feel as though I should voice any objection."

The girls themselves offer no apologies.

"It's cool," they say.

PROBER BACKS KILLING

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP.)—Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury, in a statement today said Customs Patrolman Cox, who shot Archibald Eugster at Detroit, did it "in the regular line of his duty," when rum ruunners tried to recapture a boat seized by customs officers.

KILLER ABSOLVED

DETROIT, June 13.—(INS).—Inspector Jonah Cox, of the Customs Border Force, today stood absolved by Prosecutor James E. Chenot of blame for the death of Archibald Eugster, 21, whom he shot.

Exoneration came after Frank Cooper, a companion of Eugster, admitted that he, Eugster, and two other youths, were running 35 cases of liquor across the Detroit Riven when Patrolman Cox challenged them and opened fire.

Previously Cooper had declared they were fishing when they stumbled into a customs guard ambush.

In a dying statement yesterday Eugster maintained he took no part in rumrunning and was digging for worms for bait when he was shot by Cox.

4 ODD DEATHS IN HER FAMILY, MOTHER HELD

Poison Found in Body of 15-Year-Old Boy; Other Victims to Be Exhumed

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., June 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Hattie Stone was arrested and held for investigation, following the report of Baltimore chemists that evidences of poison had been found in the body of her 15-year-old son George, who died June 4, the fourth victim of a strange cycle of deaths which has visited the Stone family during the last three years.

Authorities had previously announced that the bodies of George's elder brother, Elmer, their father, Edward, and their grandmother, Mrs. Emma Stone, all of whom died under circumstances similar to these which surrounded the death of George, would be exhumed and examined.

George Stone died after but a few hours' illness, after returning home from a moving picture show.

BRITISH TO RUSH RECOGNITION OF DAWES

Envoy to Be Taken to King At Once to Speed Meeting With Premier MacDonald

LONDON, June 13.—(AP.)—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, arriving at Southampton tomorrow aboard the Olympic, probably will be rushed to Windsor Castle within 24 hours to present his credentials to King George.

Immediate royal presentation would clear the way for him to entrain immediately for Lossiemouth, Scotland, where he could converse with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald over the week-end and perhaps have a game of golf with him.

It would be contrary to diplomatic etiquet for the new ambassador to have an interview with the Prime Minister before presenting his credentials to the King and any arrangement to see the Premier over the week-end would imply necessarily having visited Windsor first.

DEPENDS ON KIN 'S HEALTH

Much is understood to depend upon the condition of King George's health at the time, although if the improvement noted during the past few days continued little difficulty is expected on that score.

The entire arrangement, which is believed to be according to the ambassador's own connivance, would permit disposal of one or two important matters which hardly would wait until the Premier returns to London for Parliament's convening, June 25. Foremost among these is the matter of an invitation to visit America, which it is generally accepted Gen. Dawes will tender Mr. MacDonald.

Returning from Lossiemouth, Ambassador Dawes probably will address the dinner at the Pilgrim's Club Tuesday night. There is general expectation here of some important announcement from him on that occasion, or at least utterances which may be accepted as indicating the trend of future relations of the Hoover and MacDonald governments.

SEE NAVAL PACT AIM

General belief has developed here that aside from the routine of his ambassadorial commission the former vice president has been commissioned especially by President Hoover to smooth differences between the United States and Great Britain and to help forward a naval reduction agreement based primarily on British-American accord.

For this reason, and the imminence of the prospective visit of Mr. MacDonald to America, considerably more interest has been attached to the arrival of Mr. Dawes than is usually the case with even American ambassadors. It was poinfed out in some quarters, for instance, that such prompt submission of credentials to his majesty would be almost without precedent.

The Daily Herald, Labor organ, today said the enthusiasm with which the suggestion of a conference between the Premier and President Hoover had been greeted was a good augury for the mission's success.

PATROLMAN SAVES MAN FROM MOB

Theft Suspect Rescued By Officer as Captors Head For River With Victim

The arrival of Patrolman Frank Kedrowski probably saved Isaiah Clemons, 23, a Negro, from being hurled into the Monongahela River by a crowd of irate men who had seized him after he was alleged to have snatched the purse of Mrs. Mary Nicklaus, of 77 South Eleventh street, yesterday afternoon.

Clemons, who told police he had no home, was charged with being a suspicious person. He was held for court on a charge of highway robbery when arraigned before Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court today.

Mrs. Nicklaus and Mrs. Mathilda Golphin, of 1413 Bingham street, were returning to their homes after serving on jury duty in Criminal Court. They were walking in the Armstrong Tunnels when the Negro, police said, grabbed Mrs. Nicklaus' purse.

Her screams attracted Walter Meyers, truck driver and ex-pugilist, who overpowered the Negro. Other men attracted by the cries bound Clemons' feet and hands with rope found on the truck. They then placed him on the truck and headed for the Tenth Street Bridge, apparently aiming to throw their prisoner into the stream despite Meyers' protests.

Patrolman Kedrowski, passing, ordered the Negro's captors to stop and took Clemons away from them.

At the hearing Clemens said only last month he had been granted a parole from the Mansfield (O.) reformatory after serving five years and five months of a five to 10-year term for purse snatching in Dayton, O.

A hearing will be held next Monday on a rule granted against Carmen De Renzo, vice president of Local No. 306, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Drivers, an alleged ringleader in the strike of drivers and helpers of the Liberty Dairy Products Company, to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court for violating the injunction restraining interference with milk deliveries.

The petition, presented by Attorney L. E. Hickman in behalf of the Liberty company, alleged that De Renzo participated in an attack on Lee Collins, a driver for the company, while Collins was making deliveries on Hazel drive, Mt. Lebanon.

JUDGES CLEAR WILT RECORD

For the purpose of correcting Federal Court records on Fenton Wilt, former Pittsburgh attorney, Judges W. H. S. Thomson and F. P. Schoonmaker signed an order stating that Wilt had been purged of a contempt of court charge on or about April 25, 1924. He had been a defendant in the "flat" beer case.

The order sets forth that Wilt was purged of the charge and released from custody when he appeared before the court on or about the above date, although, it appears that no formal order had been made in the case. Failure of records in the case to show disposition of the charge against Wilt, discovered by examiners of the Department of Justice, led to the issuance of a bench warrant last week for his apprehension.

CLEVELAND, O., June 13.—(AP.)—Officials of the Brotherhood Investment Company, a $10,000,000 subsidiary of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said last night that there is no justification for the petition asking appointment of a receiver, which was filed in Federal Court here yesterday. The petition for a receiver was filed by Elmer and Bertha Smith, of Pittsburgh, owners of only $3,600 worth of stock in the company.

SHOTS FLY AS 2 FLEE POLICE

Pistols barked as two young men, accused of stealing a phonograph attachment from an East Ohio street furniture store, zig-zagged through a stream of shoppers today.

Behind, two pursuing policemen, shooting to frighten the fugitives into stopping, a crowd, shouting "murder" and "stop thief," aroused Ohio street shoppers and residents. After a chase of nine blocks the two boys were caught at Sandusky and East South Diamond street and jailed.

They gave their names as Gordon Pike, 19, of 5 Hahn street, and Andrew Wiljomer, 17, of 1025 Manhattan street. Both boys admitted having been arrested before, police said.

While Mrs. A. Olbum, proprietor of the Ohio Furniture Company, 537 East Ohio street, was talking to a customer about 11 a. m., it is said, the boys removed a reproducing attachment worth $8 from a phonograph and ran. Mrs. Olbum and the customer started the pursuit that ended in the boys' capture.

The attachment, police said, was found in Pike's possession.

Drys Using Guns Called Inhuman During War

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn., June 13. — (INS.) — Sawed-off shotguns or riot guns, with which border patrolmen are armed, are "left-overs" of the leaden bullet-firing trench guns from the World War, against use of which the German government protested as inhuman.

This was divulged today in the Virkula killing inquiry.

"We are not permitted by the government to speak, you know," said one customs officer when questioned, "but one gathers that the department distributed these weapons to the patrol because they were left-overs from the war and could be employed for their intimidating effect on liquor and other smugglers."

'GIRLS' FINED ON MAN'S CHARGE

A "girl friend" whom H. C. Mangus, of 1414 Reedsdale street, had treated to an evening of social entertainment at a roadhouse, left him without notice and took with her $75, his watch, a cigaret lighter and a camera valued at $125, Mangus testified in Morals Court where he appeared today against Mrs. Mary Danahay, 27, of 201 East Ohio street.

Mangus said he met Walter A. James, 24, of 1244 Woodlawn avenue, a cab driver, at the Fort Wayne Railroad Station Monday night. Coolidge Hates to Write; Hand Hurt, Fish 'Worth It'

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—Calvin Coolidge, in an interview published in the New York World today, discloses that writing as a career has no appeal for him.

Mr. Coolidge, who was in New York to attend a meeting of the board of directors of the New York Life Insurance Company, was asked whether he liked to write.

"I don't," he said. "Oh, I don't find it so difficult to sit and write about something that I know very well, such as my own life, but a career of writing"—and he left the sentence unfinished.

The former president also disclosed that all his writing is done in longhand.

He said he had heard of persons who couldn't write a word unless they sat at their typewriters.

"They always said that President Wilson had that habit," he added. "He would use just two or three fingers at his own machine. At least that was the story about Washington. I don't know whether it was true or not."

Mr. Coolidge carried his left hand bound in a black silk handkerchief as a result of a sprain he suffered while on a fishing trip last week.

"I was just trying to land a big trout," he said, "And in my excitement during the battle I slipped over a large rock and hurt my hand. The doctor says it's a bad sprain."

He was asked whether he got the fish.

"Oh, yes," he replied, "I landed him all right, and I guess he was worth it."

Society Leader, Singer In Smuggling Net

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—The customs department's tip-off system resulted yesterday in the seizure of undeclared articles from a society woman and an opera star, bringing the total of ocean travelers caught in the customs net in the past four days to nine.

Informed that Mrs. Charles Carey Rumsey, whose late husband was widely known as a sculptor and a polo player, and who is the daughter of the late Mrs. E. H. Harriman, was bringing in undeclared jewels, agents who met the liner France searched her baggage and subjected her to a long interrogation.

They held her 11 pieces of baggage for further examination and seized a pin, a pendant, a wrist watch and a bracelet, all jeweled, despite Mrs. Rumsey's assertion that she had had the bracelet and watch for 10 years and that the pin and the pendant were merely new settings for gems given her by her mother.

A jeweled purse Mrs. Rumsey said she gave to Lucretia Bori, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who had been traveling with her, was taken from the soprano.

Duty and fines aggregating $27,036.58 were paid yesterday by attorneys for four Chicago women who brought in 32 trunks of European apparel on the Leviathan four days ago. The women are Mrs. Anne H. Loeb, Mrs. Rose Loeb, Virginia Bohnen, and Anna M. Katholing, all of whom had made the trip abroad together.

Rudolph Lederer, Chicago broker, his wife and their 20-year-old daughter, Ruth, failed to declare merchandise concealed in the lining of coats they wore and others packed in their trunks. The goods were seized subject to payment of duty and fine of $5,286, which was paid. The Lederers live in Chicago.

All the seizures were made as the result of tips from abroad to the customs service that the travelers had bought valuable articles which it was believed they were planning to take into the country without duty payment.

Whalen said that Mayor George H. Lysle had given the reason after naming Charles Eckels, a member of the department for several years, Kreiling's successor. Eckels assumed his new post last night.

Malicious Propaganda

No amount of malicious propaganda, an insult to public intelligence and good faith, can sway public belief in this fact: Lucky Strike is a blend of choice tobaccos whose toasted flavor thrills the taste, whose toasting process eliminates impurities, and, as 20,679* physicians testify, makes Luckies less irritating. Toasting elevates Lucky Strike to a plane of quality which no other cigarette can approach. The constant care of experts assures the quality of Luckies. Its choice by millions proves its superiority and is the truthful answer to selfish claims.

POTTERY CITY AIDS TAX DRIVE

East Liverpool, America's noted pottery center, indorses the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph campaign for the revision downward of the Federal tax on earned incomes.

Leading public officials, business and professional men, bankers and manufacturers in affixing their signatures to petitions asking Congress for prompt action in lifting the burden of taxation from wage earners have put the weight of their influence behind the movement. Other towns in Columbiana County are showing equally strong interest in the reduction of the tax on earned incomes.

The circulation of Sun-Telegraph petitions was started in East Liverpool yesterday and the business people eagerly signed up. Plans were made for enrolling the workers also in the ranks of the nation-wide army of petitioners. It is declared that East Liverpool's prosperity depends on the buying power of the pottery workers and those in the trades dependent on the clay and pottery business, and a lessening of the tax burden, it is pointed out, will increase buying power.

Reports from other cities and towns in the district surrounding Pittsburgh show no abatement on interest in the income tax crusade.

In Charleroi, Bellevernon, Fayette City and Monessen petitions are being filled up rapidly. Public officials, bankers and business men in all these towns are assisting in the campaign, and the industries have been invited to join. In Springdale in the Allegheny Valley the signers included many workers for the Duquesne Light Company, who reside there. Today the campaign will be carried to Greensburg and Latrobe.

WOMAN, 5 MEN HELD BY DRYS

Two stills and large quantities of liquor were seized, and six persons, including a woman, were arrested by prohibition agents in seven raids yesterday. Three of the places visited were in Washington place.

The stores of Vincent Marino, alias James, and Mrs. Alma Whaby, at 65 and 60 Washington place, respectively, and the saloon of Tofel Woodka, 38, at 86 Washington place, were visited simultaneously and dry law violations were discovered, agents said. In a house in the rear of the Whaby store a 50-gallon still was seized, according to the agents. Mrs. Whaby was released on her own recognizance.

In the cellar of the home of Frank Colucci, 52, of 7315 Tioga street, the seizure of 416 gallons of wine and 855 pints of home brew was reported. He was arrested.

The owners of a 150-gallon still, seized in a building at 1726 McCullough street, were being sought by the federal raiders.

Whisky was confiscated in a store of 3621 Bates street, where William Thomas, 37, was arrested, and in a restaurant at 2734 Penn avenue, where Wojciech Sliwka, 35, was arrested, it was reported.

The plant is located across the street from the Muir bungalow, and was alleged to be a nuisance in emitting dirt, dust and smoke and in the noisy operation of its equipment.

Hatfield said nine agents named by him had taken sugar and other articles seized in raids on bootleg establishments.

The men indicted were Charles McVeigh, L. A. Werly J. J. Schreiber, Earl C. Parrish, Herman Kruithof and Andrew Holm. Holm had not been mentioned previously in connection with the accusations. They were all set at liberty on bail.

ARSON CASE ON TRIAL HERE

Samuel Banjamin, 40, was placed on trial in Criminal Court today, charged with arson.

The state alleges he hired James Lomeo, 35, of Fairview street, McKeesport, to burn a four-story brick building at Forty-second and Butler streets, owned and occupied by Banjamin, on which he carried $44,500 fire insurance.

There was an explosion in the building on the night of March 27. Lomeo's body was found near the cellar stairway. In his pocket, the state alleges, was a check for $500, payable to "cash" and signed by Benjamin.

It was indicated by Louis Little, attorney for Benjamin, that the defense would be that the explosion was a Blackhand outrage.

Battalion Fire Chief John B. Callagen, the first witness, testified he found 12 barrels of gasoline in the cellar, two cans that had contained blasting powder on the first floor, and a lighter such as is used by incendiaries.

Why is one over weight? There are four general causes—not being a physician, I won't go into them—but if you want to lose weight, the Pittsburgh Natatorium, on Duquesne Way, offers one of the most pleasant and easy methods of reducing I know. It is not only most effective, but it builds up vitality and general well-being. The principles are breaking down fatty tissues by rhythmic manipulation of the body culturer, and elimination of broken fat cells and poisons by the electric cabinet bath. So simple, isn't it? Of course, you have to do it under the supervision of a trained attendant, otherwise you might defeat your own purpose. If you enroll for several treatments, they are much less expensive than if you dropped in for an occasional one.

The Natatorium
Is open for women Tuesdays and Thursdays.

"Joy of Living"

You have a boy?—And he won't eat his Breakfast?

Well really, that's nothing to worry about. For here's your answer—and what a happy one it is:

Give him Heinz Rice Flakes for breakfast tomorrow!

Watch your young skeptic sidle away—then come close to peep again at those golden-brown flakes in his breakfast bowl. They look so good!

And, as the days go by, watch how clear-eyed and eager he becomes. Healthy; rosy; happy!

For, even though he doesn't suspect it, Heinz Rice Flakes are good for him. They contain the pure, natural cellulose, or refined roughage element of the rice. This gives the flakes the healthful properties of a gentle, natural laxative and is the result of a new, patented Heinz process of cereal-making.

It's good to be alive, isn't it? And what fun to be healthy!

POWER CHIEFS ON DEFENSIVE

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Public Utility leaders have launched a quiet defense of the buying of newspapers by power corporations, it was revealed today.

First evidence of this was obtained by the Federal Trade Commission from the files of the Indiana Public Utilities Association. In an "information letter" widely distributed to business and professional men of Indiana, this association represented that the newspaper buying had not been secret, and should not alarm the reading public.

These arguments were set forth in an editorial credited to the Indianapolis Commercial, a business newspaper, which the association repreduced with the following notation:

"Pursuing the belief that an informed public is a fair public, this information letter is being sent to several hundred Indiana business and professional men."

The editorial deprecated the "furore" caused by disclosure that the $600,000,000 International Paper and Power Company had bought a $10,000,000 interest in 13 newspapers, and asserted that this could not "pollute the press." It added:

"The fact that this big corporation, which manufactures both newsprint and electrical energy, announced the nature of its investments in newspaper properties should eliminate much of the alarm that might have been attached to this policy had International Paper and Power chosen to have kept its holdings a secret.

FACTS KEPT HIDDEN

No mention was made of the concealment of these investments for several months, the failure to disclose them in the company's report to its stockholders or in the sworn statements of ownership, filed by nearly all the newspapers.

Although the international company's president made the disclosure of its newspaper investments outside of Boston as a voluntary witness, it came after two officials of the company had been subopenaed for questioning about its newspaper interests.

Officials attached special interest to the Indiana distribution due to the general ignoring of the newspaper issue by power industry spokesmen in the face of nation-wide protests. Privately, many of the utility men have professed to be out of sympathy with the newspaper buying.

The Indiana association is closely related to the Indiana Committee on Public Utility Information and the Indiana Electric Association, a unit of the National Electric Light Association. It is maintained by about 100 power and other utilities, including the Interstate Public Service Co., the Northern Indiana Gas and Electric Co., and the Indianapolis Light and Heat Co.

Denial that other power corporations were to aid in the International company's financing of newspapers, or had been consulted about it, was made in a letter to the commission from Archibald R. Graustein, International company president.

STOCK RETAINED

None of the newspaper investments was sold to others, or rediscounted, except the $300,000 notes of the Ithaca Journal, Graustein said. These were sold to the Chase National Bank for $300,000 on March 30 last, he said.

Later the International Company repurchased them and transferred them to Frank E. Gannett, chain newspaper publisher, with securities of other Gannett papers the International Company then held.

"For them Mr. Gannett paid us the cost to us, plus dividends and accrued interest," Graustein's letter said.

Payments of about $46,000 made to university professors by the National Electric Light Association in the last eight years were listed in a report the commission had called for.

Dr. H. M. Diamond, of Lehigh, has been paid $5,000 and expenses to make a historical study dealing especially with "public operation and the broad question of the relations of government to business," according to the record.

EDUCATORS PAID

Prof. C. F. Scott, of Yale; Prof. A. E. Kennelly, of Massachusetts Tech, and Prof. Elihu Thompson were paid $5,000 each for one year as members of an advisory engineering board. Others named as having been paid for technical services were G. G. C. Dahl and Henry Shore, of Massachusetts Tech; Prof. Bennett, of the University of Wisconsin, and Prof. W. J. Williams, of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Nearly $13,000 was paid for hotel and traveling expenses of scores of educators, some of whom were named, who attended technical committee meetings or addressed conventions.

BRICK MAKERS ELECT BONITZ

Three hundred and fifty thousand dollars will be spent for national advertising this year by the National Paving Brick Manufacturers' Association, members of the organization have decided. The annual meeting of the organization, held yesterday in the William Penn Hotel, elected W. A. Bonitz, of Pittsburgh, as president.

Fifty members were in attendance at the election and luncheon that followed. Mr. Bonitz, president of the Crescent Brick Company, is the first Pittsburgher to head the association, which represents 80 per cent of the industry.

Other officers elected were John W. Hall, of Baltimore, vice president; W. H. Terwilliger, Galesburg, Ill., treasurer; George F. Schlesinger, formerly commissioner of highways in Ohio, chief engineer; and Q. J. Campbell, Washington, renamed secretary.

The members increased their assessments 50 per cent to carry out the advertising campaign, the greater portion of which will be devoted to newspaper space to emphasize the use of vitrified paving brick on road construction. Trade journals will be the other advertising medium.

PUT HER ON THE ROAD TO HEALTH

Sheridan Resident Says Ten Herbs Helped Stomach, Liver, Nerves and Bowels.

If you would be well—free from stomach, liver, kidney and bowel trouble, rheumatism, neuritis, nervousness and weak, rundown condition—profit by the experience of thousands of local men and women, and use Ten Herbs, the famous new medicine with the ten wonderful herbal ingredients. At least find out for yourself about Ten Herbs by calling at May's Main Store, Fifth and Liberty, Pittsburgh, where this successful compound is being introduced.

"I want to tell the public how Ten Herbs put me on the road to good health," said Mrs. Annie Williams, 1116 Southland St., Sheridan, Pa. (near Pittsburgh). "For several years I had suffered greatly with my stomach. Food would lie in my stomach and sour and ferment. Gas would form, and at times it crowded around my heart and made it palpitate. For months I had not been able to eat many kinds of food. Constipation troubled me. My liver was not working right. I would get so dizzy that I would almost fall, and my complexion was extremely sallow. I was terribly drowsy during the day, but when night came my nerves kept me from getting proper rest. I had neuritis in my knees, which would become so stiff and painful that I would be in agony.

"Since taking Ten Herbs my appetite is good and I am free of distress after eating—no more painful gas. My bowels are regular. My liver is working better, and biliousness and dizzy spells are gone. My nerves are more quiet, and I get restful sleep at night. My complexion has become so clear that friends remark about the change in my appearance. Neuritis is gone—the stiffness and pains gradually left my knees. I really feel better in every way, and gladly give this statement for publication."

Ten Herbs is being introduced at May's Main Store, Fifth and Liberty, Pittsburgh, and is sold at all May's Drug Stores.

CHARTER GIVES FUND CONTROL

By JOSEPH T. MILLER,
Chairman Metropolitan Plan Commission.

In view of the interest in the forthcoming referendum election for the approval of the Pittsburgh metropolitan charter, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will publish daily brief statements of the commission. In this series the provisions of the charter will be set forth in plain language shorn of its legal verbiage.

The charter goes further than merely giving the Controller the authority to watch over the financial transactions of the Consolidated City.

It gives him, in cases of investigation into the expenditure of public funds, the power to summon witnesses, to administer oaths and to order the production of relevant books and papers.

If his authority is not obeyed, or if anyone refuses to answer a proper question addressed by him, he may take the matter to the court of Common Pleas for a mandamus.

Furthermore, he shall have the power to prescribe the nature and forms of all accounts to be kept by all officers and employes of the Consolidated City; also the times when and the manner in which all officers and employes receiving money for the use of the Consolidated City shall pay the same into the treasury.

(To Be Continued.)

Voters are invited to propound any proper question regarding the charter and these will be answered promptly if addressed to Chairman Joseph T. Miller, 513 Smithfield street, Pittsburgh, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope. Some answers to inquiries of pertinent interest will be published in the Sun-Telegraph.

Exoneration of Tax Delayed for Hearing

Pending a hearing to objectors, Council has deferred action on a request that the city exonerate taxes on the Dallett property in Carson street, between Thirtieth and Thirty-first streets, in consideration for use of the land as a public playground. The request was made by Mrs. Agnes Cieslewicz, of 82 South Twelfth street, representing the South Side Civic Club.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 13.—The McClintic-Marshall Company, Pittsburgh, has been awarded the contract for steel work on the new pipe mill departments to be added by the Republic Iron and Steel Company, President E. The Republic company is to manufacture steel pipe by the electrical welding process.

Directors of the General Fireproofing Company will meet next Monday for second-quarter dividend action. President W. H. Foster advises that gross business is running considerably ahead of last year.

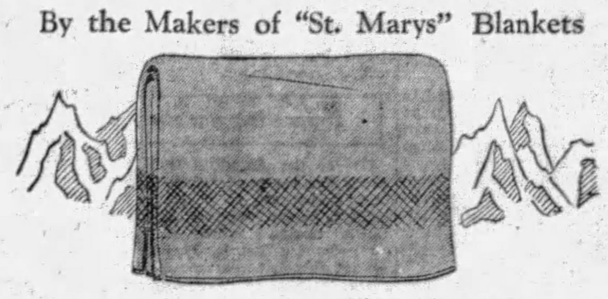
A Unique Offering That Cannot Be Repeated
50 Fine Blankets of South American Alpaca
(With a Mixture of Canadian Wool)
By the Makers of "St. Marys" Blankets



Rare in Quality....Rare in Value

Size 66x84-In. $10. Each Weighs 5 Pounds

The makers of the famous "St. Mary's" blankets, in their search to produce a blanket of supreme softness and warmth, sought the aid of the Alpaca...that unusual South American animal, which inhabits the heights of the Andes...noted for its wonderfully fine soft hair.

Because of its exquisite fineness it could not be spun without a stronger supporting fibre. For this the best of Canadian wool was added just in sufficient quantity to give it body, durability, and weight. The result was a blanket of remarkable softness and unusual warmth, but the cost of production was prohibitive.

Only 50 pairs were produced and McCreery's secured them at a special concession. Tomorrow you can buy them at $10 each. All are in a rich brown shade with navy blue inset border at both ends. No more available at any price. Need we say more?

Children Get Little

Article XI—Inasmuch as my five children received under their father's will the same amount each that the older children received, I determined in 1889 to administer my own estate during my lifetime, so far as practicable, and pursuant to such determination have steadily given to such benevolent work as Providence has, from time to time, indicated. Knowing the minds of my children as to this determination, I designate no specific sum to any one of them, and expect to leave as my residuary estate, little more than enough to provide for payment of my debts and such legacies, bequests and devises as are designated in this my last will and testament. If, for any reason, my estate should be insufficient to pay all the foregoing legacies and bequests in full, they shall be reduced pro rata. Should, however, my estate be more than sufficient for the above mentioned purposes, the residue shall be distributed as provided in Article XIV hereof.

Article XII—It is my will and intention that should any of my children desire to purchase any of my paintings or other works of art, or any other article or articles of any kind owned by me at the time of my death, they shall be permitted so to do. In order to carry out the provisions of this article, I direct my executors, before selling or otherwise disposing of any of my personal property, to give each of my children reasonable opportunity to designate such article or articles as he or she may desire to purchase, and upon such designation, to have the reasonable value of such article or articles fairly appdaised, and to sell and deliver such article or articles to the child so designating it, at the appraised value. Should two or more of my children designate the same article, it shall be sold to such one of them as shall pay the highest price above the appraised value thereof.

To Sell Real Estate

Article XIII—My executors are fully authorized to make public or private sale of any real estate forming part of my estate and not specifically devised, at such time or times and at such prices and terms as to them shall seem most advantageous, and to grant and convey the same unto the purchaser or purchasers thereof, without liability on the part of such purchaser or purchasers to see to the application of the purchase money.

Article XIV—All the rest, residue and remainder of my estate, of every kind and wheresoever situate, I give, devise and bequeath as follows:

Four-fifths (4-5ths) thereof to my children, Henry Kendall, Josiah, Margaret and Alice, share and share alike, absolutely and forever.

The remaining one-fifth (1-5th) thereof shall be divided into three (3) equal parts or shares.

One of said three equal parts or shares I give, devise and bequeath to the trustees of the Third Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, to be held as an endowment fund, the income of which shall be applied toward the perpetual maintenance and use of the property owned and used for religious purposes by said Third Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, Pa.

One of said three equal parts or shares I give, devise and bequeath to the trustees of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of, or near, Omaha, Nebraska, for use in the purchase and maintenance of property for said seminary.

Memorial to Son

As a memorial to my son Edward, I give, devise and bequeath the remaining one of said three equal parts or shares to the trustees of Washington College, Tennessee, for use in maintaining said college, the oldest school west of the Allegheny Mountains and in which I have been interested for many years.

Article XV—The powers and duties by this will vested in or imposed upon the executors hereinafter named, shall likewise be vested in and imposed upon their survivors or survivor, successors or successor.

FRANCE READY TO QUIT RHINE

PARIS, June 12.—(AP.)—The French Parliament and public opinion are gradually becoming reconciled to the idea that the Rhineland must be evacuated in the near future, perhaps before the end of the year. Successful conclusion of the reparations conference and acceptance of the Young plan by all concerned have made a deep impression here.

French observers have watched with the greatest interest the conversations between Foreign Minister Briand, of France, and Foreign Minister Stresemann, of Germany, at the Madrid session of the Council of the League of Nations.

Most of the French deputies are convinced that France in equity must enter negotiations with Germany and Great Britain, now that the reparations question has been definitely settled, to discuss evacuation of the Rhineland. An ultra-conservative group, headed by former Minister of Pensions Louis Marin, is the only part of the chamber openly opposing early evacuation.

France will insist upon the creation of a supervisory organization in the Rhineland demilitarized territory when evacuated by the allied troops, which now police it. To this Germany also has agreed through the fixation of the duration and the character of such an organization.

In any case there appears to be a majority in the French Parliament for evacuation before January 1, 1930.

Convicted in Slaying Of Friend at Party

SWEDISH PLANE DELAYS HOP

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, June 13.—(INS.)—Unfavorable weather reports today forced indefinite postponement of the hopoff of the Swedish monoplane Sverige for Ivigtut, Greenland, on the third leg of its attempted trans-Atlantic flight from Stockholm to New York.

Capt. Albin Ahrenberg, leader of the attempt, made three efforts at a get-away yesterday, but each time was forced back by mishaps. Mechanics worked until a late hour last night getting the machine into shape, and all is now ready for an immediate start as soon as the weather clears.

WOMEN BAN FAT IN GERMANY

BERLIN, June 13.—(INS.)—The desire of German women to equal their American sisters in slenderness is endangering the German meat industry, according to complaints from the German Butchers' Association.

A veritable "flight from fat" has set in. Fat pigs are a drug on the market. Customers demand that every ounce of fat be trimmed from the meat they buy.

"All this is the result of the women's cry for slenderness," said President Hefter, of the German Butchers' Association.

He contrasted the present situation with that immediately after the war when there was a rush for fat to make up for its scarcity during the "hunger blockade."

FIGHT TARIFF, WOMEN URGED

Mrs. Mary T. Norton, a representative in Congress from New Jersey, has had one vote on the Hawley tariff bill. She voted against it, but she was with the minority. Now she is advising the women of the nation to cast another vote through their senators.

This is what she says to women about the proposed tariff:

"When women analyze this bill and find an increased tariff on fresh beef, fresh lamb, fresh milk, sugar, hides, clothing, building material and other articles too numerous to mention, it will not be difficult to make them understand that the Republican party is not concerned with the welfare of the workingmen and women of the country."

Representative La Guardia from New York, is a Republican. He has no defense to offer on the Hawley tariff bill. He says:

"Unless very radical changes are made in many of the schedules the cost of living, from the early morning hour when the consumer drops his lump of sugar in his coffee until he has accounted for everything that he eats and wears during the day, will so materially increase as to make it unbearable for not only the wage earner but all people residing in big cities."

The housewives are the guardians of the nation's dinner table. They have arisen to say that it must not be swept clean by a predatory tariff bill.

The woman's ballot is here. The coupon needs only to be clipped, filled out and mailed to your senator at Washington. Vote today.

BIG FARM GIVEN SETTLEMENT

A 126-acre farm on Conoquenessing Creek, near Ellwood City, has been given to the Brashear Settlement by Joseph C. Trees, of the Benedum Trees Oil Company, as a memorial to his late wife, Claudine Virginia Trees. The farm will be used to give two weeks of outdoor life to families in the district extending from Second street to Arlington avenue, on the South Side.

Last year it was rented by the settlement and groups of 50 children were taken there for two-week periods.

With the acquisition of the farm the settlement has made a number of improvements. The Men's Club has remodeled the old farm house, which has not been in use for 10 years. PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Attendants Named for Wedding

AS the days go by and we "check off" these June weddings, one by one, we keep on hearing about others, and the last two weeks of the month are getting as crowded as the present. Certainly the fates seem to be with these June brides, too. The gentleman who stays up on the roof of the Oliver Building and controls the sun and the wind, has been able to provide perfect weather for all of these ceremonies.

Would you like to know who the attendants are going to be at another of the several weddings set for Saturday, June 22? I am referring to the marriage of Ivy Burchfield Friesell, daughter of the William Henrici Friesells, of Elgin avenue, and Dr. George Logan Kesel, son of Mrs. George W. Kesel, of Stratford avenue, which will be solemnized at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon in the Friesell home. The Rev. Dr. A. R. Robinson, pastor of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, will perform the ceremony.

The bride's two sisters are going to be her only attendants, Mrs. Dandridge S. Robertson as matron of honor and Alberta Pressley Friesell, maid of honor. Dr. Kesel is having his brother, Paul L. Kesel, for his best man and the ushers will include William H. Friesell, the bride's brother, and J. Scott Eiler, of this city.

PLANS for October debut parties are beginning to reach our ears—I wonder if there will be as many this year as there were last. At any rate, Susan O'Neill is going to come out that month. Her two grandmothers, Mrs. George Latimer Potter, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Edward O'Neill, of "Wisteria," Sewickley, are going to give a tea on Thursday, October 24, at "Wisteria," to introduce Susan, who is, you know, the daughter of the Chauncey O'Neills, of Sewickley.

AND our "little season" parties are going over into July. Very early in the month, July 2, to be exact, the George Hubbard Clapps, of Edgsworth, are going to give a dance in the Allegheny Country Club for their granddaughter, Georgianna Collins, daughter of the junior William Welsh Collins, of Sewickley. Members of the younger school set will be the guests.

YESTERDAY the Junior League had its annual meeting and luncheon in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, and the new officers were elected. Priscilla Hall was chosen as president, and as vice presidents, Frances Hyde and Helen Leovy. Forsyth Patterson, who is field secretary of the National Association of Junior Leagues, talked about the work in the other leagues, and Elizabeth Arbuthnot explained the local league's plans for a nutrition and habit-forming clinic, which will be opened in September at the Children's Hospital.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Louis Voigt, wore French blue chiffon with a horsehair braid hat to match, while the bridesmaids, Mrs. John D. Friday, of this city, and Mrs. Andrew Hess, of Wheeling, appeared in rosebud pink chiffon with French blue hats. Roger Whittlesey, of New York, was best man.

Carrick Mothers' Club Gives Lunch

REFERRING to women's clubs as "a great army of service," Mrs. John M. Phillips, founder and honorary president of the Carrick Mothers' Club, stressed beauty of life through unselfish service in the earnest little talk she gave at the club's annual luncheon yesterday in the South Hills Country Club. About 125 members gathered for the affair which officially closes the season for the Mothers. Mrs. Ellsworth C. Trott, program chairman, introduced the toastmistress, Mrs. Fred W. Jones, whose toasts in original verse added much to the program. Mrs. John Robson, the retiring president and her successor, Mrs. Robert A. Schneider, both responded to toasts, and music was furnished by the club choral under the direction of Mrs. Howard H. Parker. Several choral members gave duets, solos and trios, among them Mr. Parker, Mrs. Louis Stevens, Mrs. M. K. Ulrich, Mrs. Albert W. Smith, Mrs. William Colligan, Mrs. H. H. Hanna and Mrs. A. H. Snitzer. Mrs. Harold C. Seaman contributed two readings, and Miss Beatrice Stevens, who also accompanied the singers, offered piano solos. The invocation was by Mrs. H. M. Meyer.

—now he knows the easy way to keep perspiration odorless

IT was hot. And Dan had been rushing all day. But that's no excuse for "B. O."

In the middle of dictation, his stenographer interrupted—to open the window.

It annoyed Dan then. But later he suspected her reason. Today Dan's a business success. A social favorite. He knows now that perspiration need never offend.

Market Value of Hair

A GOOD head of hair is worth at least $5,000 to a woman, according to a noted French actress, who lost all of hers in an auto accident in Paris. It took three months for the hair to return and she was kept idle that long.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Vaccination and Its Effectiveness

YOU may have noticed that because of the presence of smallpox in England, the French government would not permit tourists from that country to enter France without their having been vaccinated within a reasonable time. As I view it, this is as it should be.

DR. COPELAND

We talk a lot about the "Golden Rule." As it is applied it relates largely to moral and social contacts. Why should we not think of the "Golden Rule" in connection with our physical contacts?

I have no fault to find with our friends who oppose vaccination and other similar methods intended to prevent disease. I would not say a word today if the position they assume related only to their own individual welfare.

To my mind the right of self-determination is fundamental. We should never seek to trample upon this right unless there is abundant and provable reason. I might look in sorrow upon a person taking a course which to my mind is a mistaken one. I might be so bold as to remonstrate with him. But when it comes to a matter related to the public health and the welfare of many individuals, there is no doubt in my mand about the duty of government.

I receive an occasional letter from some honest and perfectly conscientious person, remonstrating with me because I advocate such preventive measures as vaccination and inoculation. They ask for conclusive proof that such preventive measures are actually useful.

This is not the time to discuss in detail that particular criticism. I shall pass it by for the moment with the arbitrary statement that in my opinion there is no more conclusive fact in medicine than the effective prevention of smallpox by vaccination and of diphtheria by inoculation. Holding this view, I feel that the French government is to be commended for its watchful care of the health and lives of its citizens.

The person who habitually dwells in one limited region, a region where no smallpox is present at the time, may be excused if he neglects to be vaccinated. He is in no immediate danger himself and the community will not suffer by reason of his neglect.

It is quite another thing with the individual who converts himself into what we may call a "public conveyance." If he is traveling through infected districts, he may, even unknowingly, pick up germs of smallpox. He conveys them to another community or another country and makes himself a menace to every one with whom he comes in contact.

The safe thing for you and for society is to practice the "Golden Rule" and be vaccinated.

A JUNE ROMANCE

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

WHAT love-filled maiden does not know the legend of the rose? Who, that has ever sighed for romance, and having achieved it soared among the clouds, who has not heard the story of the unfolding of the rosebuds in June?

It is a tale of youth's enchantment, of a dormant love that needed but a gentle reminder of Spring's end to flower into fulfillment. It is a tale of two roses, growing side by side, their heads turned from each other in arch-shyness. For months their fragrance intermingled and they longed to lift up their heads in mutual greeting. But rosebuds, like young lovers, are not bold. They waited for the intervention of Fate.

And Fate, in the person of a disguised Cupid, came. On a lanquid June morning a tiny bee dropped a single speck of pollen on the eyelids—that is, petals—of the first rosebud. Up came its head. And in the language of the flowers it sang a song of love's desire to the other rosebud.

That rest is known. Love's awakening, that glamorous first moment of mutual declaration, has been sung by poets and rhymsters down through the ages. Like the unfolding of June rosebuds, it makes fragrant the humid air and lends an aura of loveliness to a mundane atmosphere.

The story of the June roses is an old one. But it is the sweetest story of all time.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

No Hurry

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. When a boy takes a girl to a restaurant and he finishes what he has ordered and the girl hasn't, should she finish her share?

2. How should one ask to be excused to go to the dressing room to apply powder when leaving a theater? MISS C.

YES, if she wishes. Unless they are rushing to go on to some other entertainment, there should be no sense to hurry about this dining.

2. It is easy to say, as you reach the lobby, "I'll meet you here in a few minutes."

Your Visiting Card

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. What is the correct form to use for a young lady's visting card? Would Miss Phyllis E. Glaser be good form?

2. Is it proper to put either the address or the telephone number on such a card? P. E. G.

IT is not good form on a visiting card to use an abbreviation that is not necessary. So I recommend that you either omit the E., or write out the name for which it stands. And use the miss even if you are a very young lady. It is poor form to leave off the title from such a formal item as a visiting card.

2. It is excellent form to have the address engraved on one's visiting card; in the lower right corner, and in the same type as that used in the name, but smaller.

It is not in good form to have your telephone number engraved on your visiting card.

'You Are Welcome'

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Which is proper in acknowledging thanks, to nod or say, "welcome"? I have noticed that people do both. But the other day I felt embarrassed when I paid a bill and the clerk thanked me for it. I nodded in acknowledgment, but he kept saying, "Thank you," until I said "welcome." Did I do right?

WONDERING.

OFTEN a nod is enough to acknowledge such a thank you, but I must hasten to add that it depends on the kind of a nod. Some nods are charmingly gracious and friendly and some are of the temperature of that much-talked-of North Pole! Some nods mean, "You are welcome, very welcome," and some mean haste and a certain angular politeness.

There is no reason why you should not say, "You are welcome" (not "welcome," as you wrote it) when a clerk thanks you for your remittance. It is a casual courtesy, very common and very delightful, I think, in business. Take the time to acknowledge the thanks in the most gracious way. And this instance is an example of circumstance when courtesy means kindness—as it apparently did to this polite clerk.

Katie Confesses She Played Detective to Learn Mary's Secret

KATIE was confessing only what I had strongly suspected when she admitted that she had told me a falsehood. Upon the day of her request for an early luncheon, she had not gone to the funeral invented when her suitcase fell open, displaying her fantastic mourning garb. But I let no hint of that suspicion appear in the interested face I turned toward her.

"I make oop my mind to trail Mary," she went on, "ven I hear her telephone dot Meester Jackson to take her Easthampton match embroidery silk. She no embroider tings—her needle roosting in tree-four pieces already vunce."

She spoke only the truth. I knew that Dicky's young niece had not touched a piece of embroidery for months.

"Sumtings go tinkle inside me," Katie grew eloquent, "und I say, 'Katie, now your time find out sometings.' So I ask you haf looncheon early und I fix my disguise in suitcase all ready."

I had hard work to keep from laughing despite my suspense as I remembered the fantastic mourning "disguise" which had tumbled out of Katie's suitcase upon that memorable afternoon. But I had no time for mirth, inward or outward. My little maid's words were fairly tumbling out, so absorbed was she in her story.

"I no believe Mary going by Easthampton," she said, "any more dan I go by Quogue, as I tell you. But I tink pretty sure maybe I find her at Southampton, vere dot 'Janet Rawdon' lives. So I go dere straight from farm. I stop in woods on vay und put dot mourning dress on ofer me oder tings, und put on my hat und veil. Den I go valking around Southampton, vatching for dot Mary.

"Pretty soon I see dem drive oop und I get close as I dare. I see dey near postoffice, so I go in dere, pretend to be making oudt money order blank. Den Mary she coom in, mit letters in her hand, und she drop dem in letter slot, den she stand still, und she look at me und she look all round postoffice, und she took outside, und she see dot Meester Jackson standing by window, looking in and laughing at her. I think he laughing at me, I look so qveer.

"Den dot Mary, she shroog her shoulders, so,"—Katie gave a realistic imitation of Mary's gesture—"und she go oudt of postoffice, und she climb in dot Meester Jackson's car, und she say, 'Let's go, George,' und dey drive avay und I coom home, for I know she not coom back because dot Meester Jackson he looking in dot vindow.

"You know vot I tink dot day?" Katie invested her question with much dramatic intensity. "I tink Mary she expect see dot Janet Rawdon in postoffice und snatch a vord mit her, ef dot Meester Jackson stay in car. But ven he look in vindow he no dare stay. I look around, try see voman look like she call herself Janet Rawdon, but I see nobody.

"I coom home, und I try tell you somethings, but you terrible high hat, und I feel bad und my goat he get untied, und I shut my mouth tight und I say nodings. I sorry now I act so by you, Missis Graham."

My little maid's tone was properly remorseful, but I did not believe very strongly in her contrition. She was enjoying herself too hugely for sorrow. But I gave her prompt absolution.

"That is all right, Katie," I said. "I haven't thought about it. Go on with your story. I am sure you have something more to tell me."

"You bet your boots, I got sometings more," she exulted. "Vot you tink ven I tell you I saw dot 'Janet Rawdon' today?"

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, June 14.

ACCORDING to the lunar aspects for this day a generally adverse and futile state of affairs may be expected. Employment is attended by hazards and there are signs of personal inharmonies and friction. While new undertakings may engage the attention, with some optimistic or encouraging outlooks, yet there is likelihood of tenacious obstacles, with possible postponements and disappointments.

Those whose birthday it is are coming to a year of conflicting auguries. Although there are prospects of new undertakings, with some promise of success, yet there are also presages of obstruction, delays and disappointments. The employment is also in jeopardy, and there are likely to be domestic, social and personal discords and friction, although they may be of a not very serious nature.

A child born on this day may have many excellent qualities and equipments for success and position in life, but these may have to be attained by hard labor and surmounting many difficulties.

We shape ourselves the joy or fear of which the future life is made.—Anon.

Eve Is Frightened When She Sees Old Crone Snooping in Bushes

CHAPTER XXIX.

RUTH met Don Carlos in the upper hall as he was going to his room to dress for dinner.

"Oh, Don Carlos, may I speak to you for a moment?"

"Certainly, Ruth."

"Oh, Don Carlos! I've got something terrible to tell you. Your—Mrs.—"

Don Carlos, looking into her face, knew what Ruth wanted to tell him.

"I know, dear. I've already met Mrs. Whiting out on the lanai."

"Oh!" There was immense relief in Ruth's voice. "Then you know it was all a mistake; that Eleanor didn't know Col. Drinkwater was bringing her as his partner?"

"I didn't know how it happened but it doesn't matter much. I'll see you and Al at dinner."

Ruth was relieved and said she was going to dress for dinner.

He waited for her to pass him, then disappeared into his room. Standing before the open window, he smoked cigaret after cigaret, trying to calm the tumult in his soul. The first gong for dinner found him unprepared; but it recalled him to his present surroundings.

Hurriedly he slipped into his dinner clothes and joined the guests on the lanai.

Cocktails were passed, the famous Honolulu cocktail composed of fruit juices and "oke," the native gin. Under its exhilarating influence, the party waxed merry. The stiffness which at first had threatened to envelope all of them because of the unexpected situation wore off.

Eleanor Howells sighed in relief. On the surface everything was as calm as night itself.

Seated at the head of the table, Eleanor thought how very charming her guests looked. Col. Drinkwater was proposing toasts to the five prettiest women in the islands. Trust the colonel to carry off any situation.

Eleanor had to admit that the two women who were rivals for the affections of Don Carlos were the two prettiest women she ever had seen. Eve was entrancing in the point d'esprit gown of jade over gold cloth, with a corsage of orchids and bandeau of green gold in her hair, tiny jade slippers on her feet. The men caught their breath every time they looked at her.

But to the older woman's experienced eyes, she saw the hard glitter in the girl's eyes—the tiny lines which were beginning to form about the violet eyes. This life down in the islands would capture her youth.

Eve's drinks were making her the merriest of the crowd. Col. Drinkwater and she kept some of the guests in gales of laughter. She was flirting outrageously with Capt. McNulty. The colonel affected intense jealousy, which made Mrs. McNulty laugh heartily.

Eleanor glanced at Eugenie, who was seated at Paul's left. She had such tremendous poise, as she sat there in a simple white gown of heavy, satin crepe, which outlined her fine figure.

A remarkable woman, Eleanor thought, as she looked at her guest conversing quietly with Paul.

After dinner, bridge was played on the lanai. Jimmy Adams and his mother came over to make up the third table. The balance of the evening passed quietly, save for the ribald laughter from Eve's table.

The luau was on in full swing. It was at the Witch's Cabin, beautiful corner of Maui, high above Iao Valley, set like a jewel in the mountains, with water falls tumbling from the green hills on every side. It had taken its name from an old Hawaiian woman who lived in a grass hut near that region, and who, rumor said, was gifted with second sight. Ruth had chosen the spot. Although she had lived in the islands all her life, these old customs had lost none of their fascination for her. She had had Eugenie help her plan it, so as to have all the old dishes.

Al still was angry with her; had not forgiven her for being in Jimmie's arms the first day of the house party. He had intentionally won from her at bridge the night before. Well, she would show him! She wasn't going to wear her heart on her sleeve for any man!

"This poi," Eve was saying, "Ugh! I can't see why people like it. It's so messy." She was trying to eat it in the Hawaiian fashion, with the second and third finger interlocked.

"Here!" offered the colonel. "I'll show you how to eat it, put it in the poi bowl and give it a flip in the proper direction."

He demonstrated the method to perfection. Eve tried it, but without success. She looked about for spoons, but could find none.

"Use your fingers," insisted the colonel. "The time will come when you'll gorge yourself."

"Never!" Eve retorted. "Besides, they tell me it's too fattening."

"You don't have that to worry about," replied Mrs. McNulty. "I never saw anyone with a cuter figure than yours."

"Second the motion," returned the captain.

"Say," called his wife across the table to him. "What's that awful-looking stuff?" asked Eve, pointing.

"Squid. Have some? It's rich and gooey."

"I wouldn't eat it for a million dollars. Ugh! Take it away!" Eve made a grimace of disgust.

"I'd like to tempt you with that million," teased the colonel. "Here's a cup; don't ask what is in it. Drink it down, and in just a minute you'll be gayer than the rest." He placed a mug in Eve's hands.

"I ate too much," thought Eleanor to herself, getting sleepy. She yawned sleepily. Everyone seemed to be having a good time. True, Eve and the colonel were getting tipsy, but then—

The bushes back of them parted. The moon, gleaming about the flaming orange. Torches which had lit the table brightly showed the bent figure of a withered old crone.

It was Kealohilani, the old witch. She had heard the picknickers, for she often stumbled forth into the night.

Eve, seeing her at that moment, though the "oke" was taking effect. She let out an unearthly yell.

PETTING PATTY

Rather Puzzling

Linda's Boy Friend

By H. LOUIS REYBOLD

Daily Short Story

LINDA'S mother let fall in her lap the delicate, shimmering folds of silk which were fast becoming under her skillful fingers a lovely dance frock. Needle poised in mid-air, she sat staring with faded gray eyes that saw nothing of her immediate surroundings.

Ah, if only she were making her daughter ready for one of the old high school parties with Jimmy Brewster as escort!

With a sigh she resumed her careful shirring, but her thoughts still shuttled back and forth between past and present.

A week ago Linda, who now was a clever little typist in the city, had written home that one of the men in the office—she hadn't thought it necessary to mention his name—had invited her to a very gay dance at the Birch Gables Country Club which was not very far from Linda's home.

"Mother dear,

"One of the men here—he's really quite a 'find'—has invited me to a regular party. I've got to have a new and very doggy dress. Could you possibly make me one?

"Your loving Linda."

So now that is how it came about that Mrs. Winter sewed and wished that the old days were back before Linda and Jimmy had quarrelled and Jimmy had gone to California. She had never known just what the quarrel was about, probably never would, but it had put an end to a certain dream cherished ever since the son of her best friend—now many years dead—had first shown an interest in her daughter.

Well, to be sure, mothers ought not to expect to select their girls' husbands. She must be prepared to welcome whatever man Linda eventually brought home.

In this new "find" of whom Linda had written, Mrs. Winters felt no particular interest. There had been too many predecessors whose charms had attracted temporarily only to yield to those of another. There had been the one who had sent her a bunch of Parma violets daily for a week, the one who had taken her to the season's box office success, the one who, according to Linda, was simply "too handsome for words."

Suddenly Mrs. Winters looked very thoughtful. Jimmy Brewster's second cousin, who lived three doors below had told her the other day that Jimmy had been sent on from California to take charge of his firm's New York office. Suppose she found out his address and invited him to dinner the Sunday following the Birch Gables dance!

She would say nothing to him about Linda's coming—Linda was to spend the night of the dance with her mother—nor to Linda about this.

Let each think their meeting was coincidental, if such a thing were possible! No doubt she was running the risk of appearing to be a medding old fool, but if there was any chance of bringing Linda and Jimmy together after a long absence during which their differences might have been forgotten she was prepared to run it.

By the end of the week Mrs. Winters had accomplished all she had hoped to. She had finished the lovely, shimmering dress. She had learned the street and number of Jimmy's boarding house and had written to him. And she had received a characteristic reply.

Tickled to death with the invite. How about some of those luscious little cheese biscuits you used to make? Expect me early. As ever,

"JIMMY."

"Bless his heart!" murmured Mrs. Winters when she read it. "He's the same old Jimmy."

But when Linda breezed in after the dance, her mother asked solicitously about the new escort quite as if she were not a meddling old fool conspiring against any stirring interest he might have in her pretty daughter.

"He's a peach!" Linda returned promptly, "and I'm dying to have you meet him. Had planned to bring him in last night, but it was rather late and he had a long drive home. You see—" here she paused with a funny little smile. "I—I—think I love him and I've asked him to come to dinner tomorrow!"

So, Linda's recent acquisition had proved important after all.

Likewise, she was indeed the meddling old fool she had feared. Surely her daughter wouldn't thank her for adding a fourth to what was to all intents and purposes a family party. Nor would Jimmy enjoy a dinner with the man about to walk off with his old sweetheart.

Early the following morning Mrs. Winter tried to telephone Jimmy and explain, but could not reach him. Nothing was left but to meet the awkward situation as best she could.

She prepared a casseroled chicken, rolled out tiny cheese biscuits, baked a delicious apple pie with motions completely automatic. Only the acquired skill of years brought her through with the usual success.

She hoped Jimmy would arrive first and so perhaps give her a chance to straighten matters out. Therefore she felt her heart sink when Linda, from the veranda couch hammock, summoned her mother gaily as a car rolled up and stopped. "Come and meet your new son-in-law; here he is, mother."

Slipping off her apron, she went dutifully out.

Then she stopped short and leaned weakly against the veranda post. Linda was in the arms of Jimmy Brewster!

Above Linda's dark sleek head Jimmy's eyes were twinkling.

"Linda!" cried Mrs. Winter sharply. "Linda! It wasn't fair to let Jimmy think—"

But Linda turned and, dragging Jimmy by the hand, ran up to her mother and put one arm about her.

"This is a little joke on you, mother. By the queer law of chance, the New York office to which Jimmy was sent was the one in which I work. We rediscovered each other and were planning to surprise you with the news of our engagement when your letter came to Jimmy and we thought this would be more fun!"

"Then there isn't any other—"

POISONS, caused by decaying teeth, often seep through the entire body. They rob you of health and vigor and bring on sickness and early old age.

You cannot give your teeth too much care, particularly at The Danger Line—where teeth meet gums.

It is in the tiny V-shaped crevices that the acids form, causing tooth decay and dangerous gum irritations. Squibb's Dental Cream, made with more than 50% of Squibb's Milk of Magnesia, effectively neutralizes them. And particles of the Milk of Magnesia remain in your mouth to give you protection afterwards. 40c a generous tube at all druggists.

PLANES HANDLE MAIL AT SEA

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—An airplane yesterday successfully carried mail to and from the United States liner Leviathan when the ship, bound for Cherbourg and Southampton was 60 miles off Ambrose Channel lightship.

Two planes took part in the experiment. One, an amphibian, was equipped with radio and the other, piloted by Lieut. Com. George R. Pond and L. Van Rawlings, had suspended from it a long cable with a steel ball on the end.

This ball, when the mail was picked up, was caught in a triangular canvas net which led it into a cup to which the mail sack was attached. The sack was catapulted at the moment the ball went into the cup.

The amphibian, carrying, in addition to the pilot, a representative of the United States Lines and two radio operators, kept in communication with the ship and directed the operation.

1,200 AT RALLY BOOST CHARTER

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

JOHN M'FARLANE, a North Sider, was telling of an unique experience he had when he was serving in the A. E. F. in the red days of 1917 and 1918. He was sitting, smoking a cigaret, at a boxing show staged for the entertainment of his regiment, when a hitch in the program developed. It appeared that the soldier matched to box the champion of the regiment had come up A. W. O. L. No opponent could be found as a substitute.

Mr. McFarlane studied and cogitated. He had often watched boxers in the ring and wondered if ever he would have courage to go and trade punches. As an amateur philosopher and psychologist John McFarlane knew that most men feared physical combat, man-to-man encounter. He gathered that from the way the Army instructors stressed this in training.

Mr. McFarlane tossed his cigaret away and announced that he would take on the champion.

"Did you ever box before?" he was asked. "Never," he replied. But that didn't go down with the soldiers assembled. You couldn't tell them a fellow who had never boxed would be willing to take on the champion. They suspected that for many moons John had been hiding his fistic light under the little known bushel and that he was about to deliver a dramatic coup.

In a short time John entered the ring amid the delighted shouts of his comrades. "You can't fool us, Packey," yelled the crowd, applying a nickname that well fitted John's last name, similar to the name of a most celebrated boxing expert.

Considering his cigarets, lack of training and total ignorance of boxing John did creditably against the champion until in the second round he found himself weak and staggering. In almost falling forward John accidentally landed a lucky one on the champion's chin and the crowd yelled to John: "Finish him, finish him." John, weak as he was, had to laugh at such unwitting humor on the part of the crowd.

In the third round they went into a clinch, as the boxing writers describe it when two boxers hold each other, and the champion in such close range whispered: "What's the matter—you're weak?" "Matter enough," said John, "I'm all in." So the champion stepped away, delivered a well-aimed glove to the McFarlane facade, and down went John.

Every once in awhile back here in Pittsburgh, the champion, an attorney in Pittsburgh, runs across his challenger.

"At that," winds up Mr. McFarlane in telling the story, "I don't think he would have knocked me out if I had been in condition, that is, he would not have knocked me out so quickly. In condition, in the very pink, I believe I would have lasted another full minute. That's my alibi and I'm going to stick to it."

The Downtown Automobile Tire Thieves' Association probably will hold a banquet with the news that the insurance company has awarded me a new tire to replace the one stolen sometime ago downtown. I am wondering if the Downtown Automobile Tire Thieves' Association will not issue a card saying: "The bearer is exempt until 1930." After all, the thieves should remember that insurance companies have to live, too.

WHAT your country thinks of you is well exemplified when you desire to leave it for a spell. In the form of a passport, your country asks you to give it $10 as consolation for your absence. The system is faulty. It occurs here there should be a sliding scale. If a reporter must pay $10 then a bond salesman should be allowed a furlough for $1. And as for the drivers of mail truck. . . .

Notices have been posted at street intersections near the north end of the proposed McKees Rocks-North Side bridge requesting property owners who may have objections to the span to appear before the county grand jury June 17.

The bridge will terminate at the proposed Ohio River boulevard at a point near Davis avenue.

Details of the ramp to be constructed as an approach from the lower North Side have not been disclosed by the county Department of Public Works. Several locations for the ramp have been proposed. Industrial interests of the Manchester district have urged that the ramp connect directly with the bridge, instead of with the boulevard, thus avoiding the heavy traffic on that thoroughfare.

BURKE LISTS METRO PLAN BENEFITS

Political Factions and 250 Civic Bodies Represented At Allied Board's Feast

Terming the Metropolitan Charter a remarkable piece of legislation which will give the world the proper conception of Pittsburgh, James Francis Burke, general counsel of the Republican National Committee, urged its approval at a dinner and rally last night in the William Penn Hotel.

The gathering, one of the largest ever held here in behalf of any civic movement, was attended by more than 1,200 guests. It was held under the auspices of the Allied Boards of Trade.

In addition to representatives of 250 civic organizations, the county's political groups were represented by Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Republican county chairman; David L. Lawrence, Democratic chairman, and Alexander P. Lindsay, chairman of the Independent committee in favor of the charter.

STRESSES HOME RULE

Mr. Burke, the principal speaker, declared that the lines on the map separating the 122 municipalities of Allegheny County indicate "a lamentable spirit of mistrust" which "rests upon an artificial basis." This mistrust has caused Pittsburgh, he said, to hold a "humiliating place among the pygmies of American municipalities compared with what her place might be."

"The evil of our own indifference has been emphasized by the enterprise and progressive spirit of rival cities everywhere," he went on. "They have taken advantage of our lethargy."

Under the charter, Burke declared, no municipality will yield a single local power of consequence, while increased taxation will be guarded against, forcible annexation will be prevented, and haphazard public construction will be eliminated. He emphasized the "home rule" provisions of the charter which, he predicted, will end "the intolerable delays, the log-rolling processes and the sacrifices" involved in appeals to the State Legislature.

CITES ADVANTAGES

"When new industrial enterprises come here after the charter passage," Mr. Burke added, "our population will increase, our business activities will be enlarged and intensified, our highways into every suburb will be multiplied and improved, and new homes, new schools, new shrines of worship and new places of recreation will contribute to the prosperity of an inspired and enlightened people."

Mrs. Q. W. Hershey, representing the League of Women Voters, declared that the interests of the present city of Pittsburgh and the rest of the county are synonymous. "If one falls, both fall," she said, urging that failure to consolidate interests delays progress.

Pittsburgh lost the Federal Reserve Bank in 1913 because she could claim a population of only 600,000, said Edward A. Young, member of the Metropolitan Charter Commission and secretary-treasurer of the Real Estate Savings and Trust Company.

The address of welcome was delivered by George P. Kuntz, president of the Allied Boards of Trade, who stated the meeting was held "for the purpose of crystalizing the sentiment for the charter among civic-minded citizens."

"This is without doubt the greatest gathering of representatives from boards of trade, chambers of commerce and civic organizations ever held in the county," he said. "It is positive proof that when a matter of vital importance affecting the welfare of the citizens is up for consideration and given a leader, the people will respond whole-heartedly."

MONUMENT HILL SITE BOOSTED

Advocates of the Monument Hill site for the Town Hall, appearing at a meeting of the County Planning Commission, stressed the fact that the site is tax exempt and ideally situated for the proposed $6,000,000 building. Congressman Stephen G. Porter was one of the spokesmen for the delegation.

Dr. Louis W. McIntyre, professor of civil engineering at the University of Pittsburgh, outlined his study of traffic conditions surrounding the Monument Hill, Downtown and Oakland district sites that have been suggested.

The proponents of a downtown location for the hall will be heard at a meeting of the commission to be held next Wednesday.

Others who were interrogated at the meeting yesterday were William A. Weldin and Louis P. Blum, engineers who surveyed the site for Town Hall purposes; Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang, Samuel Eads, of the board for the assessment and revision of taxes, and Charles P. Lang.

An appropriation of $13,000 from playground bond funds is carried in the measure. It is proposed to grade and equip a three-acre tract, owned by the city in Complete street near Shadeland avenue.

The plot is used by children of the district at present, according to Alderman George A. Young, president of the Board of Trade, and can readily be made into a first-class playground. A baseball diamond and football field are contemplated, as well as tennis courts.

FLOWER SHOW PLANS RUSHED

Miss H. There will be the usual cafeteria arrangement in the rear of the market with long counters of sandwiches, cake, coffee, ice cream and cold drinks. Dozens of small, sheltered tables will be placed close to the counters which line the wall so that service may be easily and quickly accomplished.

Child, in Hospital, Cheered By Thoughts of Pet Dog

Spooks is just an Eskimo pup in a world of thousands of other dogs, but in that little world bounded by four walls at 849 Peralta street he and his mistress, Margaret Grubbs, 7, were the supreme rulers.

Needs Her Dog

MARGARET GRUBBS

Margaret, 7, in the hospital with burns, as she held her little dog "Spooks." Today he's lost and her family searches everywhere as the little girl, unaware that he has strayed, asks about him every day.

But two days ago Queen Margaret played she was a "big girl," with a make believe cigaret and a real match. While Spooks danced about her, she lighted the match and her dress caught fire.

Little Margaret, with the presence of mind of a real ruler, rolled about the ground and extinguished the flames which burned her on the chest and arms. Her grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Martin, took her to Allegheny General Hospital, where her condition is regarded as serious.

Spooks was forgotten in the excitement and, unlike a real king, went off in a huff. He is still pouting somewhere, but Margaret doesn't know it yet. Her grandmother and her mother, Mrs. Ruth Grubbs, are making frantic efforts to find the little dog before the child is brought home.

Each day she asked for him, and talks joyously of the big black eyes set in the pure white head that won the name of "Spooks" for him. But the dog has not yet been found and each day in the classified ad section appears, "Lost dog—Eskimo, male, roughly clipped. Reward. 849 Peralta street. Cedar 5548."

Traffic Lights Please Pedestrians, Drivers

Pittsburghers have tried their new traffic light signal system and found it, for the most part, good.

Opinions of six of them—five from persons picked at random and one from Inspector of Traffic Ben H. Marshall—coincided in the belief that the control system in the downtown district was, in general, a success.

The chief faults found were that the lights change too rapidly on short streets, too slowly on long ones; that the pedestrian does not have sufficient time to cross; that the "green light only" rule for pedestrians has not been sufficiently advertised.

This is Inspector Marshall's opinion:

"The system has been proved a success. The only real difficulty, a jam at Liberty avenue and Stanwix street, was caused not by the lights, but because they were not working there. There was a mechanical defect in the control system at that point. Motorists were confused. But, in general, traffic was speeded up, and safety was increased. The real trouble was with pedestrians, who are not yet accustomed to obeying the lights. Time will cure that."

Inspector Marshall

William Haugh, cab driver, of 736 Stanton avenue, Millvale, had this to say:

"The best thing about these lights is that they give everybody an even break. The lights can't tell the difference between a cab, an old tin can or a shiny limousine. A traffic officer is likely to be a little quicker on the switch when a car that looks like big money rolls along. They help a lot. There is less confusion, and I thought there was less jaywalking with the lights on."

William Haugh

As a pedestrian, H. A. Goddard, of High street, Etna, formed his opinion:

"The system is fine. It takes a lot less time to walk from one point to another when the lights are working. The crowds seem to move with less confusion. The chief trouble I noticed was that too many pedestrians didn't pay any attention to the lights."

H. A. Goddard

This was Cornerman Tom Clancy's experience at Sixth avenue and Smithfield street:

"The lights worked like a charm at this corner. They did at all the straight intersections. There was some trouble at the points where left turns can't be avoided and where more than two streets intersect. There was less jaywalking, I believe. When both drivers and pedestrians get the hang of the system everything should be O. K."

Cornerman Clancy

Miss Mildred Scully, of the William Penn Hotel, liked the new system.

"At some corners the lights are confusing," she says. "But in general they seem to help. When you spend a whole day in town shopping, you begin to appreciate the advantage to a pedestrian of a system that is easily understood and reliable."

Mildred Scully

Attorney Hiram D. Hirsh, counsel for the Public Service Commission, had this to say:

"I suppose there are a lot of minor factors that must be ironed out. It seemed to me that on the short streets the lights were a disadvantage, because they were operated too closely together and the traffic flow was impeded. It might pay to operate two blocks together at some points. The lights make driving more pleasant than under manual control. Their stop warnings are uniform in time, more readily visible, and less confusing. A driver never need guess at what the light is saying. They reduce the human element, and, therefore, unpleasant arguments will be diminished."

Attorney Hirsh

It was the concensus among drivers for the cab companies that the lights had made driving downtown safer for both motorists and pedestrians, officials of the companies said. According to Inspector Marshall, traffic officers found readiness among pedestrians to obey the lights, but a lack of knowledge in regard to the signals' meaning. This fault will be corrected through natural formation of habits on the part of the walking public, the cornermen concurred in saying.

Bell Boy to Lindy

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 13.

Another great nation owes Lindbergh a debt of gratitude for an entirely new reason.

He helped aviation for us when it was at its lowest ebb. Well, marriage among prospective monarchs in England was never at a lower ebb than when Lindbergh set them his excellent example.

He drove us to the air and England to the altar. I knew the Prince was about through as a sport when I heard he had taken up golf.

Now we will see if the photographers muff this wedding. They will follow every sedan that leaves London from now on.

It's a great linking of Windsor Castle and Minneapolis.

Yours, WILL.

BELLEVUE SCHOOL BOARD REPLIES IN JULY 4 ROW

BALL GAME DAMAGE FEARED

Restrictions Causing Halt Of Celebration Explained In 'Statement of Facts'

George W. Judd, president of the Bellevue School Board, today made what he termed a "true statement of facts" in the controversy with the Bellevue Board of Trade which led to abandonment of the Fourth of July celebration this year.

Restrictions imposed by the school board in using the field for baseball resulted in the trade organization cancelling arrangements for the observance. Judd's statement follows:

BASEBALL BANNED

"When the Board of Trade asked for the use of the athletic field for the Fourth of July, we immediately granted the use of the field without baseball.

"The athletic field has a short right field for baseball. The protection that was used to keep batted balls from going out of the grounds is down. The wire screen was rusted out and taken down and the net was the property of the Bellevue Athletic Association. This protection that was furnished by the Bellevue Athletic Association when the Bellevue team played was a wire screen about 18 feet above the present 10-foot fence, 225 feet along Sheridan avenue, and then reaching from this wire screen there was a net reaching about 30 feet by 225 feet. In addition to this the Bellevue Athletic Association agreed to pay for all damages.

"Many balls have been knocked over this approximate 60-foot barrier. Many windows, slate and other damages have been done and complaints have been a matter of much concern to the school board. At one time an injunction was threatened against playing baseball on this field.

"The board is willing to allow the two games of ball under the terms of the following agreement tendered the board of trade:

"'The School District of the Borough of Bellevue, by proper action of its school directors, at the request of the Bellevue Board of Trade, does hereby grant unto said organization the license or privilege to use the athletic field on Sheridan avenue, Bellevue, for the baseball purposes morning and afternoon on Thursday, July 4, 1929, upon the following terms and conditions.

PROTECTION REQUIRED

"'The term of this license shall be for one day only, July 4, 1929.

"'The Board of Trade is to arrange with the Borough of Bellevue for proper police supervision of the grounds and the protection of the residents in the vicinity and their properties.

"'The Board of Trade is to use every means available to prevent balls from being batted over the fences and to provide and maintain in operation a wire protection approximately 18 feet above the present fence and 225 feet along Sheridan avenue, this wire protection to be erected and in place prior to the playing of the two games, and to be removed Monday, July 13, 1929.

"'The Board of Trade agrees to keep and save the School District from all property damages, resulting from the use of the field for baseball by the organization, and to be conditioned that the organization shall pay all property damage sustained by the School district or residents in the vicinity resultant of the baseball games.'"

EASTERN STARS PICK OFFICERS

Opposition fights for three offices featured the election today of the Grand Chapter of Pennsylvania, Order of the Eastern Star, in its closing session of the thirty-fifth annual convention in Syria Mosque.

As the delegates and members gathered for the election, indications were that a greater portion of the day would be necessary before the final balloting and counting of votes were completed, due to the heavy voting and the change in the voting system.

The four chief officers were expected to be elected without opposition. This portion of the ballot indicated the elevation of four officers, a usual routine procedure, which would place Mrs. Jessie K. Berlin, of Allentown, as worthy grand matron; Thomas Meany, of Philadelphia, as worthy grand patron; Mrs. Carrie M. Griswell, associate grand matron, and Mrs. Cora M. Davenport, West Pittston, as grand conductress. Mrs. Belle C. Williams was expected to be re-elected as grand treasurer.

Opposition centered on the offices of grand secretary, associate grand patron and associate grand conductress. Mrs. Adeline W. Barnes, of Pittsburgh, was expected to win over her opponent for re-election to the office of grand secretary.

Installation of the new officers and a musical program tonight will bring the convention to a close. The final ceremonies will be in charge of Mrs. Margaret B. Alexander, installing officer and past grand matron.

HIGHWAY PLAN HELD SAFE

Widening of General Robinson street from Federal street to Shore avenue will not prevent the creation of an industrial thoroughfare paralleling that street, according to members of Council.

The ordinance authorizing the Robinson street improvement was passed finally by council last Monday over the objections of the City Planning commission and the Citizens' Committee on City Plan. The measure awaits Mayor Charles H. Kline's approval.

U. N. Arthur, chief engineer of the city planners, and Frederick Bigger, of the citizens' committee, appeared before council to reiterate their objections that the Robinson street project would conflict with a proposed industrial thoroughfare adjacent to Robinson street.

President of Council James F. Malone pointed out that council has no legislation pending for the industrial thoroughfare and declared his colleagues were not antagonistic to the proposal.

Spring Hill Asks Car Line On New East St. Bridge

Street car service for residents of Spring Hill and City View by utilizing the East Street Bridge connecting Essen and Charles streets seems remote, judging from the attitude of City Council and the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

A delegation from those districts appeared before council yesterday and asked for legislation that would provide street car tracks on the bridge.

Fred D. Blessmeyer, spokesman for the delegation, declared that the bridge will be reserved almost exclusively for trucks and automobiles. He said that only one out of 15 residents of Spring Hill and City View owns an automobile and that the rest had to depend on street cars for transportation.

The railways company had submitted a letter to council stating that the small number of persons served made the operation of street cars unprofitable.

COUNCIL MEETS AT DORMONT

A special council meeting has been called by Charles Chamberlin, president of Dormont Borough Council, for tomorrow evening to consider and take action for the appointment of a chief life guard for the borough's swimming pool in Dormont Park.

An assistant life guard was appointed at a previous meeting, along with a cashier, men's checker and matron for the new $40,000 bathhouse at the pool, which will be dedicated July 4.

A delegate to the Police Chief's convention also will be appointed at the meeting.

All indications show that the swimming pool will be opened to residents of the borough on Saturday.

West View Clerk Misses First Meet in 15 Years

A familiar face was missing at the monthly meeting of West View Council this week. For the first time in 15 years, C. A. McClain, borough clerk, was absent.

Through rain, sleet, snow and cold McClain has wended his way to the borough building on the top of the highest of West View's many hills, whenever a meeting of Council was scheduled. Sometime he rose from a sick bed to be present and keep a record of official business.

But this week found him too ill to make the attempt. His physician, Dr. D. A. Atkinson, burgess of West View, forbade him to leave his bed. He was not to undergo any excitement or stress, the physicial ruled, because of a heart condition believed superinduced by a sinus infection. He has been ill for a week.

"A record of fidelity seldom equaled," commented William M. Dickson, president of Council. "Mr. McClain has been of great value to the borough in his 15 years' service. He really is the first and only borough clerk West View has had. He knows the affairs of the borough thoroughly. We all are hoping for his early recovery."

Councilman Harry Wagner "subbed" for McClain at this week's session.

Dr. Caldwell's 3 Rules Keep You Healthy

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit-forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their systems. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person.

Get a bottle today, at any drug store, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

Wife Hurt in Fall, Man Asks $25,000

John Burns, of the South Side, filed suit in Common Pleas Court against Albert Surloff, seeking to recover $25,000 for injuries to his wife, Mary Burns, as the result of a fall on the sidewalk in front of 1302 Carson street, South Side, where Surloff conducted a grocery and meat market. Burns alleged that while his wife was walking along the sidewalk September 6, 1927, she fell because of the slippery condition of the walk. Mrs. Burns suffered a broken wrist, contusions of the body and was in a state of shock and nervous collapse for a long time, Burns alleged. He stated she died March 16, last.

SUCCESS AND HAPPINESS CAN BE OBTAINED ONLY BY MEN WITH PURE BLOOD CELLS

"Heritage, My Son, Is the Greatest Word in Our Language!"

I WANT to tell every young man what his father should have told him in his youth—what every young man and father ought to know. No sadder spectacle ever comes to my attention than a young man whose body and mind are infected with disease. He is handicapped all through life. The strong, robust man with pure blood cells passes him at every turn in the race of life. Thousands of these cases should never have been. An ounce of prevention would have kept the young man of today and the father of tomorrow in the bloom of health, strength and vigor. Failure is as certain to follow a weakened and diseased mind and body as day will follow night. Don't you believe the great men of today, of yesterday, performed every private and public duty fearlessly and earnestly? Then why should you not guard your heritage when it is worth more to you, more to your children and your great-grandchildren than all the money you will make or possess? Your success depends upon your health and determination. All these things being true, lend me your confidence and I will give you a clean blood stream; then if you do not succeed it is your own fault. False pride and modesty have stood between thousands of men and women, robbing them of all the sweets of life, success and happiness.

We live in an age when all mankind should become interested in medical matters, not because we love money, not because we love life for ourselves, but for the preservation of our own blood cells. Men may cry, Peace! Peace! but there is no peace of mind or body when the blood has been infected. A bullet kills only the man it hits. Infection destroys his poor wife and children and their children's children. Today money counts; tomorrow blood cells will win the race and the great heritage of our ancestors will count for more than hoarded millions.

SEARCH FOR TROOPER'S SLAYER ENDS IN CAPTURE

N. Y. ARREST MAY CLEAR RIOT DEATH

Sergt. Tomek Believes He Has Found Man Who Killed Downey at Acmetonia Riot

When State Trooper John J. Downey was killed nearly two years ago at Acmetonia during a riot following a Sacco-Vanzetti sympathy meeting, his fellow troopers vowed they would never let up until the slayer was brought to justice.

Today that vow appears about to become a reality as Sergt. William Tomek in New York prepares to bring back Salvatore Accorsi, 33, arrested yesterday on Staten Island by Tomek and two New York detectives. Accorsi, it is said, will waive extradition. He is believed to have killed Downey.

LONG SEARCH REWARDED

Accorsi's arrest is the culmination of one of the most dogged bits of sleuthing in the annals of state police. Sergt. Tomek, one of the crack "under cover" men in the commonwealth's service, was assigned to the case the day after Downey was shot. He came to Acmetonia from the Greensburg barracks, spending several months in the Allegheny Valley going over the entire district.

The earth seemed to have swallowed the slayer. Labor sympathizers, many of them reputed Communists said to have been responsible for the disorders in the Western Pennsylvania coal strike, made the search doubly difficult. Tomek, however, kept at it.

Two weeks ago he followed the trail across the state into New York, finally locating Accorsi living a simple life with his wife and three children. He will be brought to the Greensburg barracks for questioning either late today or tomorrow, following which, according to state police, he will be brought here for trial.

New York police said Accorsi told them he had attended the Acmetonia meeting, but denied he had fired any shots.

IN N. Y. LINEUP

NEW YORK, June 13.—(INS.)—Salvatore Accorsi, 33, of Staten Island, was in the lineup at police headquarters today, accused of being a fugitive from justice, wanted in Allegheny County, Pa., for the slaying of State Trooper John J. Downey on August 22, 1927, during a Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration by miners.

Harry J. Milton, a sophomore in the Carnegie Tech Industries School and a resident of 3379 Parkview avenue, Oakland, paid a dollar and a half for a street car pass, Monday, and three cents for a Sun-Telegraph, yesterday, making a total of one dollar and fifty-three cents.

On glancing through the winning pass numbers he saw one that looked very familiar. Checking it with his pass, he found that they both read 42,150. Milton had cleared exactly four dollars and forty-seven cents on the deal, in which he was granted $5 by the Sun-Telegraph and the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

Remarking on his good fortune, Milton said, "Oh, I knew I would receive an award when I saw the number of the pass the conductor handed me. I suppose it was one of those feelings that people call a hunch."

TRUSTEE IN PEN LOSES COAL FIRM POST

Court Ousts Embezzler as Bankruptcy Official on Petition of Creditor

A petition filed in Federal Court asked that Elliott Frederick be removed as trustee in bankruptcy for the Euclid Gas Coal Company, charging he is no longer in a position to faithfully discharge his duties.

Frederick on Tuesday was taken to the Atlanta penitentiary to serve a two-year term for embezzlement from other bankrupt estates. The petitioner in the removal request was the Pittsburgh and Erie Coal company, a creditor of the bankrupt concern. It also set forth that Frederick had tendered his resignation.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker granted the petition without releasing Frederick of liabilities to make proper accounting for funds that came into his hands as receiver and trustee, and ruled that all expenses which may be incurred in investigating and auditing the accounts and affairs of the trustee, shall be charged to Frederick.

The referee in bankruptcy was instructed to call a meeting of creditors of the bankrupt company and elect a trustee to succeed Frederick.

Seeking the custody of her 3-year-old son, Carson LeRoy Foster, Mrs. Anna M. Foster, 2420 Cronemeyer avenue, McKeesport, filed a bill in equity against her husband, Andrew Foster, and obtained a writ of habeas corpus. A hearing was fixed by Judge Josiah Cohen for June 18.

Mrs. Foster stated they were married November 12, 1924, and that she was compelled to leave her husband April 15, 1928, because he charged her with misconduct. He refused to let her have their son or permit her to see him, and placed the boy in the custody of Foster's mother at Coal Valley, Mrs. Foster charged.

She alleged Foster and his mother are not fit and proper persons to have the care and custody of the boy.

2 IN RUM CASE END TAX TERM

The three-month jail sentences of Fred Stratman and Daniel McLaughlin, for evasion of income taxes, imposed March 15, by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, will expire Saturday, instead of starting at the expiration of two years' penitentiary terms imposed by Judge Nelson McVicar for conspiring to violate the prohibition law.

Both sentences were imposed the same day. An order of Judge Schoonmaker, reversing the procedure of sentences, makes it possible for Stratman and McLaughlin to be released under bonds pending their appeals to the United States Circuit Court from their convictions in the North Side rum trials.

Thrift and Saving Lead Unerringly to Financial Independence

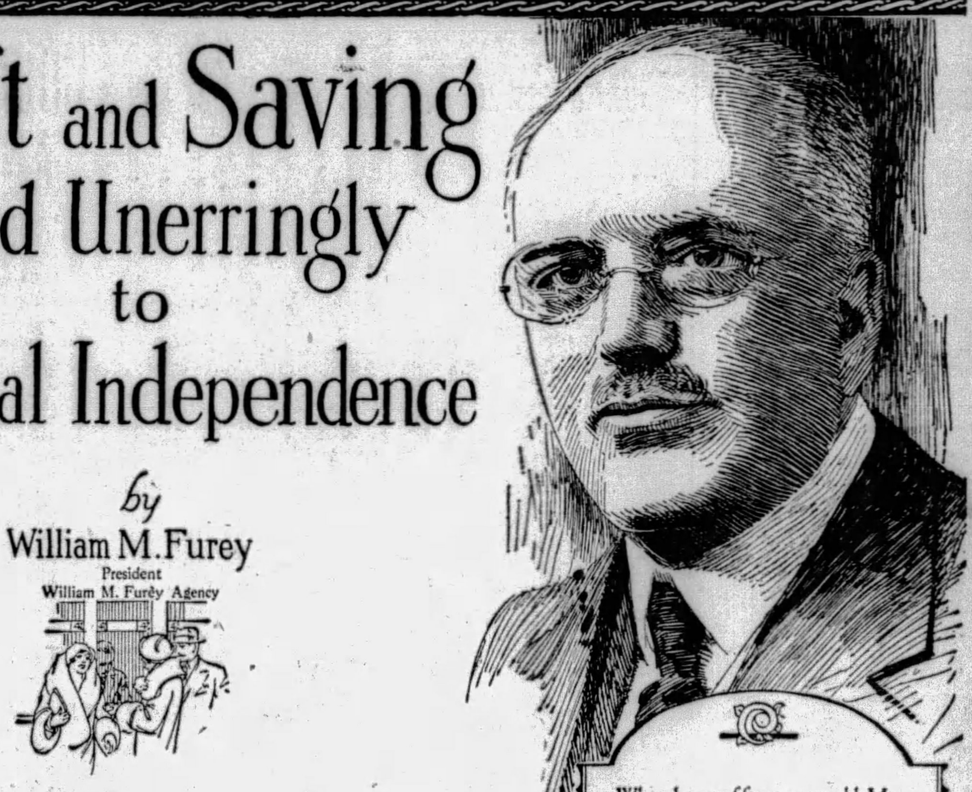
William M. Furey
President
William M. Furey Agency



REPUTABLE statistics show that out of every twenty men starting life at the age of twenty-five, only one will be able to retire and live on his income at the age of sixty-five, and only one will still be able to earn enough to be independent. A programme of thrift and steady saving will overcome this situation for any young man who will adopt it. I believe that half the ill health and two-thirds of the inefficiency of men today is due to fear and worry caused by lack of financial independence.

When he was fifteen years old, Mr. William M. Furey left his father's farm, came to Pittsburgh, and got his first job as a clerk at the Berkshire Life Insurance Agency. Believing that "a rolling stone gathers no moss," he applied himself to his work and at the same time prepared for the future by going to night school. In 1905 Mr. Furey was made a partner in the general agency of English and Furey. He later became head of the William M. Furey Agency, which position he now holds. Active in community affairs, Mr. Furey is a former President of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Furey stresses the value of a "programme of thrift and saving." And in presenting this series of editorials by Pittsburgh's leading business and professional men, the Union Savings Bank hopes to show by precept and example how important thrift and saving are for success in life.

General Gas & Electric Plans New Issue

NEW YORK, June 13.—As a further step in its extensive program of expansion, General Gas and Electric Corporation, control of which was recently acquired by Associated Gas and Electric Corporation, is planning to market a new issue of 250,000 shares of $6 cumulative convertible preferred stock, which will be convertible into Class A common stock of the corporation.

Constituted as it is today, General Gas and Electric Corporation is both a holding and an investment company, approximately 37 per cent of its consolidated assets consisting of public utility properties which include the Lexington Water Power Company, Florida Public Power Service Company and Broad River Power Company, rendering electric, gas and other utility services to more than 44,000 consumers in important communities in South Carolina and Florida. The Lexington Water Power Company has under construction on the Saluda River near Columbia one of the largest hydro-electric developments in this country which will have an initial installed capacity of 130,000 k. w. and an ultimate capacity of 200,000 k. w. It is expected that the plant will be in operation about September 1, 1930, and long-term contracts covering the sale of a minimum of 300,000,000 K. W. H. annually have already been entered into.

Through the corporation's investments in the securities of a well diversified list of public utility properties including Associated Gas and Electric Corporation, which represent slightly over half of its consolidated assets, General Gas and Electric Corporation already occupies an important position in the industry with international aspects. It is the intention of the management in future to decrease its operations of an investment company nature and to strengthen its position as a holding company through the purchase of securities representing interest in and control of additional operating utility properties.

Detroit Aircraft Has Simple Capital

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—The newly formed Detroit Aircraft Corporation, through which the latest aviation merger is being effected, will have a simple capital structure of 2,000,000 authorized shares of no-par capital stock, of which 922,745 shares will be outstanding, it was announced yesterday.

There will be offered publicly about 300,000 shares, at a price yet to be announced, and 1 1-3 shares will be offered in exchange for each share of Lockheed Aircraft Co., of Los Angeles, 2 shares for each share of Ryan Aircraft Corp., and one share for each share of Aircraft Development Corp.

Three subsidiaries are being formed to take over assets of Aircraft Development Corp. They are the Aviation Tool Co., the Marine Aircraft Co., and Grosse Ile Airport, Inc.

Detroit Aircraft will invest $400,000 in Winton Aviation Engine Co., which is being segregated from Winton Engine Co. This will give Detroit Aircraft a 40 per cent interest. Also, Detroit Aircraft will acquire a 90 per cent interest in the Blackburn Aeroplane Co., being formed to take over patents and licenses in America of the Blackburn Aeroplane and Motor Co., Ltd., of England.

The new organization plans to manufacture both lighter and heavier than air craft, ranging from $3,000 training planes to $6,000,000 dirigibles. It will have plants in Los Angeles, St. Louis, Cleveland and Detroit.

FRANK & SEDER DAY

See Friday Evening Newspapers

June 15th

Why a Frank & Seder Day?

BECAUSE we want to associate in the public mind a day bearing our name that will come to mean the one biggest sales-day of the entire year.

Prices will be lower on a thousand different things the public needs because we MAKE them lower.

We make them lower because FRANK & SEDER DAY is an occasion for special acknowledgment of our obligation to a loyal public.

The six pages of advertising that will appear in tomorrow night's papers will be jammed with DRAMATIC BARGAIN FEATURES.

And hundreds of items that would ordinarily be considered "Red Hot" will not be published at all—because of so many others of a sensational nature that simply DEMAND representation.

Instructions to our Buyers are rigid: "Give the Biggest Bargains of the year! Get the Biggest Crowds of the year! Get the whole town talking FRANK & SEDER DAY!"

We are equipped with Merchandise, Service and Values to handle the largest volume of business of the year.

It may sound trite to call this our greatest FRANK & SEDER DAY—but the facts in the case will back us up.

And if you're wise, you won't miss it.

SUFFERED TEN YEARS; THEN KONJOLA WON!

Pittsburgh Man Freed of Stomach Trouble—Declares New Medicine Was First That Helped Him.

The Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Company, (formerly McCulloch's) Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, does not spend all his time explaining the merits of Konjola, the new medicine, for it is his happy privilege to listen to the happy statements of men and women who found glorious health through the use of this super-remedy.

MR. T. S. KREPPS

No matter how long you have suffered; no matter what medicines and treatments have failed to give relief, take your troubles to the Konjola Man and have him tell you the wonderful story of this wonderful medicine. But do not expect to hear promises or claims, for Konjola stands on a bed-rock foundation of accomplishments, not words; on triumphs, not theories. Is there not a world of hope and cheer for all who suffer and who would be well again, in the sincere and grateful indorsements of Pittsburgh people who were relieved of ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and from rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness, through Konjola? And life teaches no better lesson than to profit from the experiences of others. A typical example of Konjola at work was related recently by Mr. T. S. Krepps, 2114 Eccles Street, Pittsburgh, who said to the Konjola Man:

"Mere words can never express my gratitude for the wonderful things Konjola has done for me. I could hardly believe it possible for this medicine to accomplish such a restoration. For ten years I suffered from stomach trouble of the worst sort. I was unable to eat a meal without having gas form afterward. My liver became sluggish and caused dizzy spells when black spots appeared before my eyes. Daily I got worse and finally nervousness set in. I was in a pitiful condition; constantly seeking relief and always meeting with disappointment.

"Finally Konjola was recommended to me, but at first I was inclined to scoff at the idea of a single medicine helping me, especially since everything else had failed. But my friends insisted that I give it a trial and at last I agreed to do so. Now my only regret is that I didn't take it sooner. What days of suffering it would have saved me! Konjola went right to work and a short time later I was free of stomach trouble. My digestion is better than for ten years and I can eat what I please without suffering afterward. Then Konjola regulated my liver and brought me new and glorious health. I praise Konjola with all my heart for I know it is the medicine every sufferer needs."

Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals. It needs no such hazardous ingredients, for it is all pure, wholesome medicine. Konjola asks only to be put to the test—to show its wonderful merits.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Company, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine

OUR TALKIES WORRY LONDON AS THE KING'S ENGLISH IS IN DIRE PERIL

By GEORGE SEIBEL

LONDON is considerably excited over the possibility that the American talking films may corrupt the King's English. What if a Texas drawl or a Georgia permanent wave should get into the tongue of Shakespeare and Sammy Johnson? Wouldn't it be terrible?

The laugh at this little flurry is in the fact that there are few places in the world where the King's English is more roughly treated than in London. There you hear the worst English in the world, with vowels twisted every way, consonants mangled and maimed. Of course, you also hear some very admirable English, but the people who speak that are not likely to be exposed to the contamination of the "Squawkies," as they insolently term our importations.

We won't stand for that. They might call them the "Lispies" or the "Barkies," but by the shades of Webster and Worcester and Stormonth, we will not endure any insults worse than that.

George Seibel

English undefiled is disputable ground at best. If Johnson came back, he would find his pronunciation nowhere except in Dublin and other Irish towns. Johnson called tea "tay," just like our stage Irishmen.

But while we resent the slurs of the embattled Britons, let us not assume that our talking movies don't need correction or reform. Most of the players are very imperfect in their utterance, with the result that their voices resemble canned adenoids. And on the score of pronunciation, they can be charged with frequent atrocities that would almost justify the Cockney slur.

What they need out in Hollywood is an orthoepic Czar.

Egypt's Doll Waiting for Her

When Margaret Anglin comes to Pittsburgh to play in "The Woman of Bronze" with the George Sharp Players, she will meet an old friend that she has probably forgotten. In the early part of her career she appeared here in a play by Edward B. Sheldon entitled "Egypt." As the unhappy heroine she had somehow acquired a child, as often happens to unhappy heroines. This child was impersonated by a large and very beautiful doll, one of the best-behaved stage children ever brought on.

There was a little girl in the audience who loved that doll. Margaret Anglin heard about it from some friends, and promised that the little girl should have the doll when its stage career was at an end.

Maybe the little girl prayed very hard for that doll, and that may account for the failure of Sheldon's play. At any rate, the little girl got the doll by express from New York not long after.

Today the little girl has a little girl of her own, who loves that beautiful doll just as much. And when Margaret Anglin comes to the Pitt Theater, the little girl's little girl will bring the beautiful doll to see its first mother.

What a nice family reunion that will be.

Crime Laid to A Bible Movie

The "Noah's Ark" photoplay in the Grand this week brings to mind the worst story once told by a perfectly orthodox preacher. It was about a boy who had stolen a quarter from his father's pocketbook. The father punished the boy and told him how wicked it was to steal.

The weeping lad had only one excuse. He needed the money to go to see a movie he had heard the Sunday school teacher talk about.

"What was the movie?" demanded the father. "No movie justifies you in stealing a quarter."

"This one was pretty good," sniffled the boy.

It was "The Ten Commandments."

Oil Man, Wed 50 Years, Celebrates

OIL CITY, Pa., June 13.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. S. Y. Ramage celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary with a reception at Venango Country Club here yesterday. Many friends attended.

Mr. Ramage is a prominent independent oil man and one of the largest individual producers of Pennsylvania grade crude oil. He is a director of the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation and a former vice president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Pageant Staged At Camp Holabird

CAMP HOLABIRD, Md., June 13.—(AP.)—With high officials of the Army attaches of foreign embassies looking on, the story of transportation, from the ox-cart days of ancient Egypt to the swift-winged flying of the modern aviator, was unwound before 10,000 spectators at the Military Transportation Pageant, which opened here yesterday.

Principal

David Rollins is one of the principals in song and dance sequences of "The Fox Movietone Follies of 1929," opening Monday in the Aldine.

Mrs. Willebrandt To Fly Atlantic Water West

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—On the inaugural westward trip of the Aviation Corporation's transcontinental plane-train system on Friday, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, retiring assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition prosecutions, will carry to the Pacific a bottle of water scooped from the Atlantic and presented to her by Mayor James J. Walker.

Mrs. Willebrandt is Washington counsel for the Aviation Corporation and will be among the prominent persons on the inaugural air-rail trip.

Officers Elected By Civitan Clubs

ATLANTA, June 13.—(INS.)—Robert W. Brooks, of St. Louis, was elected president of the International Association of Civitan Clubs shortly before the convention adjourned its ninth annual session yesterday. The executive committee will meet later to select the next convention city.

George W. Simons, Jr., of Jacksonville, was elected first vice president; Clarence L. Harding, Washington, D. C., second vice president, and Wilbur F. Denious, of Denver, third vice president. Claude Hagen, of Birmingham, was elected treasurer.

Walter Winchell On Broadway

NEW YORK, June 13.

Pardon My Tall Millinery.

WHEN foreign statesmen visit here from me they never get a cheer;
I never listen to a thing they say.
I never pause to watch parades, nor do I ogle painted maids;
It's all a waste of time, and doesn't pay.
But when the fire wagons speed along—
You'll find me in the front line of the throng.
(I beg your poddon if I seem blah-zay.)

I hero-worshiped in my teens and learned that men of fame and means
Were like some pals who failed to make the grade.
The only difference I could find was that the fates to them were kind,
And so, no honor to them have I paid.
But you should see the horrible effect—
Whenever Gehrig, Hoyt or Ruth connect.
(I trust you do not think my brain's decayed.)

I won't enthuse when braggarts chin about the battles they've been in;
One second of my time I will not spare.
For they just want me to applaud and by their tales I won't be awed,
Were they the only heroes Over There?
Yet, I am mighty proud of this huge scar,
I once was struck by Greta Garbo's car.
(A thing like that you must admit—is rare.)

Newspaperwoman Stuff

Being on the same rag with Fay King recalls the time that the woman who was once Mrs. Battling Nelson worked for the Denver Post. One day the regular critic was ailing, so Fay was assigned to cover the new program at the Orpheum. A comic who resorted to shady material jarred Fay's nerves, so she penned a terrific roast charging him with being an affront to Denver womanhood and otherwise burned him up and knocked him cold.

The aggrieved actor charged into the editorial room like a mad man, demanding that the critic "come outside." The editor, however, finally got rid of him and then summoned Miss King.

"Review 'em, my dear," begged the boss, "review 'em. Don't try to reform 'em!"

Haw!

Then there's the silly about the Scot who imitated Rudy Vallee, but wouldn't buy a megaphone.

He starched his lips!

The Morning Mail

"Dear Winchell," affectionately writes Fred Allen, of "The Little Show," "a pitiful case concerns a master of ceremonies in the big picture houses who ran out of material and shot himself for a Blackout! Another sad story deals with a revue comedian who suddenly went so deaf that he had to abandon his weekly trips to the vaudeville theaters and is now BUYING his gags. This is not authentic, but if so, a precedent has been established. You've probably heard that the cats in Chicago are so tough they use porcupines for mice."

And They Hang Pictures!

Portland Hoffa, who was so named by her theatrical parents because she was born in Portland, Ore. (she has a sister named Pawtucket), says that she knows a near-sighted Scotchman who is too cheap to buy spectacles and cuts a hole in the newspaper to fit his nose.

Incidentally

"Is that guy near-sighted?"

"I'll say he's near-sighted, that's how he makes his living."

"No kiddin'! What does he do?"

"Well, when those men get through writin' the Lord's Prayer on the head of a pin—he punctuates it."

Elinor Wylie

She is where Shelley sleeps; and there is peace.
For when such splendid things as earth and sea
Have held the greater splendor of their words,
Those two will make communion mightily.
—Noel Pierce.

Enterprise

You probably recall the story that broke in all the papers recently about the new bank that was willing to pay a premium on old dimes dated 1859 to 1879 to place in its cornerstone. The story drew front page space in New York, even crashing the most conservative rags, and the better news services flashed it over its wires throughout the nation.

But it was strictly a gag, a fable, and a swell plot to get national advertising without spending a cent. The lad who engineered the successful stunt was one of the local theatrical press agents (who was also a dramatic critic last year), and who, ironically enough, had to quit Broadway because he couldn't get a job.

Along the Long Lane of Short Careers

The Broadway way of telling how the so-called celebrities rate is to frequent Sardi's, a restaurant this side of Longacre square. Here it is where the walls feature likenesses of the "mob," who first must amount to something before their caricatures are displayed. Your likeness is given a place of honor up front if you are listed high in your profession—that is, until you lose your job or flunk at your racket. At least a dozen lads who were urged to pose for the restaurant's crayon juggler when they were among the Somebodies are now buried in the rear of the place, merely because they met with bad breaks or are no longer pointed out by the autograph fiends.

In Fewer Words

Which recalls Cecil B. De Mille's ace crack: "I'd rather be hissed at than yawned at!"

A Heart That Broke—Even

Today your kisses cooled my brow,
Today you touched my hand;
Today you pledged your deepest vow,
And that was just grand.

Tomorrow you'll kiss Tom or Lee,
Frederick or Alexander;
Tomorrow you'll not look at me,
And that'll be grander.
—d'Annunzio Cohen.

By Way of Report

Among other "inside stuff" on the Margaret Lawrence-Louis Bennison tragedy is that some time ago Bennison opened negotiations with his insurance company to have his policy changed in favor of his "heart." Then, quite recently, he dropped the proceedings by informing the insurance group to keep the documents made out in the name of his wife, all of which indicates that Bennison plotted last Sunday's trick well in advance.

Sotto Voce

Robert Mayer: You mated "wishes" with "kisses."

At 47th Street

Two small-time Westphalians were talking shop in front of the Palace yesterday. Said the first: "What's the matter, chump, you look glum?"

"It's been terrible lately," said the other, "we had eight weeks booked in Vermont playin' the open air theaters."

"Why, that's great!"

"Great, hell! We had to cancel after the second week. The woodpeckers ate up my straight-man's cane!"

Nickeloden Site To Be Marked By Tablet

Under the auspices of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, a bronze tablet will be unveiled next Wednesday on the site of the world's first all-moving picture theater—the Nickelodeon. Elaborate preparations have been made for ceremonies which will not only perpetuate the memory of Pittsburgh's big part in what is now the world's fourth largest industry, but also will pay tribute to the memory of the man who conceived and created the Nickelodeon, the late Senator John P. Harris.

The unveiling will take place at 12:15 o'clock from a platform to be erected in front of that portion of the Frank and Seder Building, which was formerly known as 433 and 435 Smithfield street and on which stood the parent of all the movies. Speakers will include Carl E. Milliken, former Governor of Maine; Mayor Charles H. Kline, William H. Stevenson, president of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, and Edwin F. Albee, president of the Keith-Albee-Orpheum Circuit.

BUCK HILLS FALLS, Pa., June 13.—(AP.)—With the presentation by Prof. William Adams Brown, of the Union Theological Seminary, of the report of the findings committee, the sessions of the Christian Herald Institute of Religion reached their climax yesterday.

Recommendation was made for a series of conferences on church unity in various sections of the country. The report also urged that "a special effort be made to include among those present, those who are now opposed to the movement for a united church."

Gettysburg College Gets $100,000 Gift

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 13.—A cash contribution of $100,000 by "a family greatly devoted to the college," was announced yesterday by Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg College, in connection with the ninety-seventh annual commencement exercises.

Dr. Hanson did not make public the name of the family, but said the members have been interested in the college for many years and made the contribution to finance the complete renovation of Glatfelter Hall, the principal recitation hall.

Baseball Luck Evens Up. | Yankees After Morris.
Pirate Gifts Returned. | Rabbit's Sentiments.
Club Spirit Is Factor. | Saving Pitcher Fails.

GRIMES' RECORD CHANCE PROLONGED

THAT baseball luck evens itself up sooner or later has been demonstrated to Pittsburgh fans in the last four days. On Sunday and Monday, the Pirates booted away two games to the Dodgers, but on Tuesday and Wednesday the Bucs themselves were the recipients of a pair of gift games from the Dodgers and Giants through ninth-inning bobbles after two men had been retired. On Tuesday it was Dave Bancroft's wild throw that handed the bout to the Buccaneers, and yesterday it was a fumble by Melvin Ott that gave the Rovers the winning run.

Melvin Ott.

But despite the part that the breaks of the sport have played in favor of the Bucs in their last two victories, the Bushmen themselves are entitled to considerable credit for the manner in which they took advantage of them. Errors are part of baseball and a wide-awake and alert club that takes advantage of an opponent's misplays deserves all that results from its doing so. Donie Bush's heads-up system that keeps his players on their toes until the last man is out, and the never-let-down dash of the Bucs, notably Capt. Pie Traynor, who scored the winning run on both days, had considerable to do with the Pittsburgh victories as well as the misplays of the enemy.

ANOTHER result of the Pirates' ninth-inning victory yesterday, which gave them first blood in the big series and kept them in first place with a lead increased from three to 11 points, was that Burleigh Grimes' winning streak of 10 straight remained unbroken. He was forced to leave the game, but the Bucs won out, Heinie Meine getting credit for the victory after a clever exhibition of hurling.

It was the first time this season that Grimes experienced being knocked off the slab, but he escaped defeat and that leaves the road clear for him to prolong his streak, and try for a record. Yesterday was just one of those days for Burleigh that come to every pitcher at times. He wasn't on his right edge and lost his effectiveness because he tired. Grimes is not to be rated as lucky because of his escape. He pitched 11 innings in one game and saved two others this season for which he received no credit in the "Won" table. The fates still owe him a break or two.

THE major league clubs have only today, tomorrow and Saturday during which they may trade or purchase big-show players. Baseball law will clamp down the lid at midnight Saturday, and after that time athletes can be transferred from one major league team to another only by the waiver route.

Nothing in the line of deals has developed since the closed season for bartering began to draw near, but that does not mean that no dickers have been attempted. Several propositions and counter-propositions are known to have been made, so there is a chance that something will yet go through before Saturday night.

Ed Morris.

ONE proposed deal that has failed thus far, according to New York reports is a trade suggested by the Yankees for Ed Morris, crack young right-hand pitcher of the Red Sox. Morris has not made an impressive record in the victory column this season, as he is credited with only five wins against six defeats, and has lost four of his last five games. But that is due to the fact that he is pitching for a tail-end club that has averaged only two victories per week. Miller Huggins knows he is a great pitcher and was so eager to get that he offered no fewer than five players in exchange for him.

THE offer is said to have included Outfielders Ben Paschal and Cedric Durst and one of the Yanks' second-string infielders, and Huggins also agreed to turn over to Boston any two New York pitchers except Waite Hoyt, Herb Pennock, George Pipgras and Henry Johnson. Some cash may have been offered, too, but it did not tempt Bill Carrigan.

The Red Sox manager, like Huggins, knows the exceptional individual value of Morris and he flatly refused to consider a deal, saying it would be suicide to let Morris get away from Boston. Whether the Yanks will try to reopen negotiations later in the week remains to be seen. Some of the other clubs are known to be "talking trade" among themselves, but it is not certain that anything will come of it.

BEFORE the Braves left Pittsburgh recently, Rabbit Maranville took time out to unburden himself of a few words about some of the modern big league magnates. "I read with interest what Johnny Evers had to say in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph about past and present conditions in baseball," said the Rabbit, "and was particularly interested in his statement that it would pay ball players to meet the magnates half way and to trust to their fairness.

Rabbit Maranville.

"Now, that's all well and good as far as the old-school magnates were concerned. They were real baseball men and true sportsmen, and their word was good. But it doesn't go for some of the moguls who have come into baseball in recent years.

"THESE latter are not baseball men. The game to them is solely a cold business proposition and all that they ever try to figure is how they can make the greatest amount of money. They'll promise anything to gain a point and then they'll forget all about the promise. It burns me up every time I think of the deal I got from the St. Louis National League club. When I went to that team in 1927 and then signed to stay for 1928, the club officials gave me to understand that there was no limit to what they would do for me if I'd go along with them and do the right thing. They would take care of me in the future in a way that could not fail to please me. I played my head off for them in 1928, did my bit to the best of my ability to help the Cardinals win the pennant, and then how did they keep

Interesting Folks Caught by Camera at Forbes Field

LAWTON FONTAINE — HOWARD HARPSTER

Lawton Fontaine is an Ohio State athlete who has been working out, along with Howard Harpster, all-America quarterback of Carnegie Tech, and Bill Hinchman, Jr., pitcher and football and basketball star of Ohio State, with the Pirates at Forbes Field. Bill Hinchman, Sr., former Pirate outfield star, now is a scout for the Corsairs. Fritz Wilson is a son of George M. Wilson, local clothier, and is a star pitcher. He had a tryout with the Brooklyn club during the series recently concluded here.

EXPECT PEACE TO REIGN AT CONFAB

By TOM BIRKS.
Staff Correspondent.

CLEVELAND, June 13.—Official soccerdom is gathered on the shores of Lake Erie, for beginning today the Ohio State Football Association will play host to the United States Soccer Football Association, which will hold its annual convention at the Hotel Statler here. The sessions will end Saturday.

Delegates from Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and all of the states along the Atlantic coast arrived here this morning, and while the convention does not actually, officially open until tomorrow, the meeting of the National Commission, the executive body of the U. S. F. A. tonight is usually filled with plenty of interest. Most of the perplexing problems confronting the national officers are threshed out at this session.

EXPECT QUIET SESSION

The usual fight at a National convention hinges around the election of officers for the ensuing year. But this year nothing is expected in the way of changing from the present personnel.

Soccer fans from all over the country are eager to see Armstrong Patterson, of Detroit, have another year as president of the National body. The Detroit man has been wonderfully successful, especially against the operations of the Eastern Professional League, and no president ever had such a tough problem as the one that confronted Patterson in his first year in office.

So with the president retaining his office, and no moving up to be done nothing in the way of playing politics is expected unless one of the vice presidents should resign. But this is not expected.

The Ohio State Football Association is outdoing itself to provide the delegates with an enjoyable time during their stay here. All kinds of entertainment is being provided and will be climaxed with the banquet for the delegates Saturday evening.

BALSARINI INVITED

The National amateur cup committee has invited Manager Ernest Balsarini to the banquet to receive

DAWSON VICTOR AT SANDWICH

SANDWICH, England, June 13.—(AP.)—John Dawson, Chicago, won his way into the sixth round of the British amateur golf championship this afternoon when he defeated S. L. McKinley, Glasgow, 2 up and 1 to play.

Dawson had to beat two Scotsmen and a British gale to win his way to the quarter finals. Edward Kyle was a victim of Dawson's steadiness in the morning, while the Chicago lad came from behind to win from McKinlay in the afternoon. Tomorrow morning Dawson

GRIMES CHASED BY GIANTS

The "percentage" is still being played by John McGraw; he played it yesterday, and on the one chance knocked Burleigh Grimes off the rubber, with the aid of Freddie Lindstrom. Grimes was tiring in the sixth as he faced Lindstrom with the bases jammed, two out and two runs needed to deadlock. The first three pitches were balls.

Grimes took the red bandana from his hip pocket, doffed his cap and wiped the perspiration from his brow. Twelve thousand voices

Fans to Honor Steve Swetonic At Banquet

Steve Swetonic's home friends will pay him a big tribute at the North Side Elks' Temple Thursday, June 27. The event will be in the nature of a testimonial dinner which will be attended by members of the Pittsburgh club, including Owner Barney Dreyfuss and Manager Donie Bush. The Reds will be in town on that date and they, too, have accepted an invitation to attend.

The committee in charge of the arrangements is made up of close friends of the Pirate pitcher. P. E. (Hap) Moran is chairman of the committee. All reservations for the dinner must be made by Saturday, June 22. Same can be arranged by calling Chairman Moran, Linden 2444, or W. J. Graham, Atlantic 5720.

Greetings, Jawn!

WALKER MAY FACE BUCS FOR M'GRAW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

The Pirates today were in a joyful mood as they looked forward to the second clash of the big series with the Giants. Taking advantage of the "breaks" again yesterday, the Oaklanders rode to a 7-to-6 triumph over the New Yorkers in the fiercest contest of the season at Forbes Field. The Pittsburgh success gave the home boys a better grip on first place over the closeup Cardinals, who were idle.

Jess Petty, despite the poor form he has been showing, will go to Fogarty Knoll this afternoon in what may be a battle of lefthanders. Southpaw Bill Walker is all primed for slab duty for the men of McGraw.

JONES AT SHORT

Manager Bush will send Ceburn Jones to short in the second game. Harry Riconda went to the position yesterday, the Italian boy making three successive hits off the southpaw pitching, but when the enemy hurling changed to the other class, Jones went to the spot.

The opening clash of the warm rivals was a corker from the first pitch until the dramatic close, which saw Pie Traynor and Boots Grantham in heroic roles. Pie singled with two out in the last round to score Lloyd Waner with the tying run and when Bill Terry and Mel Ott slipped up on Grantham's soak down the first-base line, the fleet Pittsburgh captain whirled the rest of the distance as 12,000 fans set up a terrific din.

GRIMES GET BREAK

Burleigh Grimes did not win his game, neither did he see his winning streak snapped, although it seemed as if Burleigh was to be charged with his first setback as late as two out in the ninth. The dynamic ending gave the verdict to Heinie Meine, the St. Louis Dutchman, thus gaining his first success as a Pirate. Meine went to the mound in the seventh and let the Giants down with one hit over the remainder of the scrap.

McGraw had Carl Hubbell, of no-hit fame, all dolled up for the Forbes Field opener, but the tall southpaw was on his way to the showers in the fourth inning. The home batters put over a five-hit attack on Carl in the first inning to score three runs and the youngster was not the same after that round. He made way for a pinch-hitter in the fourth, Dutch Henry and Jack Scott finishing.

Grimes bowed to a National League attack for the first time this season with two out in the sixth. Lindstrom's single with the bases packed and two out tied up the fight, and Burleigh, after a short conference with Manager Bush, left the mound, a tired pitcher. Fred Fussell came in and was nicked for a double by Ott that scored two Giants' runs, and the outlook was gloomy when Jack Scott stepped to the slab with a lot of stuff.

WIN IN NINTH

The Pirates scored a run in the seventh and had two other runners at third and first with only one out and Grantham up, but Scott fanned Boots and kept a one-run lead.

CAM TO STAY

ELKINS, W. Va., June 13.—(AP.)—Cam Henderson and Jennings Randolph, coach and director of athletics, respectively, at Davis and Elkins College, will return to the school the coming year, it was announced today. Henderson will begin his seventh year, while Randolph will start on his fourth.

BILLY ALGER TEARING-IN FIGHTER

Billy Alger, the Phoenix (Ariz.) welterweight, who meets Joe Dundee, world champion of the division, in the 10-round main bout in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, next Monday night, is a club fighter type of mixer. That is to say, he is of the tearing-in, rugged order that gladdens the hearts of the spectators, rather than the clever-boxing, dancing and prancing, safety-first performer.

Billy Alger

Alger has met virtually all the stars in his class, from Ace Hudkins on down the line, and always is in shape to battle any of them. When Joe Simonich turned down the opportunity to box Dundee here, after his manager had accepted the match, Alger jumped at the chance to take his place. He is managed by the famous Charley Harvey, who brought along Tom Heeney to the point where he cleaned up the heavyweight contenders to earn the right to box Gene Tunney in the latter's farewell appearance in the ring last year. Harvey will accompany Billy here and will be on exhibition in the ring with his equally famous Better 'Ole mustache.

BROTHER AIDS DUNDEE

Dundee is doing his training for Monday's battle in his own gymnasium in Baltimore, while Alger is working out in New York, where he makes his headquarters. Dundee boasts one of the smallest gyms in the land. He likes to work in close quarters with a large corps of sparring mates, including his brother, Vince Dundee, one of the leading contenders for his mantle. Vince defeated Izzy Grove, of New York, in Newark, N. J., last Monday night and immediately returned to Baltimore to help Joe get ready for his clash with Alger.

Jackie Fields, of California, against whom Dundee defends his title in a 15-round bout in Detroit, July 11, is following Dundee's plan of prepping himself for that test. Two nights after Dundee boxes here, Fields will meet Jackie Horner in a 10-round bout in St. Louis, his final bout before establishing himself in training quarters near Detroit for the big event.

Dundee is receiving a guarantee of $50,000 for the Fields battle and Jackie is taking the short end, although he is recognized by the National Boxing Association as the welterweight champion, as a result of defeating Young Jack Thompson in a recent bout in Chicago, where Thompson knocked out Dundee in two rounds in a non-title match.

NEW ARENA OPENS

Two boxing shows are scheduled in Western Pennsylvania tonight. At Junction Park, New Brighton, Matchmaker Ray Foutis offers his opening show in the dancing pavilion arena, which shortly will be supplanted by a modern boxing bowl, patterned along the lines of the Meyers Bowl and the Jolly Bowl, of New Castle. He has Young Rudy, of Charleroi, meeting Dick Ramies, Mexican, of California, in the 10-round main bout; Joe Todd, of Donora, battling Eddie Anderson, of Washington, Pa., and Lou Sanders, of Beaver Falls, opposing Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, in the six-round bouts and Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, making his professional debut against Jackie King, of Wampum, and Nick Malone, of Freedom, mixing with Young Jacobs, of Canonsburg, in the two four-rounders. At the Washington (Pa.) Gardens, Eddie Reed, Negro, of Philadelphia, who has been going great guns around Erie, meets Battling Gizzy, of Donora, in the 10-round main bout of a show originally scheduled for last Monday night.

Steve Smith, of Bridgeport, Conn., who recently boxed Benny Bass at the Meyers Bowl in North Braddock, meets Mickey Cohen, of Denver, at Kansas City next Monday night.

HOW MAXIE SHAPES UP

Following are the physical measurements of Max Schmeling, the German Dempsey, who meets Paulino Uzcudun in the 15-round elimination bout featuring the Milk Fund show under the auspices of Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's committee at the Yankee Stadium, New York, June 27: Ankle, 10 inches; calf 15½ inches; thigh, 23 inches; hips, 38½ inches; waist, 33 inches; chest, normal, 41 inches; chest, expanded, 44 inches; neck, 17 inches; wrist, 8 inches; fist, 14 inches; forearm, 13½ inches; biceps, 14 inches; reach, 75 inches; height, 6 feet 1 inch; weight, 187 pounds.

Four 10-round heavyweight bouts are scheduled at the Sesqui-Centennial Stadium, Philadelphia, next Monday night. Matt Adgie and Leo Lomski are in the main event and the others are: Al Walker vs. Jack Gross, Ace Clark vs. Big Boy Peterson and Tom Toner vs. Tony Talarico. Walker knocked out Gross in the tenth round last winter; Toner is a cousin of Philadelphia Jack O'Brien; Talarico is a sparring partner of Lomski and Clark holds a knockout victory over Ike McFowler and is bigger than George Godfrey.

Monte Sirko, of Oakland, now boxing under the name of Spike Griffo, has been engaged to play the part of the fighting chauffeur in the play "Is Zat So?" to be presented by the George Sharp Players at the Pitt Theater next week. The role was created by Jack Perry, former local welterweight boxer.

CEDER TO BOX BELMONT

Rudy Ceder, of Tarentum, and Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, two of the hardest hitters in the district, have been matched for the eight-round semi-final to the Dundee-Alger bout. This figures to be one of the best slugfests of the local season. Jackie Murray boxes Joe Colombo and Eddie Guba will clash with Johnny Michaels in the other preliminaries.

Jack Dorval, heavyweight, former protege of Jack Kearns, boxes Les Marriner at Chicago tonight. Jake Zeramby meets Sammy Fuller at Boston and Petey Mack opposes Sid Terris at Bayonne, N. J.

Work was begun yesterday on elevating the last seven rows of ringside seats at the Meyers Bowl and it will be completed in time for the Dundee-Alger show next Monday night.

LOWRIE-REDMOND WIN

William Lowrie, chairman of the golf committee, and Jack Redmond, internationally famous trick shot artist, defeated Wally Thompson, club champion, and Charley Manning, professional, 3 up and 1 to play, in their special exhibition match at the Shannopin Country Club yesterday afternoon. The victors were 3 up at the end of the ninth hole.

Following the golf match, Redmond gave an interesting exhibition of trick shots, and was master of ceremonies at a special party, which marked the opening of the summer season, in the evening.

Davis Scores Ace On Ambridge Links

George Lawrence Davis is among the golf elite—that is to say, he has scored a hole in one. Davis' ace came on the second hole at the Ambridge Country Club, which is a 229-yard par 3 affair, and he used a driver. It was the first hole in one ever negotiated on the hole, and the second in the history of the course.

The lucky Ambridge player was playing with C. K. Kanne and Bob Mytinger. Davis is chairman of the club's handicap committee, and has been playing at Ambridge four years.

O'Leary, One-Eye Connolly Here To Exhibit

Dan O'Leary, who won the world walking championship in 1878 and who has been walking for the last 89 years, is to give an exhibition of his heel-and-toe artistry at Forbes Field tomorrow or Saturday.

O'Leary arrived here this morning and announced that he intended to make Pittsburgh his home for the remainder of the week. He proposes to round the bases six times in five minutes, while One-Eye Connolly attempts to crash the Forbes Field gate.

Connolly trailed O'Leary by some 10 minutes in the race into Pittsburgh this morning.

ST. CLAIR BOYS TO QUALIFY TOMORROW

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

The St. Clair Country Club is going to qualify its caddie team tomorrow morning for the second annual Western Pennsylvania junior amateur golf tournament for the William Randolph Hearst trophy, being sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, and which will be held at the Schenley Park links, Thursday, July 11. Caddiemaster Howard S. (Red) Ramdby, of the popular St. Clair club, expects about 50 boys eligible to the tournament will play in the event, which will go the full limit of 18 holes.

According to prevailing circumstances at the various clubs, it makes little difference whether caddies qualify at nine holes or 18 holes—but they must qualify. Eighteen teams from country clubs must be qualified between now and five days prior to the tournament, or July 6, except those caddies who work at far distant clubs, wherein it would be too expensive for a regular team to participate. Their individual entries will be considered.

The tournament is open to all amateur golfers 18 years of age and under, who do not attend classes above high school grades, and this includes the caddies who are caddying right now, yet who have not attained their sixteenth birthday. Caddies would do well to take note of the fact that if one is 16 years of age now, or will be between now and July 11, he is ineligible. Of course, if a boy will be 16 between now and the time of the tourney, and makes his club team—he can stop caddying the day before his birthday and not caddie again until after the tournament, and he will maintain an amateur status.

There is no entry or playing fee, but all contestants must provide their own clubs and balls. Caddies entering club qualifying rounds should first file an entry blank with the Golf Tournament Editor, as this is necessary to qualification.

If there are caddies at any club eligible to play, and their club apparently refuses to co-operate in permitting a qualifying round to be played, it would be well for the caddiemaster to advise the Golf Tournament Editor, so that proper steps may be taken for such a qualifying round.

The entry list is growing fast—it's almost 150 now. Indications are that it will be one of the largest fields ever to enter a one-day tourney, with a list totalling more than 1,000 after the last one has been counted.

There is no limit on residence. One can live in Pittsburgh, Chicago, 'Frisco or Boston, and still enter, if he can provide sufficient proof for his amateur status. Neither does one have to be a member of a club.

GET YOUR ENTRY IN NOW! There's a blank herewith in the sporting section. Fill it in, have it properly signed—and mail it immediately.

The latest entries to the tourney follows:

GEORGE McCOULLUM, 15, 1412½ Hunter street, Wilkinsburg, Pa., Grade S-A, Wilkinsburg Junior High. He caddies at Pup's Foot Country Club.

MIKE BAKOS, 15, Cown road, Brentwood Borough. Grade 9-B, Knoxville High. He caddies at South Hills.

DEMPSEY GETS PHILLY OFFER

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—(AP.)—Joseph Kennedy, local boxing promoter, called at the office of Mayor Harry A. Mackey today and announced that he is prepared to offer Jack Dempsey $500,000 to meet George Godfrey, Negro giant, in a 10-round bout at the Municipal Stadium late in September or early in October.

Kennedy said he would give Dempsey $100,000 as soon as he signed a contract and suggested that Mayor Mackey act as stakeholder for the balance. The promoter said the proposal had been approved by Frank Wiener, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission, and that he would submit the offer to Dempsey in a few days.

New Starting Gate Planned for Races

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—The Westchester Racing Association has decided to discard the Australian starting gate after a disastrous trial at Belmont Park. Joseph E. Widener, president of the association made the announcement that it would be scrapped and that the new Mars Cassidy starting gate would be given a trial at Saratoga. Mr. Widener said that Richard T. Wilson, president of the Saratoga Association had agreed to take three of the new barriers, the invention of the veteran starter, which are released mechanically instead of electrically. The failure of the electric system to work on the opening day of the Belmont meeting caused a serious accident to Jockey Eddie Watters.

Grays Play Loop Leaders Here Today

Hitting is what wins baseball games, and the Homestead Grays have been doing their share of it recently, so that they have their bats sharpened up for the four-game series with the Baltimore Blacksox, which opens at Forbes Field at 6:30 o'clock this evening. In their last four games the Grays have crashed out a total of 68 hits, an average of 17 per game, and they have eight straight victories to their credit.

Sam Streeter or Smoky Joe Williams will be trotted out for mound duty this evening by Posey, while the invaders will probably rely on their mound ace, Yokely, a lad who defeated the Grays last season at Baltimore.

M'GRAW RUNS GIANTS FROM WATER TANK

By JESS CARVER.

Yesterday was a great day in baseball. The Pirates stole some of John McGraw's stuff with a "pull-it-out-of-the-fire" win over them Giants; the A's reversed the Cub-Philly score on the Chisox; the Yanks let the Browns win one and the Red Sox didn't get a lickin'—they didn't play.

Say what you please, this Giant ball club remains the most colorful outfit in either league, with the possible exception of the Yanks. Babe Ruth is the only thing that can outdraw 'em. A bit of body checking by Melvin (Zero) Ott in the ninth yesterday and they'd have hung one on the Bucs.

Still daring the boys to call him "Muggsy," McGraw kept the water cooler in the Giant dugout company and directed his team's play from his favorite spot. About 12,000 other master minds tried to run the club from the stands.

GIANTS ARE TONIC

The arrival of the Giants in Pittsburgh serves as a tonic for the game here. Despite the fact that our team has been "up there" for two weeks, baseball interest here hasn't been better than lukewarm. Yesterday the cash customers and the guys who got passes phoo-phooed the threat of rain at game time and turned out in fair fashion.

The thrills provided by yesterday's tussle served to soothe the blisters raised by scorching remarks leveled by sundry wives as sundry husbands arrived home for late suppers.

Police arrested two Scotchmen caught with augurs outside the center field fence. Both proved to be two other fellows from Syracuse.

PITCHING STRATEGY

Grimes looked on the wrong page to see what he should pitch to Fred Lindstrom in the sixth. The Giants must have thrown the entire book away in the ninth.

Chaperoned by the dignified Col. Bozeman Bulger, and Dr. Bill Brandt, 11 New York baseball writers are encamped here with the Giants. If they had a ball they could have a football team.

When the New York writers come to town, the local scribes blow themselves to clean collars. And wear vests.

Keystone Billiard Tourney Tonight

The bi-monthly rapid-fire billiards tournament at the Keystone Athletic Club will be held tonight, beginning at 8 o'clock, in the club billiard rooms.

Entered in the tournament are: H. A. Boschert, a scratch man; H. L. Kealy, Edwin Pieri and C. H. McCandless, who play 25; D. W. Boss, A. R. Dunn, R. T. Brown and A. E. Shelgren, who play 26.

Jacobs, Bell Win In Maryland Play

BALTIMORE, June 13.—(AP.)—Berkeley Bell, of Texas, defending champion; two other Texans, Bruce Barnes and Hugh Dunlap; three Oregonians, Bradshaw Harrison, Henry Neer and Sherman Lockwood; Gerald Huff, Southern Methodist University; Clifford Sutter, Tulane University, Southern Conference champion, and Eddie Jacobs, Pittsburgh star, out of which group is expected to emerge the 1929 champion, are still in the running at the close of the first day's play in the Maryland state tennis tournament, which advanced to the fourth round yesterday.

Jacobs stayed in the running by defeating the fourth of the Texas quartet, Earl Taylor, 6-4, 1-6, 6-1. Bell had an easy time with Alex Criles, Baltimore, winning 6-1, 6-0.

Tad's Immortal Fight Stories

By TAD

(For 30 years, Tad (T. A. Dorgan), one of the greatest cartoonists and sports authorities, covered the "fight game." Shortly before his death, recently, he wrote and illustrated a score of stories describing, in his inimitable style, those ring battles which for thrills and sensationalism were stamped indelibly in his mind. These reminiscences deal not only with fights in which titles were at stake, but also with thrilling affairs staged in private and at the smaller clubs. This story is one of the series. Others will follow.)

THE rabbit punch ended the late Bill Brennan's chance for the heavyweight title in the twelfth round of his bout with Jack Dempsey at the old Madison Square Garden on December 14, 1920.

The old punch that is dreaded by all fighters, barred in Australian rings and made famous years ago by Milburn Saylor, is the one that Dempsey used on the stout-hearted Brennan.

It was a see-saw battle in which blood flowed freely and the champion was manhandled quite a bit.

The end came after 1 minute 15 seconds of fighting in the twelfth round.

Dempsey, cut and bleeding, lowered his head and waded into the tired Brennan. There was a mix-up in the center of the ring. They broke and Dempsey missed a long left swing for Bill's head. The latter then started a right hand to the champion's jaw, but, just as it got half way, Jack dug up a left to the pit of Bill's stomach. Brennan folded up like an accordion, his head almost touching his knees. Dempsey waited for only a fraction of a second. Raising his right he brought it down like a trip-hammer on the back of Brennan's neck. It was the old rabbit punch.

BRENNAN fell to the floor slowly. The crowd got to its feet as the referee started to toll off the seconds. Bill couldn't get his head off the floor, try as he would. He seemed to be boring through the floor of the ring like a gimlet. He squirmed and swayed as the seconds passed, and Dempsey, fox-like, stayed behind him—a trick that bewilders a dazed man as he gets up to fight. Bill looked for his opponent, but couldn't locate him.

But Bill didn't get up. Up and down went Referee Haukop's right hand. It seemed fully a minute. Everyone seemed to be trying to help the game Brennan to his feet. At the count of 10 he did get up, but he fell on the ropes in a neutral corner.

Dempsey, not knowing that 10 had been counted, stepped toward Brennan to put the finishing touch to the picture. The referee grabbed Jack's right arm, telling him it was all over.

Brennan was helped to his corner by his seconds amid the cheers of the mob.

No heavyweight champion in the history of the ring had the close call that Dempsey had that night. Overtrained, nervous and off his game altogether, the champion put up a very poor fight.

He was not the Dempsey we saw at Toledo, neither was he the Dempsey of Benton Harbor. His cheeks were drawn, he was pale and trembled like a leaf as photographers posed him with Brennan before the fight.

He had left everything he owned in the gym. He reminded us of the fellow who bet that he could drink a quart of whisky in an hour—he made the bet, and half an hour before the time set for the feat drank a quart to try himself out.

BRENNAN, the fellow the wise guys expected to see carried out after a round or two, surprised the crowd, the wise guys and even his handlers, with the battle he put up. Not once during the fight did he turn tail on the champion. Instead, he seemed to welcome mixups. He walked into Jack at the start of the fight and electrified everyone. Toe to toe he fought round after round.

True, his punch wasn't as deadly as Dempsey's—lucky for Jack it wasn't.

In the second round, he sent Dempsey reeling to the ropes with a right-hander to the point of the chin and followed it up with two lefts flush on the champion's mouth. It was a surprise—the mouse turning on the cat, the calf pasting the butcher.

Dempsey weathered it and then kept jolting Bill with short lefts and rights in close. Round after round he jolted the Chicago man. They were short blows, but they were killing Bill.

Dempsey's long left and right usually missed their marks, but in close he simply butchered Brennan. Bill became slower and slower, but he fought with the heart of a lion. He fought right up to the last.

Release Faces Yankee Hurler

NEW YORK, June 13.—(INS.)—One member of the New York Yankees is slated to "get the axe" within the next two days, as a result of the club's acquisition of Boots Nekola, Holy Cross pitcher, bringing the New York roster to one above the 25-player limit. It is believed that Myles Thomas, right-hand pitcher who was knocked out of the box by the St. Louis Browns yesterday, will be the victim. Thomas has been with the club four years, but has been used seldom.

Yesterday the Yanks placed Floyd Van Pelt, another pitcher, on the voluntary retired list. Van Pelt, who has a lame arm, will go home to West Point, Tenn.

Meredith Hopkins, captain of the University of Texas nine, who came here for a tryout with the Hugmen, has signed with the Jersey City International League Club.

SALO BETTER, GAINS GROUND IN DERBY

JACUMBA, Calif., June 13.—(AP).—Johnny Salo, of Passaic, N. J., reduced Pete Gavuzzi's lead in the trans-continental bunion derby to 19 minutes and 56 seconds, by winning yesterday's lap, 58 miles of gruelling, up-hill running, from the Italian.

The Passaic policeman, who until yesterday, had been ailing with stomach trouble, sliced 35 minutes and 50 seconds from Gavuzzi's elapsed time lead in the stretch between Calexico and Jacumba, partly over desert and partly over mountainous grades. His time for the 58 miles was nine hours, nine minutes and five seconds.

UMEK SECOND

Giusto Umek, of Italy, was second in the day's lap, turning in a time of 9 hours, 22 minutes and 50 seconds at the control station here. Gavuzzi pulled in third in 9:44:55.

Pat Harrison, of Miami, Ariz., was fourth across the finish line, coming in nearly two hours later. His time was 11 hours, 4 minutes, and 20 seconds.

Five runners finished in a tie for fifth place: Herbert Hedeman, of New York; Phillip Granville, Hamilton, Ont.; M. B. McNamara, Australia; Sam Richman, New York, and Paul Simpson, Burlington, N. C., collegian, deadlocked at 11:41:20.

STRETCH DIFFICULT

The stretch was considered one of the stiffest yet encountered by the coast-to-coast runners, but Salo, in form again, averaged better than six miles an hour for the distance. The runners climbed from the floor of the desert to an elevation of about 3,000 feet. Today they will head for San Diego, 76 miles distant, whence they turn northward the following day.

Baker is one of the youngest golfers in the club. His shot was perfectly played, the ball hitting only a few inches from the cup and rolling in.

M'NEIL DROPPED

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 13.—(AP.)—Norman McNeil has been released as manager of the local club of the Middle Atlantic League. Martin Fiedler, third baseman for Scottdale, has signed to succeed McNeil, who managed the Johnnies in 1925 and 1926 when they won pennants.

MALONE STEALS PLAY FROM VANCE

By LES CONKLIN.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Babe Ruth, the ailing home run monarch, is not the only baseball king in danger of losing his crown. Dazzy Vance, champion strikeout artist of the National League, who, like Ruth, has been handicapped by illness, is running a poor third in his specialty to Perce (Pat) Malone, the Cubs' fast-ball pitcher.

Malone, who was second only to Vance last season with 135 strikeouts to an even 200 for the Brooklyn mound ace, is leading the National League today with 55 for 11 games. He struck out 12 of the Phillies yesterday. Karl Hubbell, of the Giants, runner-up in the race with a total of 41, lost ground when he was shelled off the mound by the Pirates without fanning a single batter.

MAY GAIN TODAY

Vance has a total of only 34, but has worked in only seven games. He will have a chance to draw closer to the leaders today, being scheduled to work against the Reds.

Malone's 7-to-3 win over the Phils put the Cubs only 10 percentage points behind the second-place Cardinals, who were idle.

The league-leading Pirates gained half a game on the Cards by nosing out the Giants, 7 to 6. The McGrawmen apparently put the game on ice with a five-run rally in the sixth when they knocked out Burleigh Grimes, their ancient nemesis, but the Bucs won out in the ninth when Master Melvin Ott posed as a croquet wicket and let Grantham's hit roll through his legs.

YANKS SWAMPED

Making seven hits and eight runs in the third inning, the Browns swamped the Yankees, 9 to 4, for their first triumph over the champions in seven starts this season. Myles Thomas, making his first start for New York in nearly two years, finished in 2 1-3 innings.

The Athletics, rolling along faster than old man river himself, polished off the White Sox for the third game in succession, 7 to 3, and increased their lead over the Yanks to eight games. The Macks nicked Lyons for five runs in the first two innings, while Rube Walberg had no trouble in chalking up his seventh victory of the campaign.

The Senators knocked Willis Hudlin off the mound, but couldn't do any business with Joe Shaute, and Cleveland came from behind to beat the Nats by a 9-to-5 count.

Other teams did not play.

cheered him, like the folks of Mudville when Casey came up. The weakening star hurled one right down the alley and Lindstrom looked to his superiors for a sign. He got it. He was instructed to swing.

GRIMES RETIRED

Down the alley came the ball and Lindstrom's bat swished. There was a sharp echo and the rocket was whistling its way to right for a single, while two runs scampered over. The overworked pitcher plainly showed his distress. Manager Bush conferred with him and soon the undefeated star was on his way to a rest area.

Burleigh has been overworking his good right arm for nigh on to 20 years, counting his minor league days. As a rule he toils after three days of relaxation, yet there are times when he really should have the fourth day. At least he thinks so himself and his word ought to be his bond, judging by the manner in which he has acted in his Pittsburgh service.

ROUSH IN FORM

Speaking about veterans, didn't you think Eddie Roush looked pretty sweet out there yesterday? The former Red star is back in the form that made him one of the most valuable players in the National League over a long stretch of years.

Roush reached Grimes for three singles in the opener and he surely was scattering his punches. The veteran started the game with a whack against the right field wall, but P. Waner is a carom star of that plot and his pretty catch of the rebound was followed up by a perfect throw to Grantham, and Roush was nicked. It was a timely bit of fielding. Had Roush reached the middle bag the enemy might have jumped to the front at the outset.

Bob O'Farrell turned in the greatest play of the first game when he chased back to the stands for a capture of Paul Waner's ninth-inning foul. Runners were on second and first with none out when the wee slugger stepped up to do or die, as it were. A bunt would have advanced the important tallies, but Paul swung from Borough Hall. O'Farrell had his back to the diamond as he gathered in the loft, but he turned and made a perfect peg to Lindstrom in time to cut down Brickell with the tying counter.

MATES CHEER BOB

O'Farrell received a big hand from his New York mates as he put over this feature number. The gem looked like the winning bit, but Traynor was still in the reckoning. The 12,000 experienced a genuine thrill as Capt. Pie lambasted his single to center that scored Brother Lloyd.

Mel Ott probably will know better next time, but he did not use caution as he ran up on Grantham's single through Terry. It was bad enough for Memphis Bill to leave the gate open, but Ott should have stopped the rolling rocket even if he had to get his body in the way of it. Such a move would have held Traynor on third. When the sphere rolled past Mel, it was "just too bad" for the Giants.

School Star

MISS HELEN BRENNER

Miss Brenner, recently graduated from Sharon (Pa.) High School, was the first girl athlete to win four letters in sport at that school. In the four seasons she was a member of the basketball team it lost only seven games. She played in the National tournaments at Youngstown and Wichita, Kan.

PETTY TO FACE GIANTS TODAY

Jack retired three Pirates in a row in the eighth, but Fred Brickell stepped from the Pirate dugout at the start of the ninth, and his pretty double proved to be the starting point of a winning rally.

The Pirates had to have a lot of luck to swing the verdict, but a club that hustles generally sways some "breaks:" at least, that is one of the unwritten traditions of the sport. A moment after Brickell doubled, Lloyd Waner, scorning a sacrifice, hit a bounder to Scott and would have been out had Jack held the ball. But the rocket got away from the pitcher, who was able to hold Brickell on second, yet Lloyd won a hit.

Up came Paul, but the Pirates had no luck on his offering. The slugger hoisted a foul back toward the screen. Bob O'Farrell made a remarkable catch of the loft and then followed through with a sensational double play, Brick being nipped at third as he tried to take a base after the capture of the foul. Brother Lloyd took advantage of the mixup to reach second.

Capt. Pie came up and delivered just what the doctor ordered for Pirate fans. Traynor slammed a hot single to center, and Lloyd rode over under a barrage of cheers. Grantham's grounder to Terry was not such a hot hit, and therein lies all the gloom that is in the New York camp today. Bill could not get the ball, and it rolled merrily to right for a scratch single. Traynor, meantime, streaked for third, when, lo and behold, the ball eluded Mel Ott, who was charged with an error, and Traynor rushed across with the winning run.

MAX IMPRESSES CARPENTIER IN CAMP

LAKEWOOD, N. J., June 13.—(AP.)—Gorgeous Georges Carpentier, trim and lean as that sultry July day in 1921 when a heavyweight crown trembled for a moment under the crash of fists, stood on the outside of a training ring looking in.

The Orchid Man of France rubbed his chin carelessly against the top rope and stared at the labors of a husky youth the knowing speak of carelessly as "another Dempsey." It was the Old Jack Dempsey, a scowling, punching savage in those days, who took the best Carpentier had to offer in the second round of the first "battle of the century"—took it, trembled, and came back to crush the gallant Frenchman in two more rounds.

WATCHES ACTION

For six rounds Carpentier watched Max Schmeling, the German Dempsey in appearance, maul three sparring partners around the ring. He never took his eyes from the action as his head swayed and his body instinctively hunched now and then from blows that were flying in the ring.

Then is was over and the Orchid Man, probably the handsomest survivor of a Dempsey engagement, tilted a natty gray hat over one section of his forehead, sunk his hands deep in the pockets of a perfectly tailored light suit, and beamed on the war correspondents.

"I can't tell you who I think will win the bout between Schmeling and Paulino Uzcudun—at least not here," he said in easy English, learned in France after his first trip to America. "In many ways this Schmeling does look like Dempsey, but—" the Frenchman smiled and those who remembered the Dempsey of eight years ago smiled and understood too.

"Schmeling is a better boxer than I thought he was, but he is wide open and easy to hit. I don't like to see the ease with which his sparring partners clout him. Paulino hits fast and hard and often and you can't tell where the punches are coming from.

"The German is loose and very fast for a big man. He punched quickly, too, and very hard with the right. He must be careful to keep away from Paulino and box always."

His dictum rendered, Carpentier moved away from there, stepped into his big foreign car, and rolled back to New York to continue discussions of stage offers that brought him overseas again. While he did not say so, Georges left the impression that he believes Uzcudun, once a member of the stable of his old manager, Francois Descamps, will overpower the German sensation in the 15-round Milk Fund battle at the Yankee Stadium June 17.

Long's Sport Comment

their promise to me. I was discarded overnight. Evers doesn't know some of the modern moguls, evidently. There are some whose word I would not take on anything."

THAT saving a particular pitcher beyond his regular turn, in order to send him against a certain club, does not always work out successfully, was shown again yesterday. It was Carl Hubbell's turn to work against Cincinnati on Tuesday, but on account of his having pitched a no-hit game against the Bucs last month Manager McGraw saved him for the Pirate opener and sent him to Pittsburgh a day in advance, using Fred Fitzsimmons instead against the Reds for the second time in four days.

But there is such a thing as a pitcher getting too much rest between games as well as not getting enough. That fact, and that it is questionable whether it is worth while to save a pitcher for a particular club, was made clear by the way in which the Pirates manhandled Hubbell. They nicked him for five hits in the first inning, and made eight hits and four runs off him before he was lifted out of the proceedings after three innings. The Pirates have beaten the southpaw three times in five meetings since he joined the Giants last year.

THE crowd of 12,000 that turned out to see the first game of the Pirate-Giant series, and it would have been larger but for an afternoon shower, was a refreshing sight to the business officials of the Giants. They reported that the gates at previous stops on the Western trip had been very poor.

"Our Western trip has been a disappointing one from a business standpoint, as far as two cities were concerned," said Secretary Jim Tierney. "We did well enough in Chicago, but in St. Louis we drew only 11,000 paid admissions in three games. There were only 3,000 out for Saturday's game in Cincinnati though there was a fair rate on Sunday." Indications are that the Giants will play to more people in Pittsburgh than at any other stop on their present tour. A bumper crowd is certain on Saturday.

Max Schmeling.

THE general opinion in fistic circles appears to be that Max Schmeling's greater speed and cleverness will enable him to defeat Paulino Uzcudun in the big charity show at New York on June 27. Reports that the German has been forced to let up in his training on account of a danger of going stale are not taken seriously. Mickey Walker, middlweight champion, estimates that Schmeling will enter the ring at about 188 pounds and will be at his best. "I was talking with his trainer, Max Maxhon," Walker is quoted, "and he told me there is no fear of Schmeling's going stale from overtraining. The German looks to be in fine fettle, yet I'm not convinced that he's going to have an easy time with the Woodchopper. Of course, when it comes to speed, Schmeling has it all over Paulino, but the latter is a strong, powerful fellow and no matter what you might think about it, he's the hard hombre to hurt."

PHILLY QUARTET IN ALTOONA GRIND

ALTOONA, June 13.—The "Four Horsemen of the Quaker City" will attempt to take added laurels "down East" Saturday when Philadelphia's contributions to gasoline alley battle it out with 12 other speed artists in the 200-mile international classic on the Altoona bowl.

Handing out as fine an array of drivers to ever enter the game, Philadelphia offers an Indianapolis winner, a youthful old-timer and a kid veteran.

Heading this talent is the outstanding driver of 1929, Ray Keech.

Having been in the game since the Milton-Murphy-Lockhart days, Zeke Meyer will take the role of the veteran.

In big time racing several years, just long enough to know what the crashing cylinders mean, Jimmy Gleason can ably fill the role of youthful old-timer. Gleason has been through all stages of the acid test, which proves a pilot's backbone from all night tuning of motors to crash at 100 miles and better per hour.

Jock Malone, Vet, Stopped on Coast

OAKLAND, Cal., June 13.—(AP.)—George Dixon, Negro middle weight, of Portland, Ore., today held a technical knockout victory over Jock Malone, veteran St. Paul fighter.

Dixon swarmed all over Malone in their bout here last night and the fight, scheduled a 10-round affair, was stopped in the fifth round after Malone suffered an inch-long cut on his upper lip.

In the first round, Malone was groggy from Dixon's terrific punches. Malone outboxed the Portland fighter in the second round, but from then on Dixon piled up a big lead by connecting right hand punches to Malone's jaw.

All boxes and grandstand seats have been sold and a crowd of 75,000 is anticipated, the track management has announced.

LOWER MONEY STIMULATES MARKET

Reduction of Call Rate To 7 Per Cent Revives Bull Activity in Stocks

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—Reduction in the call money rate to 7 per cent stimulated a revival of bullish activity in today's stock market. Buying continued to be of a rather selective character, however, with such important groups as the steels, motors, coppers and oils taking little part in the upswing.

Public utilities were again in the forefront of the advance, with the rails joining the upward movement in the afternoon trading.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent, dropped to 7½ and then to 7, presumably in reflection of the heavy accumulation of funds here in connection with mid-month dividend, interest and federal income tax payments. There was no quotable change in time money rates, but the undertone of the market was described as easier.

Wall street generally looks for a general relaxation in rates as soon as the July 1 payments are out of the way.

OILS NOT AFFECTED

There was little in the day's news to influence the price movement. Adjournment of the oil conservation congress at Colorado Springs without having reached an agreement caused disappointment in some quarters, but hope was still held out in trade circles that a satisfactory solution of the over-production problem would be found. Inasmuch as the oil shares had not rallied in anticipation of favorable action by the conference, there was relatively little selling of those issues on the announcement of the recess.

The spirited advance in the public utilities received its primary impetus from merger rumors, which involved practically every large company operating along the Atlantic seaboard. Commonwealth Power soared 9 points and American Water Works, North American and Standard Gas and Electric climbed 4½ to 5½ points, all to new high records. Peoples Gas jumped 10 points.

AUBURN AUTO SOARS

Auburn Auto continued its sensational gain by soaring 16 points to a new high record at 291, or 70 points above the low price recorded after its listing a few weeks ago. General Electric extended its gain to 10½ points by touching a new peak at 298½; Union Tank Car ran up more than 11 points, and Case Threshing Machine certificates, Johns Manville, Motion Pictures, Gillette Safety Razor and Safeway Stores sold 5 to 10 points higher. Underwood Elliott Fisher, Southern Dairies A, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Glidden Company all reached new high levels.

Atchison, which has been under rather steady pressure since President Storey denied rumors of a stock dividend, led the railroad group with an early gain of 6 points. New York Central moved up 3. Revival of activity and strength in the Erie issues was based on reports that the executive committee was considering the payment of dividends on the preferred issues.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, June 13.—With offerings here relatively scarce and with Liverpool wheat quotations higher than expected, Chicago wheat prices scored substantial gains early today. Improved prospects for enactment of the farm relief bill helped a decided upward trend to values both here and abroad, opening at ⅝ to 1¼ higher. Chicago wheat afterward continued to climb. Corn, oats and provisions also were firmer, with corn starting at ⅜ to 1¼ advance and subsequently rising still more.

In addition to the strengthening effect of a better outlook for farm relief, together with Liverpool quotations higher than due, advices telling of urgent need of rain in parts of Canada were a factor here today in lifting the wheat market. Especially throughout northern sections of the Canadian wheat belt, moisture was said to be seriously deficient. Argentine cables also referred to precarious crop conditions because of excessive dryness.

On the other hand, talk was current today that all the wheat needed could be bought free on board vessels in Galveston at ½ cent a bushel over the price of Chicago July delivery. It was added there was no export demand, but that wheat was being shipped to Galveston because that was the only immediate available storage outlet. When that opening is filled embargoes will abruptly stop the movement to all terminal markets, according to various predictions circulated here.

J. P. Morgan's Transformation Common Among Our Leaders

By B. C. FORBES

J. P. MORGAN is undergoing a change which is not uncommon among big men when they approach the sunset of life. The reporters were astounded when America's foremost financier consented to pose for photographers on board ship when he returned from the reparations conference in Paris. In the past he had uncompromisingly refused.

Here was, as someone remarked, "a new Morgan."

The fact is that the J. P. Morgan of today is quite a different man from the J. P. Morgan of only a few years ago.

IN this column, on October 20, 1927, this appeared:

"One of J. P. Morgan's intimates tells me:

"'Mr. Morgan has changed. As you know, he used to be quite brusque. He didn't sometimes take any great pains to save the sensibilities of others. In some respects he was very much like his father—excellent at heart, but aggressive in manner.

"'Mr. Morgan is not like that now. He has got over his brusqueness. His manners, instead of being autocratic, are now much more democratic.'

"Then he added this significant sentence:

"'All that Mr. Morgan wants now is to make and to keep a number of good, real friends.'"

IN agreeing to do as the photographers desired him to do, Mr. Morgan was simply living up to this latter-day self. He never was pugilistic. Only, he held himself aloof from the public. The late H. P. Davison had more to do than any other man with the modification of the Morgan attitude towards the press and the public. Harry did his best to convince Jack that he should be more accessible, more democratic, more cordial, that he should reveal himself to the people as the man his close associates knew him to be. Harry didn't make very rapid progress at first.

I well remember how, about that time, Davison, when an entirely unforeseen opportunity arose, affably attempted to have his chief adopt a more friendly attitude towards this particular member of the newspaper fraternity. But the kindly meant gesture fell flat. Mr. Morgan refused to thaw out, a fact for which Davison later expressed regrets, adding, "Mr. Morgan has a heart of gold, but it will take him time to come round to doing himself justice in the eyes of the public."

Mr. Morgan is coming round, all right.

MANY able, forceful men are cold, unapproachable, gruff, inconsiderate during their strenuous creative years. They are so completely engrossed in their affairs and ambitions that they give no thought nor time to kindliness towards any but their most intimate friends—and they have little time or inclination to make themselves especially pleasant even with them. Business is all-important. It comes not only first, but first, last and all the time. Affairs are more important than human beings.

Not a few of them become almost strangers to the members of their own family—at Atlantic City last week one woman referred to the wife of a multimillionaire utility man as having "lost her husband for years," an expression which struck me as somewhat odd in view of the fact that the couple have lived together all along and get on peaceably whenever he finds any time to spend at home.

AMONG the more conspicuous examples of business giants who experienced a mellowing process towards their fellow-mortals in the later stages of their life, have been John D. Rockefeller, towards whom public sentiment has undergone a remarkable transformation; Henry C. Frick, who waited rather long to soften and to cultivate the goodwill of the public; the late James Stillman, the banker, who waited altogether too long and finally was sorry for it; George F. Baker, who until a dozen years ago did nothing to gain popularity outside his own circle of admiring friends; George Eastman, who was completely immersed in business for many years, but who, sooner than many others, discovered the joy derivable from large-scale philanthropy; C. A. Coffin, founder of General Electric, who was a hard bargainer during most of his life, but later let down the bars; James B. Duke, Thomas Fortune Ryan, Anthony N. Brady, William M. Wood are among those who missed out by holding aloof overlong.

THE business and financial world could be made more human, more pleasant, less harsh, if its leaders did not suppress their better selves until late in the day.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP.)—Public utility stocks shot up 2 to 16 points today on the curb market under the leadership of the Northeastern United States Power group, which is reported being merged by J. P. Morgan & Co. interests. Several established high record prices for all time. Profit-taking cut down the gains in the later trading.

The general list moved irregularly higher in sympathy with the utilities. There were several weak spots in the high priced issues and in the oil and motor groups. The air stocks were under pressure, but the losses were mostly small fractions.

St. Regis Paper, which holds a controlling interest in Northeastern Power, made the widest gain, opening at 198¾, a record high and an overnight advance of 16¾ points. Profit-taking cut this gain more than in half. Northeastern Power established a new high, but eased off later. Common and A shares of Buffalo, Niagara and Eastern, controlled by the Schoellkopf interests and being brought under the Morgan banner, also scaled new peaks on a heavy turnover. Mohawk-Hudson Power, New York State Utility, controlled by the Morgan group through United Corporation, yielded to realizing. Niagara Shares, controlled by the Schoellkopf interests, sold at a record price.

Southeastern Power and Light stock and option warrants and Penn-Ohio Edison climbed up to new highs on announcement that Commonwealth and Southern Corporation would extend its exchange of stock offer to all stockholders.

For each share of Southeastern Power the holder will receive 4½ shares of Commonwealth and Southern common and 2¼ open warrants. Penn-Ohio Edison stockholders will receive 3½ shares and 1¾ warrants. Commonwealth and Southern advanced fractionally.

Checker Cab slumped more than six points on announcement Ford was seeking to enter the New York taxi field. Grigsby-Gruno was the weak feature of the radios. Crocker-Wheeler broke sharply, and Great Atlantic and Pacific was under pressure.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

SEASONAL LULL IN INDUSTRY IS MILD

Reduced Purchasing Power of Wheat Growers May Later Depress Business

NEW YORK, June 13.—Signs of seasonal slackening in basic lines of industry have been far less pronounced than usual, according to the current review of business conditions prepared by the Bank of America N. A.

"The situation in the wheat market, however," the review adds, "presented a less favorable aspect. Large supplies of wheat on hand, the prospect of an unusually heavy crop of winter wheat and the low price level which naturally resulted, may well reduce the purchasing power of a large proportion of the population. It is too soon, however, to judge the effect of these developments, since unfavorable weather conditions may yet reduce the size of the coming crop and materially alter the situation. Wheat prices made a partial recovery just after the close of the month, apparently on the expectation that the government would give financial assistance in marketing the crop."

On the subject of retail trade, the review says: "Warm weather during the latter part of May was reflected almost immediately in an improvement in sales of seasonal goods. Although trade in general was maintained at a little higher level than at the same time last year, business was very quiet during the early part of May. Both turnover and collections were reported to be slow. Department store sales, based on reports of 523 stores, showed an increase of 2 per cent in April as compared with April, 1928. Leading chain store systems reported substantially large sales during the month. Gains were most pronounced in drug chains. Combined increase in sales based on reports of 13 drug chains amounted to 20 per cent; 34 grocery stores showed an increase of nearly 15 per cent and sales of dry goods chains increased nearly 13 per cent. Shoe and candy chains showed decreases of 5.4 and 6.9 per cent in the month's sales."

YATES OUTPUT HELD IN CHECK

Company Uses Only Two Per Cent of Possible Yield Of 2,342,945 Barrels

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

Higher prices and increased demand for crude oil are making it possible for the Transcontinental Oil Company to show the earning power developed from successful drilling operations of the past three years.

The development of the Yates Pool in Pecos County, Texas, was followed by the slump in crude oil prices and drastic measures to bring production in line with the demands of consumers. As a result of this the company took only 2 per cent of its potential production from the Yates Pool.

The potential output was officially gauged by the proration committee of the Railroad Commission of the State of Texas. It showed Transcontinental to have a capacity for producing 2,342,945 barrels a day on this location alone. Of course, this is flush production and from the standpoint of actual operations, the company could not maintain such a figure for any length of time. But it is indicative of the enormous possibilities of the Yates Pool. The company controls more than 50 per cent of the production of the entire pool.

ACTUAL PRODUCTION

What Transcontinental may be expected to do under higher prices for crude and the better conditions in the industry can be seen from the fact that the daily average production of all the company's properties last year was only 15,943 barrels.

With this pinched-in output the company reported net profit of $1,506,803 after interest, depreciation and depletion. This compared with a deficit of $1,380,146 in 1927. Profit last year was equivalent to $9.56 a share on the $16,750,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock.

This stock had cumulative and unpaid dividends standing against it of $36 a share but provisions have been made for its retirement. Holders are to be given the option of taking $135 a share in cash for their stock or of exchanging it for $90 cash and five shares of common stock.

The necessary funds for the retirement will be secured by offering rights to the common stockholders to buy one new share at $9 for every two shares held, with 3,757,829 shares of common outstanding, this would yield more than enough to free the company of its preferred stock. The plan is subject to approval by stockholders at a meeting to be held on July 12.

FIRST QUARTER PROFIT

Earnings have continued to improve this year and the recent advances in crude prices lead to the belief that additional gains will be shown. In the first quarter of the year profit was $527,551. This was at the annual rate of $2,110,204.

Although Yates Pool is the brightest spot in Transcontinental's future, it does not represent the company's only possibility. In addition to other producing areas, attractive leases on several thousand acres scattered throughout Louisiana, Arkansas and New Mexico have been secured. These consist of eight separate blocks ranging in size from 4,000 to 20,000 acres.

Pressure Seen as Keeping Gold Out

LONDON, June 13.—The impression prevails that both the Reichsbank and the New York Federal Reserve Bank are exerting pressure to prevent withdrawals of gold from London to either Germany or New York. The "Financial News" states no gold was taken for shipment to New York yesterday notwithstanding the rumors and that in well informed quarters it is learned that about $2,000,000 actually engaged was subsequently cancelled.

The newspaper adds this is the third or fourth occasion within the last fortnight that arrangements to ship gold from London to Germany or New York were cancelled.

Cities Service Oil Gets Ohio Trade

The acquisition will include approximately 135 bulk and service stations in Cincinnati, Dayton, Springfield, Chillicothe, Georgetown, Urbana, Hamilton, London, Marysville, Middletown, Xenia and other communities in Southern Ohio.

Texas Cotton Rate Found Prejudicial

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP.)—Failure of the Abilene and Southern Railway Company and other railroads to provide export and coastwise rates on cotton and cotton linters from points in various Southwestern states to Corpus Christi, Tex., no greater for like distances than similar rates to other Texas ports was found today by the Interstate Commerce Commission to be unduly prejudicial.

Kayser to Report Big Gain for Fiscal Year

NEW YORK, June 13.—Julius Kayser & Co. earnings for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, will approximate $2,800,000, equal to about $6 a share on 484,120 common shares to be outstanding after giving effect to the 50 per cent stock dividend recenly declared.

This would be the best year on record and compare with $2,109,661, or $8.07 on 258,475 shares oustanding in the previous year.

It has been officially stated that new common stock will be placed on $4 annual basis. This would equal $6 on old stock, which received $5 per annum.

U. S. Notes Used as Secondary Reserve

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Heavy oversubscription of June offerings of certificates indicates to considerable extent the demand for these securities as a secondary reserve and not to any large degree to the supply of available money, in the opinion of Treasury officials.

Many banks have to a large extent already used their supply of eligible paper and wish to fortify themselves with governments in preparation for any emergency that may develop with settlements at the end of the fiscal year and future month end settlements.

Claude Neon Denied Rainbow Injunction

BOSTON, June 13.—Judge Campbell, of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York, handed down a decision in favor of Rainbow Luminous Products, Inc., on a motion brought by Claude Neon Lights, Inc., for an injunction under a supplemental bill asking that Rainbow Luminous be enjoined from making a particular type of tube, "The Caesium Mirror Tube," claiming it to be an infringement of the Claude Neon patent. The motion was denied.

WAR ON TRUSTS IN COMPLETE REVERSAL

Trade Commission, Instead Of Halting Combines, Now Forcing Co-Operation.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP.)—Possibly no modern business development is more strikingly illustrative of new economic sentiment than the present replacement of unlimited competition by trade co-operation now complete in 51 industries and being carried on, under federal government auspices, into many more.

Within a decade, a government attitude which solely sought to bring business associations into court for prosecution as restrainers of trade has so far altered that the Federal Trade Commission is now prosecuting in court individual business associations which have failed to comply, in effect, with business rules laid down by common consent by associations of the industry. Will E. Humphrey, one of the commissioners whose term of office has coincided with the right about face of public sentiment toward business organization remarked, in describing the processes now going, that they represented "perhaps the most remarkable phase of modern commerce."

ENCOURAGE CO-OPERATION

"For more than two years now, the commission has stood ready, when approached by representatives of any particular trade or industry, to call a trade practice conference," Commissioner Humphrey explained. "In these gatherings there are customarily assembled representatives of concerns responsibly conducting from 75 to 80 per cent of the output or business done in that particular line. These people present to us in detail a series of the regulations and understandings on which they consider business ought to be done in their trade. Some of these relate to elimination of sharp practice towards competitors or consumers; some of them relate to characterizations to be given to goods, and advertising representations, and many other things. Sometimes there is far from general agreement as to the advisability of general adoption of some proposals. Indeed, discussions are occasionally very acrimonious where competitors meet.

"Now, when a general trade agreement can be reached in such a conference we classify the code laid down in two divisions. One section of it, which we find to be dealt with by federal law, we promulgate as a commission regulation. Business men who fail to live up to it are thereafter subject to prosecution by the commission in the courts as engaging in legally unfair business practice. The balance of the agreement, which relates to activities that we consider possibly reprehensible, but nevertheless not legally subject to ban, the trade representatives adopt for their own guidance.

PROSECUTE MANY

"We have prosecuted a number of concerns for failing to live up to the legalized portions of such agreements, but it may be astonishing to know how general is the business compliance with the extra-legal requirements. Business men who reach an understanding with their strongest competitors, even under stress of hard conditions, can as a class be expected to stand by their words.

"What does the public get out of it? Generally, the elimination of waste, the maintenance of standards, and the abandonment of misrepresentation. Secondarily, the general public advantage from the new spirit in business, and the maintenance of service."

Price discussions as yet remain outside the typical trade conferences. In Europe now, where the Cartel System of fixing prices is openly recognized by leading industrial countries, court cases are frequent in which individual business firms are being punished and fined for selling goods at prices below the figure fixed for the commodity by the general combination.

In making the announcement, President N. R. Maas said: "As the blade business is by far the largest volume department of the safety razor industry, our new product is expected to have a very substantial influence toward increasing earnings." The company experienced a record breaking first quarter when net of $200,028, equal to $2.29 a share on 87,500 shares of "A" stock was reported, comparing with $159,347 or $1.82 a share in the similar period of 1928. Earnings for the present quarter are reported running in excess of the same period last year, with sales in satisfactory volume.

POWER OUTPUT HITS PEAK IN MAY

Manufacturing Consumption of Electricity Exceeds Previous Monthly Record

NEW YORK, June 13.—General manufacturing operations in the United States in May, corrected for seasonal variation, and based on consumption of electrical energy, were the highest on record, surpassing the previous high monthly rate, which occurred in April, by 3.3 per cent, Electrical World reports. Sustained activity in iron and steel plants, the rubber manufacturing industry, and improvement in the textile situation accounted for the gains made.

The May rate of operations, not corrected for seasonal variation, was 0.4 per cent above April of this year, but was 2.6 per cent under the peak of general productive operations established in February. Manufacturing operations for May of the current year were on a plane that was fully 15 per cent above May of last year. The first five months of 1929 witnessed an average rate of activity that was 13.2 per cent greater than in the corresponding period last year.

All sections of the country reported May operations in industry materially above those of May, 1928. The Western states showed a gain of 31 per cent; the Southern states, 17.4 per cent; North Central states, 17.1 per cent; Middle Atlantic states, 15.5 per cent, and New England states, 13 per cent.

With the exception of leather products, and paper and pulp, all industries recorded a substantial increase over May of last year. The largest gain over last year, and a record rate of activity, was reported by the rolling mills and steel plants, the increase amounting to 37.8 per cent.

The automotive industry, including manufacture of parts and accessories, recorded a drop in operations during May of 5.2 per cent as contrasted with the April rate. Compared with May of last year, however, the rate for last month registered a gain of 14.3 per cent. The peak of operations in automotive plants, from present indications, was reached in April, as was the case last year.

GOVERNORS, OIL MEN DISAGREE

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., June 13.—(AP.)—Without having framed a policy for regulation of the oil industry, through an interstate pact, representatives of the country's leading oil producing states brought to an end yesterday their preliminary conversations, to be resumed at the call of President Hoover. The meeting was called by Mr. Hoover with a view to regulating production and eliminating waste in the industry.

As the meeting adjourned, the conference expressed its willingness to proceed with the question of conservation of the country's oil resources at the pleasure of the President.

Recess was taken on a motion of the representatives from the three largest producing states at the conference table—California, Oklahoma and Texas—which resolved that the main objective of the meeting could best be attained by further study of the problems involved. The four governors participating in the conversations read into the record a resolution suggesting the appointment of a commission by the executives of oil producing states and by President Hoover to consider the entire subject of conservation of oil and gas resources.

The governors who sat at the conference were J. E. Erickson, Montana; W. H. Adams, Colorado; Clyde Reed, Kansas, and Frank C. Emerson, Wyoming, permanent secretary. The seven other oil producing states were represented by delegates appointed by their governors.

The conference recessed on its third day after Chairman Requa had met with the four governors to consider a procedure proposal by Gov. Reed, and the immediate question of the compact had been turned over, on a motion by Frances Wilson, of New Mexico, to the delegates from California, Oklahoma and Texas.

The four governors protested against recess and Gov. Reed said the three major producing states "dissented" from the views expressed in the governors' resolution. This drew from each of the three states a denial that they dissented.

Bad Sales Weather Hurts United Fruit

BOSTON, June 13.—The United Fruit Company earnings to date this year have been running behind 1928, during the worst selling weather ever experienced by the company both here and abroad. The company's position has also been affected by apprehension over the possibility of a sugar tariff and the fear of a bad loss by the sugar division. The profit before taxes in the first quarter of this year was about $3,300,000 against $4,650,000 in the 1928 period. It is likely the comparison for the second quarter will also be unfavorable, although the quarterly dividend of $1 will be covered by a wide margin.

Publisher Denies Power Link Charge

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(13.)—Ira C. Copely, head of the Copely Press, Inc., which publishes California and Illinois newspapers, through the Federal Trade Comission today challenged Senator Norris, of Nebraska, to "repeat on the street as facts" his charges in Congress that he was connected with public power utility interests.

McClintic-Marshall Gets Republic Order

The McClintic-Marshall Company has been awarded the contract for the steel work for new buildings to be constructed at Youngstown, O., by the Republic Iron and Steel Company. The General Electric Company will furnish the motors and electrical equipment.

OIL DECISION MAY AFFECT RADIO

Protective Association Officer Says Patent Monopoly Exists in Wireless

WASHINGTON, June 13.—(AP.)—The decision of the Federal Court at Chicago against 52 oil companies under anti-trust proceedings was viewed today by Oswald F. Schuette, executive secretary of the Radio Protective Association, as a mandate to the Department of Justice to begin proceedings against the "so-called radio trust."

In a statement, Schuette declared that the patent license agreements under which five companies "undertook to destroy competition in the radio industry are far more specific violations of the anti-monopoly laws than the agreements under which the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and 51 associated companies have been found guilty of using their patents to monopolize the oil-cracking industry."

These companies, Schuette said, were the Rario Corporation of America, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the General Electric Company, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and the United Fruit Company.

"The oil agreements," Schuette continued, "did not fix prices, restrain production, divide fields of operation or control future investments. The radio trust agreements do all of these things—all in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, but this $5,000,000,000 radio combination has so far been able to obtain immunity from prosecution by the Department of Justice under the pretense that the government is powerless against a patent monopoly. The decision at Chicago should end that immunity."

Asher Pool Action Receives Setback

TULSA, Okla., June 12.—Outlook for production in the new Asher pool, Pottowatomie County, below Viola Lime, received another setback yesterday when Alexander No. 1 well of the Simms Petroleum Company and the Tom Slick Oil Company in Section 18-6-4 had a hole full of salt water from Simpson sand at 3,976 feet.

Previously a well in this section encountered salt water from the Wilcox sand. Wells in this pool are producing from Viola Lime and older ones are showing a big decline since new wells have been drilled in. Failure to find production below Viola Lime in this pool has materially strengthened crude oil situation in Oklahoma.

Crucible Steel Up On Dividend Rumors

NEW YORK, June 13.—Among the steel stocks Crucible has been active and strong during recent market sessions. Directors are scheduled to meet for dividend action next Monday and close interests are predicting that the rate will be increased from $5 annually to $6.

There is a good sized amount of authorized unissued stock of Crucible and some would not be surprised should fair amounts of stock dividends be declared from time to time. This company has shared in the general prosperity now being enjoyed by the steel companies.

PACKARD MOTOR PROTECTED

DETROIT, June 13.—The Packard Motor Car Co.'s Diesel type aircraft motor is fully protected by patents and license agreements, according to Milton Tibbetts, assistant vice president and patent counsel.

Erroneous or misleading statements have been made recently about patent protection we will have for our new Disel-type aircraft motor, Mr. Tibbetts said, and these statements require correction. It is true the Diesel principle is very old but many problems had to be solved before a suitable light Diesel type motor could be built. These problems were solved by us and in many instances real inventions resulted. Therefore, instead of no patents being obtainable as has been rumored, the Packard motor will be very well protected by patents and there is every reason to believe we will have real patent control of its many novel and striking features.

BUGS BAER Says

WHEN ITS SPINACH TIME IN DIXIE

Bugs Baer

WE are with the Institute of Child Welfare Research in its efforts in training children to eat disliked foods.

Especially spinach, a food which you can eat three times a day for a century and still not get the spinach habit.

Like parsley and other pot herbs, spinach is a food that looks well on a dish for months.

Little Arthura Baer loves spinach. She started eating it at the age of six months and is a spinach veteran at the age of 2 years and four months.

Where the Institute of Child Welfare Research makes its juvenile mistake is in trying to feed the baby with a spoon.

When little Arthura gets her spinach she steps right into the trough. First, she dips in a fist and comes up with a bouquet of everblooming spinach and massages it into her bib.

That acclimates her and her next fistful goes into the nurses' eye. While Bridie is combing the interurban seaweed out of her vision, the baby plasters the walls and ceiling with a frieze of the softboiled stuff.

No matter how much she wastes, she always saves enough of the spinach to make herself a green beard.

We do not want the Institute of Child Welfare Research to tell us how to compel a baby to eat spinach.

What we want to know is how to make her stop eating it.

She has more fun with her spinach than she has with all her other toys.

She gets some of it into her mouth. But that is because her aim is bad.

The way to get a baby to eat is to allow her to direct the traffic. Even the Institute of Child Welfare Research is only an institute dealing with vitamins and calories while a baby sticks strictly to fundamentals and squawks.

We are willing to forward our spinach recipe to the Institute free of charge. The best way is to dip the child in a tub of spinach and we will guarantee that she swallows some.

The right of a baby to choose its own food cannot be abridged or curtailed by amendments.

A baby naturally likes to plunge its hand in vegetables and mashed potatoes. The question arises whether you want your child to be polite or healthy.

We choose health. After she gets that she likes to eat, then you can always send her to Vassar to study table manners.

The best thing about spinach is that it looks well on anything.

And although very rough in their table manners, babies are not especially dangerous to their attendants. We would rather struggle and have them fed through a keyhole.

Free Movies in Parks Are Proposed by Mayor

Mayor Charles H. Kline is to be congratulated for having come forward with a progressive proposal to make the parks of the city more attractive through the showing of free motion pictures on Sunday evenings. It is to be hoped the Mayor's laudable plans for such wholesome entertainment of the public may be made effective as speedily as possible. Council should give its support freely and wholly. Motion picture concerns in Pittsburgh will earn public gratitude by co-operating to the extent of their facilities, to the end that our parks shall become more fully fitted to appeal to persons of varied tastes.

Highland Park has its zoological garden. Schenley and West Parks have conservatories. During the summer there are concerts on Sundays and other days in various parks. In Schenley there is a golf course. These now constitute the attractions of the parks aside from the pleasures of strolling or driving. The addition of free moving pictures on Sunday, the day when most people would have the leisure to enjoy them, is visualized by Mayor Kline as a boon to the public, in making the parks what they are supposed to be—great community playgrounds.

It is a pleasure, indeed, to commend Mayor Kline for his forward-looking move. It is an indication that our city executive knows that the social activities of the citizens require attention and that the means of caring for the demands in that direction should develop as well as the means of caring for their other requirements. The beauty of our parks, of course, always will be their most appealing point, but modern life demands something besides the grass and trees and flowers. That is recognized in the establishment of the zoo, golf, conservatories and music.

The time has come for another advanced step—free motion pictures in the parks on Sunday.

Let all unite in thanking Mayor Kline for suggesting it.

Let Charter Rally Spirit Be Spread in County

The Metropolitan Charter dinner and rally in the William Penn Hotel last night was an impressive affair, especially significant in the fact that it was representative of a united community, expressing a whole-hearted spirit. Under the auspices of the Allied Board of Trade, it was a monster assemblage of civic and other organizations, called for the purpose of bringing together varied groups in one mighty demonstration in behalf of the proposed charter, coming before the people for approval Tuesday, June 25.

Such a meeting is an inspiration. No person was invited to attend because he is politically prominent. No person was invited to attend because he is an officeholder or because he is influential as a citizen. All were bidden to be present as representatives and members of some civic organization or group interested in the adoption of the charter. Hence, it was a notable gathering, the like of which probably never has been seen in the county. It was an evidence that there is fulfillment of public desire that the charter be involved in no issues except that of the welfare of the community as a whole.

There were speeches explanatory of the objects sought to be obtained through the charter and of the features of the charter itself, delivered by persons thoroughly familiar with the subject. They had the result of cementing sentiment in favor of the charter, but their greater result will be in the extension of that sentiment through the medium of those who attended.

Charter meetings are now being held daily—before citizen groups in schoolhouses, before women's clubs, before workers assembled at the noon hour, before residents of cities, boroughs and townships—meetings that can be inspired and will be stimulated as a result of last night's rally, if the spirit manifested there is effectively transmitted to those participating in the smaller but just as important assemblages.

The community spirit in evidence when the charter was discussed at the great meeting by persons of prominence was enthusiastic and infectious. Now let those affected by it see that it is spread throughout the county.

Obey Rules of Traffic; Give New Lights Aid

Two results looked for in the adoption of traffic control by synchronized light signals, now partially in use in the Downtown district, are the speeding up of vehicular movement and greater safety for traffic officers, four or five of whom are injured each month, on an average, it is stated.

One of the promises made in behalf of the new system was that it would release many policemen on traffic detail for duty elsewhere. However, it is not surprising to learn that officers still will be needed. They will be present to keep things straight and to operate signals by hand in case the flow of vehicles becomes jammed. But they will be out of danger instead of occupying hazardous places at street intersections.

Yet, even if the system proves by experience to be less nearly perfect than is hoped, the lights will be an improvement over the "stop-go" semaphores. Lights can be seen at a distance while the semaphore seldom is visible except to the driver at the head of a traffic stream. The combination of lights, green and yellow, on which a driver can proceed, also means some gain in time.

For several days the city has been placarded with instructions to drivers and pedestrians. One important thing for the latter to remember is that while drivers can proceed on the combination of green and yellow, foot travelers should stay at the curb. Their one signal to proceed is green alone, stopping at red alone or at the combination of green and yellow.

If all observe the rules of traffic the new system will have the better chance of proving its merit.

Tales That Are Told

The Only Way

TWO golfing rivals were contesting the final of their local championship. They were all square at the eleventh hole.

One made a perfect drive from the next tee, but his opponent was unlucky, and the ball, curving high in the air, landed in jungle country.

When he went to investigate, he discovered that his ball had gone down a rabbit hole.

"Your niblick, sir!" inquired the caddie, reaching for the club.

"No," returned the other in a resigned voice. "Hurry back to the club house and get me a ferret."

Rubbing It In

ONE of those very small cars had run out of gas. The nearest garage was eight miles away, and the harassed motorist was wondering what would be the best thing to do when a magnificent car appeared round the bend in the road.

"Could you spare me a drop of gas?" he asked the driver. "I've run completely out."

The leather-coated chauffeur descended from his car and eyed the diminutive vehicle drawn into the side of the road.

"H'm!" he returned, with a contemptuous sniff. "It's not gas you want, it's a new flint."

Quite Different

"MY DEAR," said a man to his newly-married wife, "where did all these books on astronomy come from?"

"A pleasant little surprise for you," responded the wife. "You know, dear, you said this morning we ought to study astronomy; so I bought every book I could on the subject."

It was some minutes before he spoke.

"My dear girl," he said, slowly, "I never said we must study astronomy; I said we must study economy!"

Startling

A POLITICAL canvasser had been standing on the doorstep for over three-quarters of an hour enlarging on the benefits his party would undoubtedly bestow upon their supporters.

As he did not appear to be making any particular headway, he asked the lady of the house whether it would be of any use for him to call when her husband was at home.

"Well—er—no, I don't think so," came the unexpected reply. "I ought to have told you before—you see, we're already insured with another company!"

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

TWO rich oil men were talking about their money and their wells and their travels in Kansas City while they were waiting for the train.

"I been taking in the auctions the last couple times I been in New York," says Jones.

"That so? I wouldn't think you could get anything real swell at auctions."

"You wouldn't, hay? Well, I got a Raphael and a Da Vinci last month. Genuine, too."

"Yeah," says the other guy, disgusted-like, "I seen them things and had 'em offered me a year ago. They're genuine all right, but I don't like the motor in 'em, and the brakes are no good in any of that foreign stuff."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

CERTAIN young men at Harvard are debating on whether the Modern Girl is a curse. Which is about as silly a waste of human breath as one can well imagine.

Why all this furor over the modern girl, as though she were a new and distinct form of higher primate? She isn't. The female heart hasn't changed a particle since Eve first woke up and decided that Adam would do. Ladies have always been as much of a curse as circumstances permitted. They have always secretly snickered at the large pretensions of their males—they have always managed to manipulate said males, but prior to the twentieth century they had to use a lot of camouflage. Gramma thought her thoughts, but she didn't think them out loud, with grampa holding the purse-strings and all the jobs. But granddaughter tells the world what she thinks and if her Boy Friend doesn't like it that's just his bad luck. She should worry over his objections—she can buy her own chocolate sundaes and pay her own way into the ball game.

SHE CAN PAY HER OWN WAY—that's the crux of the whole situation.

Fanny Brice sings two songs which throw much light on girls, modern and otherwise. The first one made her famous. All America shuffled when Fanny sang "My Man." Remember—

"Two or three girls has he—
"That he likes as well as me—
"But I love him!
"I don't know why I should—
"He isn't good—he isn't true—
"He beats me, too—what shall I do?"

Young men at Harvard don't debate about that song. Doubtless they approved it highly for those were exactly the sentiments which females had been expected to entertain toward their males since time immemorial.

But now Fanny is singing a different song. It also deals with love, but it doesn't say it with tears.

"You're the cream in my coffee—
"You're the salt in my stew—
"You always will be—
"My necessity—
"I'd be lost without you!"

That is a very different song from My Man. Both the man and the Love are still there, and the love continues red hot, but no one is going to kick the heroine of that song around—not if she knows it! Her Boy Friend may be the "cream in her coffee," but it's obvious that he'll also be the old rags in her junk if he doesn't qualify. She has learned how to do the proposing—AND ALSO THE DISPOSING. SHE HAS BOUGHT HER RIGHT TO EITHER LOVE 'EM OR LEAVE 'EM. And that's really what is worrying our young friends at Harvard.

It needn't. Love has always been and will continue to be the greatest adventure for women. It's as great an adventure for the modern girl as it was for her grandmother. The new freedom hasn't cooled her heart—but it has lined her head and stiffened her spine and loosed her tongue. She can love more proudly than her grandmother could, for she can pick her man more honestly and give herself more freely. She married not because she has to but because she wants to.

WHEN YOU WIN THE HEART OF A MODERN GIRL YOU GET SOMETHING!

Which fact, I suspect, is no news at Harvard—in spite of that debate!

STORMS

By Garrett P. Serviss

"We were discussing the question whether during a storm the lightning or the thunder came first. The argument has resulted in some heat, and we have agreed to abide by your statement.—H. T., Brooklyn."

THE thunder would get pretty well warmed up and all out of breath if it tried to catch the lightning. This is an old, old question, but why it should ever have arisen is a mystery to me. It certainly shows that the modern mathematical methods of treating physics have no results to boast of on the popular understanding of nature's ways.

When you shoot a gun does the expansion of the powder gases or the sound of the explosion occur first? Except perhaps inside some of the crazy appendixes that curl round the Einstein theory, causes come before consequences. The explosion of the powder drives out the projectile and produces a shock in the surrounding atmosphere which sets up sound waves, that become the voice of the gun speaking.

The gigantic electric spark that we call lightning resembles the explosion of the gunpowder. It shocks the atmosphere and creates sound waves, proportioned to the great power of the hammer-stroke of energy that produced them, which roll through the sky and re-echo among the hills and valleys. That is the thunder. Now, how could the thunder occur before the lightning stroke had set it vibrating?

When the lightning occurs very near us, it sometimes seems as if the thunder was coincident with it, or you might even imagine, precedent to it, owing to the great shock on your nerves. But if you are observant you will see that there is an instant interval after the flash before the sound strikes the ear.

It is a matter of relative velocity. Sound travels in the air about 1,100 FEET in a second; light about 186,000 MILES in a second! If the lightning occurs a mile away your sight will be aware of it in one 186,000th of a second. But your ear will not be aware of it until after nearly five seconds.

Similarly, a high-speed bullet can strike a deer dead before its sensitive ear hears the report of the rifle—but not before its eye has caught the flash; wherefore some hunters say a deer may dodge a long shot if it sees the flash of the gun. If it were a mile-shot and the bullet's speed was 2500 feet per second, the deer would have about two seconds to make up its mind and dodge.

But if Apollo standing on the moon should draw his bow upon you, with an arrow of lightning, and you had instantaneous knowledge of the departure of the arrow, you would have only about a second-and-a-third in which to get out of line. But, since light is the swiftest messenger of which we have any knowledge, there is no known way in which the approach of lightning bolt can be perceived, for light and lightning have the same speed. We are accustomed to say that thought can beat light, because we can think in an instant of a star thousands of light-years away, and can in imagination cross that space instantaneously.

Bible Passages

Atonement

(Romans 5; 1-16)

THEREFORE being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ:

By whom also we have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God.

And not only so, but we glory in tribulations also: knowing that tribulation worketh patience;

And patience, experience; and experience, hope:

And hope maketh not ashamed; because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us.

For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly.

For scarcely for a righteous man will one die: yet peradventure for a good man some would even dare to die.

But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him.

For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life.

And not only so, but we also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement.

Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned:

(For until the law sin was in the world: but sin is not imputed when there is no law.

Nevertheless death reigned from Adam to Moses, even over them that had not sinned after the similitude of Adam's transgression, who is the figure of him that was to come.

But not as the offence, so also is the free gift. For if through the offence of one many be dead, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man, Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many.

And not as it was by one that sinned, so is the gift: for the judgment was by one to condemnation, but the free gift is of many offences unto justification.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

His Best

As long as the work a man does
Is good,
He can go with scant praise and little food
And with purpose maligned and misunderstood.

Though his home is a hut in a lonely spot
He can find sweet rest on his narrow cot,
If the voice of his conscience rebukes him not.

He can live without loneliness, though alone,
And peace for all losses will still atone
If deep in his soul ring the words: "Well done!"

If he tastes the joy of that calm refrain
He can pass untouched through a world of stain
While youth and laughter and music wane.

As long as a man gives the world his best
He can face all fortunes and fear no test;
He has walked with truth, of what worth is the rest?

By Herbert Kaufman

THE most useful man on earth is having a party.

The brain children of grandfather Edison, and their various industrial families, are celebrating the birth of the electric light, and making sure that posterity won't forget the humble manger in which it was born, or the background of its creator.

The tu'penny experiment of a homemade laboratory has matured into a universal system engaging billions of capital and millions of employes. And all within the life-span of its parent.

Statistics aren't even dimly aware of the copper mines it has spun into wires—of the timber tracts it has felled for poles—of the silica and lead it has blown to bulbs—of the brick and stone and steel it has built into manufacturing plants and transmission stations—not to mention the tons of porcelain, rubber, platinum and tungsten, O. G. cable, silk, cotton and shade fabrics consumed since the wizard of Menlo Park challenged the powers of darkness to a finish fight—and began to furnish synthetic stars in push buttons.

The totaled investment of public service corporations founded upon his patents, together with the moneys engaged in providing equipment and sundries, exceeds the wealth working in any other department of commerce.

And the man responsible for this amazing demonstration of possibility never had a full primary schooling, an hour of technical training, early access to university records or the use of an endowment penny.

Maecenas cannot claim a leaf of his laurels.

Philanthropy may not patronizingly boast the discovery of his genius. His only partners have been confidence, determination and native wit.

He took the four-flush hand that poverty dealt him and filled it from his head. The necessary aces are always there if one has the patience and doggedness to draw for them.

Circumstances thrust a train-butcher's basket upon him, but it wasn't big enough to hold his imagination, so he swapped it for a telegraph key, and promptly proceeded to quadruple its power.

In odd moments, he perfected the stock ticker, and with the profits of that venture invaded new kingdoms, emerging with the phonograph, motion photography, poured cement construction, the storage battery and so many other things that nobody ever before thought of, that an entire newspaper page can't list 'em.

But, the unique quality of Thomas A. Edison's performance is not the originality of his ideas, nor yet the pertinacity which distinguishes his method.

His distinguishing characteristic is an impeccable honesty—his name has never been attainted with plagiarism—his business record is clean as a hound's tooth.

There isn't a dirty rung in the ladder up which he climbed, nor a bruised shoulder behind his success.

He has made his way and his dollars without trespassing upon an individual right or a federal statute.

He has marched in mid-road and in the open—for eighty odd years, a loyal citizen of the Republic and an obedient servant of its conscience and its laws.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 13.—The "My Pal" theme invariably threads itself into the Broadway fellowship. Its mawkish sentimentality mists the eye when supper club stayouts sign off in barber shop chords at sunup. After midnight everybody along the street is a pal. Good old Al! What a boy!

But the calloused Broadwayite has long since learned when in trouble to avoid asking favors of his fellows. The Broadway good fellowship consists in helping those who do not need it. The "helping hand" is extended chiefly in giving $10-a-plate dinners to millionaire actors.

A Broadway wag once emphasized the idea by the dramatic exclamation: "My Pal," and drawing a finger across his throat. Broadway genuflects only to success. When the bankroll vanishes the lights flash "Detour." It lives in the eternal now and "has been" is not in its lexicon.

The "come back" is seldom achieved along the street. The White Way failures who have been restored to useful citizenship, as a rule, turned their backs on the thoroughfares and started over again in new pastures. Some of Hollywood's astounding successes were former Broadway failures.

At night on street corners, in speakeasies and chop houses, may be found an army of professional cadgers spinning their roseate tales of erstwhile triumphs. These are not always the vagaries of the chronic down-and-outer, but throbbing chapters from real life.

Broadway is ever ready with its rousing: "He was a good fellow when he had it!" Its crocodile tears mean nothing and cost less. Alcoholic sympathies are usually forgotten in the agony of next morning's headaches. A sober Broadway has a cold eye for the luckless. It cannot forgive Providence for letting fools live.

Those refrains stressing home, mother and dear old pal of mine find an enthusiastic response when lights burn brightest but are as artificial as the glitter. Broadway seems a bed of roses to those on top, but those who sink find the usual thorns. Ask the boys with the tin cups and pencils; they know!

Those closely clipped hedges and lawns and iron fences are fading from the Manhattan picture. This mellow section in the West Twenties has stood without an architectural change since the Civil War, but today is passing into the sacrificial maw of progress—the final strip in New York's vanishing tranquillity.

Seventy years ago it was the aristocratic and fashionable Gold Coast. And then came its picturesquely shabby gentility. From the broad sidewalks one saw oil lamps, be-laced curtains, Spanish balconies wrought in iron, and those fruit-in-plate pastels in the chaste custom of an almost forgotten era.

Several years ago they tried to revive Chelsea Village. They knocked out walls and made enormous studio rooms. Raymond Hitchcock moved there. As did Henry Hadley the musician, Boardman Robinson, the artist, and others who attained celebrity. But the renaissance refused to jell. So Chelsea passed to the wreckers.

There is no use trying to placate one of those tantalizing drunks with an imaginary grievance who continues querying: "You don't like me, do you?" At dinner last night a gentleman headed off a tormenting session with a frank "No." And the stew departed.

New York is to see the dazzlingly speedy game jai-a-li—called hi-li. It comes from the Basque country and is extremely popular in Mexico and now in Florida. Benny Leonard, the pugilist, will introduce it to Gotham. The game is played on a court against a background of black wall with a small white ball that travels with the zip of a bullet. It is cast and caught in a sort of shovel basket fastened to the hands. It makes tennis look like a slow-motion picture. Leonard is to include in his league Cleveland, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Chicago.

The real reason for that staid old institution—the Union League Club—moving from Thirty-ninth street and Fifth avenue to Park avenue was noise. From the street the club always had a sepulchral solemnity with wraith-like figures tiptoeing around. With my girlish flair for cutting up, I've always wanted to sail a feather through an open window, just to create a clatter and commotion.

And after nightfall in the shadows of the club I often notice a group of deaf mutes gossiping in sign language. There's thoughtful whatyoucallit for you!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

YOU have lived along a good many years and have seen very little of any of your relations.

It has not been intentional avoidance of those who are near of kin, but you are busy and they are busy and your mutual lines do not lie in the same direction.

In other words, there has been nothing "mutual" about it, except your absence from the family environs.

You have grown to think that none of the family care anything about you or yours.

You don't see, and seldom hear anything more than the briefest news about them.

But you have never considered it is your own fault, have you?

Have you ever shown any particular interest in the members of your family?

You have been chiefly afraid they might ask you for money, perhaps.

A certain amount of aloofness would make it harder to ask you.

You have not much use for borrowers, and perhaps there are some members of your family who don't feel the responsibility of returning promptly that which is borrowed from relatives.

But you have lost a lot if you haven't tried to do an unexpected good turn and been warmed by the grateful appreciation of your distant home folk.
